OIL QUOTA BOOSTED

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon proclaimed a 93,000-barrel-a-day increase today in imports of Canadian crude and unfinished oils destined for states east of the Rockies.

An administration spokesman said this would, in effect, mean as much capacity as the pipeline can hold.

The quota for Canadian crude will be 675,000 barrels a day averaged over all of 1973. The former quota was 581,000.

In addition to the added imports expected from Canada through the higher quota, the United States estimates supplies from other parts of the world will be increased by 822,000 barrels daily to a daily total of somewhat more than two million barrels.

Imports on the U.S. West Coast are increased to 800,000 barrels daily during 1973 from 717,000 in 1972.

Meanwhile, some progress has been made on a U.S.-Canada agreement to share oil supplies in an emergency, Deputy Minister Jack Austin said today.

Mail Dispute Erupts Into Wildcat Strikes

Postal workers picket main Toronto terminal

Times News Services

Canada's postal service moved closer to a shutdown today, as wildcat strikes halted mail movement in both Vancouver and Toronto.

The long-simmering dispute came to a boil Tuesday, with the two sides accusing each other of causing the interruption. Postal workers across Canada have been legally able to strike since Dec. 21.

In Vancouver, where the walkout is expected to end tonight, Emile Le Hingrat, spokesman for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the strike was called after workers received word that the treasury board will not accept part of a conciliation board report in the contract dispute.

A post office spokesman in Victoria said service here was continuing normally today. However, mail for Vancouver Island points from the rest of Canada was being delayed by the mainland walkout.

RENEGING

Vancouver post office officials said this morning that "as long as the work stoppage continues the Vancouver and New Westminster main post offices and postal stations will remain closed and there will be no mail deliveries."

The postal unions said the government was reneging on an earlier commitment to accept a conciliation board report as the basis for negotiations, by refusing a section on job classification grievances.

The government charged that the unions had rejected the same clause.

No date for a resumption of talks was announced.

In a news release, the Council of Postal Unions CPU said government negotiators had refused to go along with the report and were trying to twist it to suit their purposes.

Later, Claude Parent, chief treasury board negotiator, emerged from a private meeting with Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet to say the union negotiating committee had demanded "as a price for further negotiations" that the government make immediate concessions beyond the terms of the majority report of the conciliation board.

NO UNION REPLY

A treasury board spokesman said the unions have not replied to a complete set of proposals presented Monday. Instead, they've accused the board of twisting the report.

Roger Decarie, a co-chairman of the CPU, said the only sound contract offers the government has made were presented in December.

He said the unions would not accept the conciliation board report if it is changed, saying it was a case of all or nothing.

The talks, which resumed Thursday, were the first face-to face negotiations since mid-December, and the breakdown came only one day after the postmaster-general had announced the government would accept the conciliation board's majority report.

In a national vote earlier this month, the rank and file postal workers turned down the recommendation of their negotiating team to reject the conciliation board proposals.

The vote was close — 11,200 to 9,500 — but with the majority going for acceptance of the report, it left the union

UIC Bill Tightens Rules

Times News Service

OTTAWA — Persons who quit their jobs without just cause or get fired for misconduct will not be eligible for unemployment insurance benefits according to a bill introduced today by the government.

The bill, which was given routine first reading, also would give the Unemployment Insurance Commission the power to make regulations defining when claimants are available for work and what kind of work qualifies as being suitable to replace lost jobs.

Manpower Minister Robert Andras, said the commission might give a person four or six weeks to come up with a job in the same area or in the same salary range that he left, then insist that he take other kinds of jobs or be cut off from UIC benefits.

The bill also proposes several adjustments in designation of benefit periods.

One of the provisions would prohibit a person from receiving benefits for a period of more than 53 weeks. Under current regulations a person can conceivably receive benefits over an 83-week period, although he would only be eligible for the UIC maximum of 51 weekly payments within that period.

Earlier, Agriculture Minister E. F. Whelan called on western grain producers to produce "all the wheat they can produce" this spring.

At the same time he urged them to produce even larger quantities of seed grains than they grew in previous years.

"Except for that reservation my theme to producers is to produce grain for all they are worth, and by the way I hope money lenders both east and west are listening. There is a clear message for them.

"The message is have faith in Canada's agricultural producers and give them the backing they deserve, because I intend to do this as long as I am minister of agriculture," said Whelan.

He spoke in the second last day of the throne speech debate Tuesday. He pointed out that ever since he had become minister of agriculture prices to the farmers have improved considerably.

"I urge farmers this spring to produce grain to beat the band, all types of grains," said the minister.

"Knowing the capacity and urge of Canadian farmers to produce I feel it in my bones that farmers will grow and deliver record quantities of grain both in the east and the west.

"This government will sell record amounts of grain again this year. And let no one belittle the efforts made by this government to improve the meteoric rise in cash income gains made from grain sales these past two years," said Whelan.

The Trudeau government faces its third confidence vote in a week today as the Commons winds up eight days of debate on the speech from the throne.

Barring some unforseen development the minority Liberal administration is expected to survive with NDP support, as it did on the two previous votes.

Barrett Has Hurt Tanker Case: Grit

Anderson said he is writing immediately to the premier, asking why he saw fit to prejudice both federal government and private efforts to prevent U.S. supertankers bringing Alaskan oil down the B.C. coast to refineries at Cherry Point.

He will also ask Barrett if he has "any private knowledge" on which to base his apparent acceptance of the "inevitability" of the tanker traffic.

One of the most damaging statements made by Barrett at the talks, Anderson said, was his claim that the federal government doesn't know what it is talking about on the general subject of the proposed oil tanker route and its effect on B.C.

He said that thanks in part to his own efforts, Ottawa "knows a damn sight more than Barrett on this particular subject."

Anderson said such inaccurate statements by the premier had given the U.S. useful ammunition.

"They are going to be able to say, 'Don't worry about the Canadians — we have this rube from the backwoods who is attacking their federal efforts. We've driven a wedge between the Canadians'."

Anderson also rapped Barrett for stating that it is useless to try to contest the tanker issue in the courts, pointing out that such efforts had already stalled the tankers for three years.

He pointed out that his own suit against the U.S. secretary of the interior is now before the U.S. Court of Appeal and would likely go as high as the Supreme Court. He said neither Barrett nor anyone else knows what the outcome of these efforts will be.

In his comments Anderson castigated the B.C. premier for asking Evans to present a brief to the U.S. Federal Power Commission on B.C.'s opposition to the proposed flooding of the Skagit Valley in B.C. by Seattle City Light.

The province can and should appear before the FPC to state its own case, he said.

DRUG LAW TYPO DELAYS CASE

OTTAWA — A legal problem, which interrupted a marijuana possession case in Surrey, was caused by an editorial error in the Revised Statutes of Canada 1970, a justice department official said today.

Provincial Judge Arthur Kelly of Surrey adjourned a marijuana possession case Monday for clarification of what he called the "sloppy legislation."

Judge Kelly would not allow a case against Robert James McBride and Josephine Jarvis of Surrey to go ahead as a summary conviction matter because a sub-section in the Narcotic Control Act describes possession of a narcotic as an indictable offence.

A person cannot be convicted in a lower court upon summary conviction for an offence which is indictable. The accused has an option to go to a higher court on an indictable matter.

D. H. Christie, a deputy attorney-general, said the original wording of the Narcotic Control Act as passed by Parliament is correct.

He said that when amendments to federal legislation were compiled in the Revised Statutes, the word "indictable" accidentally crept in.

The judge ordered the case adjourned to Feb. 23 for clarification and arguement by the prosecutor in the case.

Christie said the word indictable should not have been included in the sub-section. The French wording is "une

HYDRO SEES POWER DROP

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro anticipates it will have to provide 9.3 per cent more power for its customers each year for the next 11 years.

This would be less than the 11 per cent per year compound growth rate for the past 10 years. The growth in peak demand, the amount that is needed to meet the highest requirement for an instant in time, has grown by 9.9 per cent yearly in the past decade.

The annual forecast is made by the provincially-owned utility to guide its planners in developing new electrical power sources.

The report says that in 1983 Hydro's customers will use 47,601 million kilowatt hours of power compared with the 17,872 KWH used in the 12 months which ended March 31, 1972.

For the year ending next March 31, total consumption is expected to be 19,984 million KWH.

Hydro's officials make a number of assumptions in producing their estimates, among them that there will be no changes in the utility's practices, policies and existing rate schedules.

The estimate also assumes that despite current high unemployment, the economic outlook is one of sustained expansion. Environmental concern is not expected to result in any significant reduction in demand for electricity.

A review of this year's forecast against the rate of the past 10 years shows a drop in bulk users where the forecast growth is for 10.5 per cent annually compared with 15.3 per cent in the past decade.

In other categories, residential is predicted to grow at 9.2 per cent annually for the next 11 years compared with a recorded 9.5 per cent and general commercial growth is forecast at 8.1 per cent yearly compared with a recorded 9.3 per cent.

Emergency Fuel Airlift

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Maj. D. M. Sea transport to both isolated settlements has been halted by heavy ice.

Chabot Lashes Dowding

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Social Credit MLA Jim Chabot today unleashed a stinging attack on Speaker Gordon Dowding, saying Dowding has "abused the taxpayers' money" by travelling to India as part of a study of parliamentary practices.

Chabot was reacting to criticism voiced Tuesday by Dowding of the fact that Chabot released to the press details of the report of a special subcommittee on legislative practices.

Chabot called Dowding "a man who is inclined to participate in partisan politics", which Chabot said is not the role of a speaker of the house. And he said Dowding is "attempting to create a rift" among the members of the subcommittee of which Chabot was the chairman.

Chabot released details of his subcommittee's report to the press last Thursday. Dowding charged Tuesday that the report should have been discussed first by the legislative assembly before being released, and accused Chabot of "a breach of privilege of the house."

The Socred MLA for Columbia River said in a telephone interview from Inversmere that Dowding's charges are "an unrealistic statement." He said Dowding "doesn't understand the legislation by which our committee was established." The subcommittee was established under Dowding, not as a committee of the house, Chabot said, and therefore their report should not have to go to the house first.

He said he made his subcommittee's report available to Dowding when it was completed and then released it to the press. "It isn't my fault that he is travelling around the world and wasn't able to receive the report because he was in New Delhi," Chabot said.

Chabot said he "can't see any relationship" between parliament in India and the B.C. legislative assembly. The Indian house has some 500 members while B.C. has 55 "and we're just not living in the same kind of world as they are," he said.

The former Socred labor minister said Dowding's trip across Canada to visit other provincial legislatures was worthwhile, but the trip to India was not. Dowding returned from India last week, after a visit of several days.

MOST DDT DESTROYED

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence research board is approaching the end of a program of destroying almost all the DDT stocks in Canada.

The longer-than-expected program was announced in 1971 but staff and other problems have slowed the process.

The board said this week that about 65 per cent of the 107,000 gallons of liquid DDT held by the armed forces in 1971 now has been destroyed in its facility at Suffield, Alta.

The environment department said most of the liquid DDT in the country now is at Suffield, near Medicine Hat. Most of this had been held by the armed forces which used it to control biting flies at northern bases.

DDT was virtually banned in Canada in late 1969. It now can be used only in specific cases, such as the control of some worms and bats, and only under controlled conditions.

In the system, DDT contaminants are burned and the burned matter is cooled by water. There is said to be no pollution from destruction of the pollutant, the only side products being a dilute acid, carbon dioxide and water vapor.

Small stocks of DDT in dust form are being maintained in selected depots across the country. This is used primarily for the control of body lice and health officials asked the department to save some in case of emergencies.

Remorse After Theft: Accused

A 25-year-old Englishman, in Canada six months, today pleaded guilty in provincial court to robbing a Victoria woman who had befriended him.

Charles Howard-Williams, of no fixed address, admitted stealing two diamond rings, diamond cluster brooch and $80 cash from the home of Mrs. Ethel Aske Grieve, 1485 Fairfield.

City detective Lou Trusdale testified that Howard-Williams had been "very co-operative and apologetic" when he and detective Ted James had questioned him at the Victoria General Hospital Monday.

Trusdale said Howard-Williams had been admitted to hospital early Saturday "with self-inflicted wounds on each wrist."

Trusdale said Howard-Williams told them he had done this because he was "feeling remorseful about what he had done to a lady who had been a friend for quite some time."

Trusdale told how both the jewelry and money had been recovered.

Howard-Williams had been a guest in Mrs. Grieves home. After the theft he took a room at the Brentwood Motel.

When visited there by the two detectives Howard-Williams denied any knowledge of the theft.

Trusdale testified that Howard-Williams had wrapped the rings in toilet paper and hidden them under a stairway.

Questioned in hospital later, Howard-Williams said he had taken the rings from the stairway and flushed them down the toilet.

The police obtained a plumber who found the rings in a septic tank pipe Tuesday morning.

The cash was found in a camera book in the motel room.

Howard-Williams told the police that he had thrown the broach into a bushy area on the south bank of Keating Cross Road, about 150 feet west of the Pat Bay Highway.

Using a Coinmaster, a precious metal locator, the detectives discovered the broach under about two inches of grass and leaves.

Jobless Debate

bate saw the 109-member government minority defeat two Conservative motions of no-confidence through a tenuous alliance with the 31 New Democrats.

If the government carries today's vote Trudeau will have the mandate to govern he said he would seek after the Oct. 30 election. The NDP and Social Credit have indicated they will give the Liberals a chance to govern.

T. C. Douglas (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands), former NDP leader, Tuesday responded to critics of his party's support of the Liberals by saying the NDP has merely given the government a reprieve, an opportunity to produce the legislation promised in the throne speech.

No fan of the Liberals, he called the throne speech the greatest about-face in the history of Canadian government.

He added, however, that the minority situation in Parliament leaves MPs and political parties with only two options — government by consensus or another election.

GROUP PRESSES HEALTH CENTRE

The Juan de Fuca Kinsmen Club is interested in helping establish a new health centre for the Colwood-Langford-Metchosin area, the metro health board learned Tuesday.

The health board has been trying to get bigger and better quarters in that district for over a year and board chairman Ken Hill noted the club's interest, revealed in a copy of a letter to Health Minister Dennis Cocke.

Hill added that there is a man willing to donate land for the project.

The health board's lease expires in April and the chairman said he hopes Cocke will realize the "dire necessity" for more adequate quarters and approve action.

Hill was re-elected board chairman and Ron Fitton re-elected vice-chairman. There were no other nominations in either case.

Health board members this year are Hill representing Esquimalt where he is an alderman, Fitton representing the Sooke school district, Graham representing the Greater Victoria school district, Ald. Percy Frampton for Victoria, Ald. Les Passmore for Saanich, Ald. N.A. Pimlott for Oak Bay, Ald. Dave Hill for Central Saanich, Ald. Nell Horth for North Saanich, Ald. W. W. Gardner for Sidney and Trustee Gordon Ewan for the Saanich Peninsula School District.

CHABOT SLAPS BACK

"I'm just not going to take these attacks from the speaker," Chabot said. "I'll attack him right back. If he wants to go running off to the press with these accusations he can expect something back for it."

Chabot said evidence of Dowding's political partisanship was displayed on the night of the federal election, when Dowding was interviewed on television at the campaign headquarters of the New Democratic Party. Dowding is the NDP MLA for Burnaby-Edmonds.

Asked if he had made any kind of apology to Dowding for releasing the report, Chabot said: "I have no reason to apologize to the speaker of the house." He added that a member of his subcommittee, Liberal leader David Anderson, had released to the press in December some of the details of the material the subcommittee was studying and so he, Chabot, was not "stepping on anyone's toes" by releasing the report.

Dowding said Tuesday it was intended that the members of all the commitees he appointed would meet with the clerks of the house to prepare a list of recommendations which would be submitted to the house for discussion and action. This report of recommendations would then be considered by a special house committee, he said, at which time it would become public information.

"The rules of the house have been infringed upon by the release of this report," Dowding said.

Dowding said it would be possible for him to understand a newly-elected MLA not knowing the rules of the house and releasing a report prematurely by mistake, but that Chabot should have known better.

"I find it puzzling to see this report being discussed when it is obviously an interim document," the Speaker said.

He added that the members of the legislative committees had been instructed fully at the time of their appointments that the information they were gathering was to be discussed by the house before it was to go to the press as public information.

Dowding said he had spoken to Chabot about the matter Monday. Chabot had told him, Dowding said, that he had released the information because he understood another member of the committee was also releasing information.

"It's not much of an excuse," Dowding said, adding that any action which may be taken against Chabot is up to the house to decide.

He also said he doesn't consider the release of the report to be an extremely important matter and probably will not have much effect on the final recommendations to go before the house.

But he said "it is a mistake I won't let happen again." He has sent letters to the members of the sub-committees, advising them that the information they are gathering is to be considered by the house first before being released.

"It is an insult to the house to have someone running around leaking information to the press from a report which has not been finalized yet," Dowding said.

He also said the breach of privilege which occurred extends to the newspapers and other media organizations which published the recommendations of Chabot's subcommittee last week.

$30,654 GRANT FOR SCHOOLS

A Local Initiatives Program grant of $30,654 has been awarded Greater Victoria school board for the construction of adventure playgrounds, school site improvements and playground improvements.

The grant will allow the board to hire 16 additional employees from Jan. 15 to May 31.

Trustee Walter Donald said the board learned of the federal grant Tuesday and hopes to be able to go ahead and hire the men through Manpower without interference from the striking maintenance employees.

"The contract provides for the hiring of temporary employees who do not have to join the union (Canadian Union of Public Employees, local 382)," Donald said.

Donald added that the board hopes to get starte on the building projects as soon as possible.

Citizen 'Rap Sessions' Planned by Saanich

Saanich planners are ready to raise issues for discussion about the future of northern Gordon Head when they launch a series of "rap sessions" with citizens Jan. 24-31.

Informal discussion with citizens was planned to enable the municipality to consider the views, hopes and aspirations of Gordon Head residents before introducing an official community plan for the area.

Planner Kees van Westen said if important issues are not raised by the people themselves, the planning department's representatives will bring them up.

They will include such questions as whether a commercial centre is desired, its location and alternatives; should there be areas of higher density than in existing single family residential zones and is the San Juan-Tyndall periphery a good area; should the two remaining large parcels of waterfrontage (about 40 acres) become parkland?

Whether the Saanich section of Victoria's marine drive should be constructed through these two tracts of waterfront land, which are now isolated from Cordova Bay Road and Arbutus, and whether the north Gordon Head area should support a mixture of income groups are other questions.

Van Westen pointed out that the whole area is within the current sewer enterprise program and noted that more than half is undeveloped land where some 6,000 persons reside.

Within six years it is expected by planners that 12,000 people will live in the district bounded by Feltham, Gordon Head Road, Cormorant Point, Mt. Douglas Park, Glendenning and Mt. Douglas Cross Road.

At a pre-election meeting in December, strong community opposition to the suggestion of commercial and multiple dwelling zoning was voiced by certain residents of the area.

Van Westen said the department was not soliciting briefs or formal presentations, but these would be accepted if residents choose to make use of them.

"We just want to hear the feelings of citizens, on any level of discussion — it might be potholes in their street," the planner said.

Municipal planner Tom Loney will lead the program of discussions in which four other members of his department will take part.

They will make use of a comprehensive set of maps showing an inventory of the district as it exists — with roads, transit routes, parks, institutions, possible historic sites, zoning, subdivision districts, traffic volumes, farms, churches, commercial areas, underground services and housing according to age.

With these will be a large aerial photo and a relief model of the municipality.

Meetings are set for Jan. 24 and 26 from 2 to 4.30 p.m. in Lambrick Park recreation centre board room, and Jan. 29 and 31 at the same time in the board room, plus 8 to 10 p.m. in the auditorium and club room.

The majority conciliation board report, signed by chairman Owen Shime and union nominee William Walsh, recommended wage increases of 65 cents-an-hour over a contract ending Dec. 31, 1974.

The union demands have been for 80 cents-an-hour over a 21-month contract, while the last government proposal offered about 50 cents-an-hour in a 36-month agreement.

The average wage for postal clerks now is $2.69, while letter carriers earn $3.54.

In the Toronto walkout today more than 1,600 employees were off the job. No mail was moving into or out of the two-million population Metro area or in the city core, though deliveries in and between the five Metro boroughs were continued.

Tuesday evening union leaders said the strike at the main Toronto post office was a "four hour protest" over the lag in negotiations. Today, however, the thinking had apparently changed and there was no telling how long te walkout would continue.

"I would be skeptical of trying to convince Judge William Ostler that it was binding on him," he said.

Only if the question is appealed and decided in a higher court would it establish a precedent, said Hutchison.

U.K. Faces Long-Term Controls

Times News Services

LONDON — British Prime Minister Edward Heath told Britons today his government will continue controls on pay, prices, dividends and rents for at least the next three years.

In a television news conference, Heath said he was extending the current freeze on wages until March 31 and on prices until the end of April in order to allow his government time to bring in legislation setting up a price commission and pay board to control the long-term clamps.

Officials said the government hopes in "Phase III" to rely on voluntary agreement with industry and the labor unions instead of the mandatory curbs of the first two stages.

But the unions aleady have rejected any legally enforceable restrictions on pay talks and have said they will not co-operate in the government's "Phase II" program.

Even as the government announced its latest anti-inflation blueprint, unions representing 52,000 workers at the British Ford Motor Company's automotive plant near London put in a demand for pay hikes estimated at about 40 per cent — far in excess of the government's ceiling.

When the new proposal receive parliamentary approval, wage and salary increases will be held to a flat rate of $2.35 a week plus a further four per cent of the over-all wage bill for the working previous year.

Manufacturers' prices will be allowed to increase only enough to offset rises in the cost of raw materials.

Any increase in manufacturers' prices which enlarges profit margins will be disallowed.

The government announced its plans in a 19-page white paper which emphasized that the flat-rate increase in weekly wages will be greatest benefit to the lower-paid.

It would give them a better deal than a single percentage limit. Overtime pay will not be covered by the controls.

The government hopes the bill to establish the commission will be enacted by March 31 but the present standstill will continue until the end of April to take account of the forthcoming introduction of value-added tax, a levy applied at each stage in the production of goods.

Full details of the new price controls will be revealed when the bill is debated in Parliament but the principle will be the same as that governing increases under the current freeze — profit margins will not be allowed to grow.

SUPER-TOXIC PESTICIDE DISCOVERED

WASHINGTON (CP) — A chemist reported Tuesday that heptachlor, a widely-used agricultural pesticide, changes in sunlight to a stable substance that is 22 times more toxic than the original compound.

Dr. Charles Hammer of Georgetown University reported finding the first proof of this in housefly, mice and other animal tests.

He said the newly uncovered substance is "considerably more toxic than DDT," which has already been banned from the market in the United States as potentially hazardous to man and animals.

Close Ties Stressed With Olympia

BARRETT
... a new era

OLYMPIA (AP) — Often joking, sometimes grimly serious, Premier Dave Barrett told Washington legislators Tuesday the state and province face so many joint problems a casual friendship is not enough.

"We have to be able to share feelings and problems," he said. "We may have to, as friends, tell each other when he have bad breath.

"We are your neighbors and your friends. Sometimes it will be necessary for you to tell us we need to brush our teeth. This is the beginning of a new relationship between separate and distinct jurisdictions of the great northwest."

The address capped a two-day visit by Barrett and members of his cabinet. The delegation met Gov. Dan Evans, legislators and top state officials.

Barrett told legislators he is "delighted" with Evans' attitude toward conservation and by the state's concern for its citizens.

Although the B.C. delegation reached no agreements with Washington on touchy oil spill and tanker matters, Barrett said close working ties are necessary.

"We must continue to discuss the problems of the environment — those which know no boundaries," he said. "When you pollute the air or we poltute the water, we're both affected."

Both state and province have to grapple with the problems of growth, he said, echoing a sentiment expressed by Evans in his State of the State address last week.

"We have a common, burgeoning problem caused by affluence," Barrett said. "There are great dangers around the growth syndrome. We must be very careful with how we handle growth. We should find answers and reach our common destiny together."

He suggested "common husbanding of resources."

"Politics is good," he said. "Infighting and clashes of ideas is absolutely essential."

Barrett said he will appoint a liaison committee of legislators in Victoria to work with Olympia. He also issued an invitation for Washington legislators to visit the B.C. legislature.

"It's absolutely necessary that we learn to know each other as human beings and not just politicians," he said.

Thieu Prepares for Peace

Times News Services

SAIGON — South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu spent seven-and-a-half hours in consultation with his national security council today, apparently discussing how to protect the territory and people the Saigon government now controls once a cease-fire starts.

Asian diplomatic sources said today they believe a ceasefire is imminent.

They anticipate that President Nixon, in his inaugural address Saturday, will propose post-war rehabilitation of the economies of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos through continuing economic and military assistance.

In Washington, there is also some expectation that the Soviet Union, Communist China and other major powers will join the United States in guaranteeing the cease-fire.

South Vietnamese officials said Thieu's lengthy conference with his key advisers also dealt with modifications of the protocols to the agreement that specify how it will be carried out, such as the size of the international force to supervise the cease-fire and the method by which prisoners of war will be freed.

One of Thieu's closest aides, Lt. Gen. Vinh Loc, may fly to Paris Thursday to join U.S. technical experts who are drawing up the protocols at daily meetings with North Vietnamese representatives.

It is believed Thieu has little choice but to join in signing the final treaty because of the threat of a cutoff of U.S. military and economic aid.

South Vietnamese sources said Tuesday that Nixon and Thieu planned to declare a unilateral cease-fire Friday on the eve of Nixon's inauguration. Sources said today that Nixon and Thieu still plan to declare a cease-fire but the day may be pushed back.

Despite reports that a cease-fire may be near, United States B-52s and other warplanes pounded North Vietnamese positions in South Vietnam Tuesday and today with the heaviest strikes in more than a month, the U.S. command announced.

With the bombing halted over all of North Vietnam, more American strikes were being carried out across South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, U.S. officials said.

And stepped-up U.S. shipments of aircraft and other weaponry to Saigon since October have achieved "Vietnamization" goals almost 18 months ahead of original schedules.

"Vietnamization . . . is virtually completed," Defence Secretary Melvin Laird told congress Jan. 8. He did not discuss the stepped-up shipments.

By Pentagon accounts, however, roughly 600 aircraft (including 300 helicopters), 70 M-48 tanks and roughly a dozen long-range 175 mm. cannons have been given to Saigon since Henry Kissinger, the president's chief negotiator, announced that peace was at hand on Oct. 26.

Anti-war forces in the House of Representatives said today they will introduce a bill to cut off funds for the Vietnam war — just in case the current round of peace talks fail to produce settlement.

"Obviously the steam would go out of it if a peace agreement is announced," Rep. Lee Hamilton Dem. Ind. said, "and I would like to see that happen."

Hamilton said the bill will be introduced Thursday despite Nixon's hopes that the current Paris talks will lead to a settlement "in the event the peace talks don't succeed and the war continues."

Joint Action on Problems

Moves by Premier Barrett and Governor Evans of Washington to establish personal communication on various problems of common interest provide a good example of neighborly co-operation. Such topics as salmon fisheries, tourist promotion, the proposed Skagit Valley flooding and the Point Roberts enclave require understanding and an exchange of information from time to time. It is a good idea to have familiar machinery set up for "little summit" meetings in order to provide full discussion.

Mr. Barrett is particularly concerned about oil pollution off our shores and apparently Governor Evans shares his feelings, but to a smaller degree. It is interesting that the Washington leader should believe that the Cherry Point plant and other American refineries in the Northwest will be little affected by the expected heavy traffic of tankers from the Alaska oil fields.

The threat of catastrophic oil spills off the B.C. coast or in Juan de Fuca Strait from this traffic has been a major issue in this province ever since the routing of the northern oil by sea was first proposed. But Governor Evans is of the opinion that since the refineries are working at near capacity already, there can be little net addition to the number of tankers they accommodate. In that case, the Alaska traffic would proceed south to other ports.

Much of the local worry has been occasioned by the thought of super-tankers making their way through fog in the Strait or in Puget Sound. But British Columbia has a further problem in the possibility of oil spills off the west coast, even some distance out, which could inflict serious damage on our shores. That is still something against which protection should be organized, and co-operation from the state of Washington will be of value to both areas.

While of course both the state and the province are bound in various ways by federal policies, there is much that can be done at this lower level. Certainly these meetings are a means by which British Columbia can co-operate with our neighbor without in any way losing freedom of action or sovereignty. Both government leaders are to be congratulated on their promising initiative.

Back on the Police Beat

The federal government was right in accepting an invitation to serve on an international observer team to supervise the peace in Vietnam if and when that peace arrives. But it was equally right in insisting that certain conditions be fulfilled in order to make the peace-keeping role an effective one.

The collapse of the original Vietnam observer commission, consisting of Canada, India and Poland, was due largely to failure of the warring countries to permit it to operate as it should have. There were internal dissensions as well, since it was difficult to co-operate with the Communist delegation in some instances. External Affairs Minister Sharp hopes to avoid these basic difficulties in any new observer group by ensuring that all parties will recognize the body and assist it to function as intended.

He also emphasizes that there must be some international authority to which the observer team can report, so that its complaints or recommendations will get action. And, of course, it will be essential that a "workable truce" shall have been established in order that outbreaks of fighting do not occur. Hungary, Poland and Indonesia have been proposed as the other members of the supervisory commission.

These guarantees and safeguards are necessary, for there should be no chance of Canadian peace forces being caught up in a renewed outbreak of the fighting once a truce has been declared. In view of the situation that will remain once the United States forces have been completely removed, that is not an idle threat. But with proper guarantees beforehand, Canada may be able to render a necessary service in Vietnam. Our experience and good record in connection with earlier United Nations assignments should prove valuable.

Encouragingly Fast Action

Provincial Minister Robert Williams, whose portfolios cover the departments of lands, forests and water resources as well as recreation and conservation, has promised early action to halt bad practices in commercial woods operations. His announcement follows a short tour of some regions in which conservationists have expressed dissatisfaction with logging procedures that have clogged streams with debris — and the minister agrees that the protests are well founded.

Violation by the forest industry of regulations covering the protection of streams and fish runs is inexcusable and should have been checked much sooner. It is unfortunate that abuses have been allowed to continue to the public detriment, but gratifying that the minister has indicated early correction, along with staff enlargements required to carry out the policy.

C. L. SULZBERGER

Comparisons Must Be Made

PARIS — It may prove historically correct that the Communist Tet offensive of 1968, a military failure, was indeed North Vietnam's first real victory over the United States in the Indochina war, and that the American bombing attack on Hanoi and Haiphong in December, 1972, despite demonstrable Communist losses in striking power, provided them a second major triumph.

Neither conjectural assessment can yet be regarded as conclusive. Yet, in both cases, it is apparent that purely material aspects of strategic actions turned out to be secondary in importance to psychological and political aspects.

The Tet offensive was disastrous to the Communists from a battlefield viewpoint. After their initial successes and repression in the temporarily captured South Vietnamese city of Hue, the Communist forces were defeated with immense casualties. Saigon's army and regime proved they could fight.

Johnson Exit

But incalculable damage done in the crucial sector of U.S. public opinion and criticism of President Lyndon Johnson set in motion an intense reaction that favored Hanoi, starting with intellectuals and university students. This ended with Johnson's political retirement.

President Nixon subsequently initiated U.S. bombing of the northern centers after an original tough response to Hanoi's March, 1972, offensive and also after attacks on Communist positions in Cambodia and Laos which had kept alive the savage opposition of those who detested the war's impact on America itself.

The bombers struck following a breakdown in Paris peace negotiations and during a lapse in Congressional sessions. But, just as the defeat of Communist forces in 1968 was politically counterproductive, the December, 1972 air raids also were politically counterproductive.

The American and West European press filled swiftly with stories about "murder bombing" and "terror bombing." Since most humans laudably favor any underdog, within little time emotional adversaries began to compare Nixon with Hitler and the raids with Nazi slaughterhouses.

Hanoi's official figures, according to the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris, say that 1,318 people were killed in Hanoi by the December B-52 raids. Haiphong municipal authorities, according to Agence France-Presse, say 305 were killed in Haiphong. Blood cannot be measured; nor can the exquisite and precious gift of life.

Nevertheless, certain comparisons must be made. Hanoi's official statistic of 1,623 persons killed in the "murder bombings" of December compares with Saigon's official statistic of 5,800 persons slaughtered, principally by throat-cutting or burial alive, during the Communist occupation of the South Vietnamese city of Hue in February, 1968.

LYNDON JOHNSON
... intense reaction

The second point in this coldly dreadful numbers game is in terms of comparision with other bombardments. During World War II, 135,000 deaths were caused by allied bombing of Dresden on February 14 and 16, 1945, and 83,600 in Tokyo on one firebomb raid in March, 1945. This does not mention the ghastly results of atomic attacks on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

There are certain dismal deductions to be made. U.S. raids on North Vietnam obviously avoided use of those incendiary bombs which so easily destroy Asiatic cities like Tokyo — or Hanoi. Secondly, although the enormous tonnage dropped by B-52's blatantly exceeded World War II airloads, they produced relatively lesser results. They certainly weren't aimed at North Vietnam's vulnerable dikes.

These subjects have not been adequately discussed in the angry Western press. One has enormous distaste for quantifying pain. Yet the fact remains that, in contrast with spirited criticism published in democratic organs, the Soviet and Chinese expressions have seemed relatively restrained.

All this having been said, there isn't the slightest doubt that the United States is eager to end this unfortunate war, so tarnishing to its image. Until the last few days it seemed doomed to the distasteful choice between accepting an unhappy compromise — even less palatable than that hoped for before the bombing started — or an even unhappier fallback strategy.

To Confuse Agreements

The North Vietnamese have employed all kinds of devices such as mistranslations of the word "mien" or "zone" of Vietnam to obfuscate even the implication of a South Vietnamese authority in Saigon, in order to confuse any agreement.

They have guilefully used U.S. prisoners to blackmail Washington into exercising pressure on Saigon — preferring to press for a United States role of open hostility to President Thieu rather than a mere U.S. withdrawal.

At this moment, the American people seem stuck with an awful choice of conditions. They possess immense military power to impose their national policy; and they possess little political will or moral desire to use this power.

MAURICE WESTERN

Questions by a Veteran MP

OTTAWA — So brilliantly entertaining was John Diefenbaker's contribution to the debate on the Address that almost no attention was paid to his positive proposals which appear to have gone virtually unnoted in reports on television and in most newspapers.

This is unfortunate because the former Prime Minister dealt, albeit briefly, with important matters. Two of them, inviting immediate comment, will be considered here.

Mr. Diefenbaker came out flatly and unequivocally for wage-price controls. He did not develop an economic case and his reputation certainly does not rest on his mastery of economics. But the declaration is significant for another reason.

One of the current arguments against controls is that, whatever the economic case for them, they would be unacceptable to the Canadian people. If Mr. Diefenbaker believed that, as some in his own party apparently do, he could not advocate them. Evidently his reading of public opinion is different. No one can lightly dismiss such a reading by a man who has held the highest office within the gift of the people and has survived 33 years in the House of Commons.

Representation

Mr. Diefenbaker also called the attention of the House to the plight of Manitoba and Saskatchewan in the matter of representation. This received wider notice because he followed through on the next day with questions addressed to the Prime Minister. Other inadequacies in the present arrangements for representation were dealt with in excellent contributions by John Reid, Liberal member for Kenora-Rainy River and Wally Firth, newly elected NDP member for the North-West Territories.

The prospect is that Manitoba and Saskatchewan will each lose a member in the present redistribution. In the postwar attrition, the east-central prairies will have given up a dozen members in slightly more than two decades; a serious matter for an area disadvantaged in other respects. This might be avoided without great injustice to other provinces in various ways including a slight increase in House membership for which, as Mr. Diefenbaker noted, there is a precedent in consequence of representations made at the time by the late James G. Gardiner.

On Thursday, the former Prime Minister inquired about the possibility of an amendment to the British North America Act to avert these losses. Mr. Trudeau said that some thought was being given to the matter and promised more. He mentioned two difficulties which do not seem to be alike in character.

First, such an amendment would have to be retroactive since redistribution is already in progress. Obviously, this would be an untidy business involving some waste. But two points deserve consideration; the basic importance of representation in the House of Commons and the fact that what is now done will, in the ordinary course, be irrevocable for 10 years, affecting an unknown number of elections.

Further, the redistribution now being effected cannot be just. Two provinces enjoy, and have long enjoyed, absolute protection; another will be protected following this round, Manitoba and Saskatchewan enjoy no effective protection at all.

There are now two constitutional safeguards. One ensures a province against a loss exceeding 15 per cent in one redistribution. This is of no help in present circumstances to Manitoba and Saskatchewan; nor, if trends continue, would it be any help next time.

JOHN DIEFENBAKER
... two points

The second, dating from 1915, stipulates that no province may have fewer members than it has Senators. This now protects New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. It will be of no use to Manitoba and Saskatchewan until each is reduced to six seats.

This provision is the more objectionable because Senate representation, as the joint constitutional committee recognized, has no relation to population. New Brunswick, (population 634,557) has 10 Senate seats while Manitoba (population 988,247) has six. Nova Scotia (population 788,960) has 10 Senate seats while Saskatchewan (population 926,247) has six. Prince Edward Island has approximately one Senator for 28,000 inhabitants. On such a basis, if the Senate did mirror population, Manitoba would have 35 and Saskatchewan 33.

The Prime Minister mentioned another difficulty. His point, however, is obscure and it is possible that he spoke without due consideration as may easily happen in the exchanges of Question Period.

Hansard recorded him as follows. "I do know that this is an important problem for many provinces of Canada. It does involve an amendment to the British North America Act, and that is no easy undertaking."

The last six words are puzzling. The apparent implication is that the Government could proceed only by agreement with the provinces. It is often very difficult to secure such agreement as was shown by the rejection of the Fulton-Favreau formula and later of the Victoria Charter.

But this is a matter affecting the House of Commons. In such matters there has never been a requirement for agreement or even consultation.

Historical Summary

Excellent evidence on this point was provided by the Pearson Government when it caused to be published, by authority of the late Mr. Favreau in 1965, a background booklet entitled The Amendment of the Constitution of Canada. This contains a valuable historical summary, listing successive amendments to the British North American Act.

From this, it is quite plain that provincial consent has never been deemed essential for amendments touching representation. It was not required when membership of the House was enlarged by the entry of a new province (Newfoundland in 1949 being the latest case). It was not even required when the Senate was enlarged, although the provinces are supposed to have a special interest in that body. It was not required when redistribution was postponed, although one province protested on that occasion.

It is most difficult to see why there should be such a limitation on the freedom of the central government when the provinces constantly alter their own representational arrangements without the slightest reference to Ottawa. Mr. Trudeau has not been noted for unilateral derogations from the federal power. While the Government at the moment is certainly inclined to consult more with the provinces in some matters than in the recent past, it seems unlikely that it now regards parliamentary representation as a proper subject for negotiation with provincial governments.

The probability is, therefore, that Mr. Trudeau, by a somewhat unfortunate choice of words, left an impression other than that which he intended to convey. Without question there are practical difficulties to be surmounted but a requirement of provincial consent is certainly not one of them.

Housing Problem

Re: Your news item of January 10, "Fast Start on Housing Push". Alderman A. O. Hood is quoted as follows:

"..... there will be no massive concentrations of low-income homes as typified by Blanshard Court." A heartening statement, but further on in the same interview Col. Hood expresses his desire to "... help meet the pressing need for apartment accommodation for young families with children, and also for single-parent families."

The real need for such families described is for single-family dwellings or, if not available, side-by-side duplexes. I realize that apartment buildings are desirable from a city-planning point of view, and I don't minimize the problem as viewed by Col. Hood — however, apartment-living, as such, is neither desirable nor adequate for these young families.

It is my hope that City Hall can come up with a satisfactory solution, and I am more than willing to assist in any way possible in this area.

If Mr. Hood wishes to meet with local "potential user groups" such as "developers, property managers and contractors" — with a view to finding and activating a solution, I suggest he add "tenant representatives" to his list of "potential user groups". The omission on Mr. Hood's part was an oversight, I'm sure.—J. Nelson, Director, Victoria Rental Aid Service.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of Jan. 17, 1913:

LONDON — The story about Miss Marjorie Watson, London's Venus de Milo, who has something on Miss Scheel, of Brooklyn, has led to the revelation that Britain is teeming with Venuses. The newspaper which boomed Miss Watson, a dressmaker's model, is receiving claims from many women, who claim ability to show proportions still more like the Venus de Milo. A girl rumored to belong to "one of the best known families in Scotland" is said to claim that her height, head, neck, bust, waist, hips, arms and thighs are identical with measurements of the famous statue.

Nova Scotians Blinded By Industrial Visions?

By NICK FILLMORE
Last Post

At the mid-November press conference announcing a new $223-million oil refinery at Mulgrave on the Canso Strait, Nova Scotia Premier Gerald Regan cheerfully turned to New York promoter John Shaheen and asked him to give the press some description of what the strait might look like in 15 years.

"Well, have you ever seen the strip running along from New York to Pittsburgh and that area, or the development from Dallas to Fort Worth?" Shaheen said to the gathering, his tone of voice suggesting that the streets in such cities were paved with gold.

"The Canso area offers a potential for development of up to 5,000 petroleum products which could be produced through related industries. It can be just like those areas in the U.S. In 15 years from now, you could see $15 billion of investment in the strait area."

Quite aside from the fact that some Nova Scotians are horrified at the thought of a large chunk of the province being turned into a Dallas-Fort Worth, there are serious questions about whether the petrochemical industry will be stable enough in the foreseeable future to allow for the development of a small, let alone large, petrochemical complex at Canso.

But these questions went unasked as Regan and Shaheen got together to tell the press about their industrial visions.

Nova Scotia taxpayers, who were hit hard and often by the faulty industrial ventures undertaken during the Stanfield-Smith era, appear to be getting off pretty easy this time — provided there are no complications along the way.

British Investment

The bulk of the $223 million investment — $148 million — will be guaranteed by the Export Credit Guarantee Department of the British government. Shaheen Natural Resources Co. of New York will contribute $40 million of the total, and the Nova Scotia government will be called upon to guarantee the remaining $35 million.

The motive for the British government's heavy involvement is a guarantee that a large portion of the equipment used in the plant will be built by and purchased from British companies. This means that only $27 million of the construction cost will be spent in Canada, most of it going for basic materials such as wood and steel, which will be purchased in Nova Scotia.

Nova Scotia could benefit from a section of the draft agreement that says the province will receive 5 per cent of the company's profits after taxes at the beginning of the seventh year of the company's operation. This will continue for a period of 25 years. Both Regan and Shaheen were quick to say this would mean in excess of $1 million a year for Nova Scotia.

But it's difficult to imagine a promoter who has the shrewd reputation of John Shaheen getting into a deal where he would have to turn over more than $25 million to anyone, let alone a province that is usually in the business of giving away money to receive jobs.

NIXON

Jobs. That's what Regan really wants, and the town of Mulgrave, with its fishing industry dead (the Acadia Fisheries Ltd. fish-processing plant closed after a fishermen's strike in 1970), will eagerly take what it can get. The Shaheen refinery is expected to provide about 2,000 short-term jobs over a two-year construction period. This will provide a boost to the currently depressed construction industry in the province, but the jobs will disappear after only a few months' work and then the men in the construction trades will be hunting for new employment.

Highly-Skilled Jobs

Over the long haul, there are expected to be 557 jobs created at the refinery but, according to Shaheen, many of them will require highly skilled technicians and management personnel, and it could be that fewer than 300 Nova Scotians will wind up with long-term employment at the refinery.

The Shaheen refinery, along with the docking terminal the provincial government will build at a cost of $30 million (which it expects to recover in user fees over a 25-year period), will be of little benefit to Nova Scotia's economy, but, according to Regan and Shaheen, what's to come is much more important.

The refinery, the largest in Canada with a production of 200,000 barrels a day, is being established on the Canso Strait, because the area has what is probably the best deep-water natural port along the Atlantic Coast. Like the Gulf Oil refinery across the Strait at Port Hawkesbury, the new refinery will receive giant, 350,000-ton tankers (which no American east-coast port can come near to handling) laden with crude oil from the Middle East and Africa. It will refine the oil into marketable products and export the products to markets outside the Maritime region.

At least two other giant international organizations — one of them the Olympic Refining subsidiary of Aristotle Onassis, the other possibly Gulf Oil or Continental Oil — are interested in negotiating to build another refinery next door to the Shaheen operation. They too would simply refine oil products at Canso and export them to the U.S. market.

The Shaheen firm will comply with all the regulations of the Nova Scotia and Canadian governments regarding pollution, but how well they will handle the disposal of huge amounts of sulphur the plant will produce is open to debate.

The other serious potential pollution problem is the movement of many giant oil tankers entering and leaving Chedabucto Bay. The same week that Premier Regan was announcing the new Canso Strait refinery, the Natural Resources Council of the state of Maine — a 2,500-member conservation group — adopted an eight-point resolution opposing any development of a petroleum complex in Machias, Me., and recommending such a development in Portland only with reservations. A state government task force report had recommended that heavy industry sites be limited to Machias and Portland.

Regarding expansion of petroleum handling facilities anywhere on the Maine coast, the Natural Resources Council urged a moratorium until the legal, financial and technical problems such as those raised by an oil spill off Maine's coast earlier this year are resolved. The group also wants to establish "clear and complete responsibility for oil spills in the Gulf of Maine."

Nova Scotia has no clear approach to development, let alone a plan to limit certain kinds of industries to certain areas. No independent ecology group or citizens' group in Nova Scotia has carried out a thorough investigation to determine how adequate the pollution safeguards are in Nova Scotia. And there has been no assessment of what would happen if there were an oil spill in Chedabucto Bay much larger than that created by the sinking of the Arrow in 1970.

Shaheen should have no trouble obtaining markets because if he has anything going for him it is the important connections he has developed in the United States, Britain and the Middle East.

He has good relations with President Nixon, who told Prime Minister Trudeau at a 1969 White House reception that Shaheen is "the world's greatest salesman." His most important business connections apparently guarantee

REGAN

SMALLWOOD

him a substantial supply of oil from the Middle East, and it may have been because of this that he was made a Commissioner of the U.S. National Petroleum Council.

Despite his important connections, Shaheen has often been portrayed as something of a "promoter-wheeler-dealer" because of the controversial deal (he described it as "the sweetest deal") he made with Joey Smallwood to build a $155-million oil refinery at Come-by-Chance, Nfld. Sources high in the Nova Scotia government suggested recently that Shaheen had a bad image painted of him simply because he was able to get the best of Smallwood.

However, there is something about Shaheen that is reminiscent of another New York businessman who came to Nova Scotia during the 1960s. His name was Jerome Spevack and he too had visions of great things.

He was going to build a heavy water plant at Glace Bay that would be the salvation of Cape Breton.

Quebec Has a Stake In Immigration Curbs

By PETER DESBARATS

National immigration policies are creating a growing sense of uneasiness in Quebec.

The focus of discontent at the moment is the sudden interruption in the flow of French-speaking immigrants to Quebec from the Caribbean island of Haiti.

Starting from an insignificant movement of a few hundred immigrants a year in the mid-sixties, immigration from Haiti to Quebec had reached weekly totals of more than 100 arrivals when the federal government decided on Nov. 3 to prevent visitors from applying for immigrant status after their arrival in Canada.

The decision stemmed, at least in part, from concern in English-speaking Canada about the number of would-be immigrants from the West Indies who were coming to Canada under the old "visitor" provision. Mail to cabinet ministers during the recent election campaign showed that this concern was particularly marked in the Toronto-Hamilton area.

The change of regulations in November received virtually unanimous approval in English-speaking Canada, apart from the small band of demonstrators who gathered outside Parliament last week to protest the new "racist" policy. But in Quebec, the change has created an intense and politically important debate about the future of French-speaking immigration from the West Indies.

The fact that the debate has received extensive media coverage in Quebec for at least the past three weeks, while most English-speaking Canadians remain unaware that it has even started, reveals how effectively one society in Canada is still screened from the other.

In this case, the immunity will be short-lived.

Quebec's Immigration Minister Jean Bienvenue has already felt enough pressure at home to drive him to the door of his new counterpart in Ottawa, Robert Andras, and the special plight of the Haitians in Quebec undoubtedly will be raised in the new Parliament when the government introduces changes in the Immigration Act announced in the throne speech.

The attitude of the average Quebecer toward immigration from Haiti, of course, is far from simple. In the past decade, the Quebec government has had to undertake extensive public education campaigns to overcome Quebecers' traditional suspicion of all immigrants, including those from France and former French colonial possessions.

The issue of color is an added and relatively novel complication in French-speaking Quebec. In Montreal, historically, blacks have almost always been English-speaking and extremely remote from the concerns of French-speaking Montrealers.

It was only in the early sixties that black doctors, teachers, nurses and hospital technicians from Haiti began to appear in Quebec institutions in noticeable numbers. And only in recent years that poor and uneducated people from Haiti have been using the "visitor" provision of Canadian immigration regulations to escape economic and political conditions in their homeland.

Since 1967, about 4,000 Haitians have entered Canada as immigrants. Many more have come in as visitors. A brief submitted to the Quebec government last month by Paul DeJean, a Haitian priest who was expelled from Haiti by the Duvalier regime in 1969 and who arrived in Montreal in 1971, estimated that several thousand had arrived in Canada between June and November last year. DeJean estimated that there are now more than 12,000 Haitians living in Montreal.

Part of DeJean's concern, which has been reported at length in the Montreal daily Le Devoir, has related to exploitation of uneducated Haitian immigrants in Haiti and Quebec and inadequate facilities at Toronto Airport for French-speaking arrivals from Haiti. But the larger issue is the future outlook for Haitian immigration in Quebec.

It is significant that there is at least a lively debate about this in Quebec at the moment, compared with the quiet acceptance in other parts of Canada of the new restrictions on immigration from the Caribbean.

The debate is in the context of 1971 census figures, released last year, showing that the proportion of Canadians who have French as their mother tongue decreased from 28.1 per cent in 1961 to 26.9 per cent in 1971. In the same decade, the proportion of Francophones decreased in every province, including Quebec, with the exception of British Columbia, where there was a minute increase.

With one of the lowest birthrates in Canada, without hope of ever attracting significant numbers of immigrants from France, Quebec has recently become aware of Haiti as a potential source of large-scale Francophone immigration. The Quebec government is now under some pressure to establish an immigration office in Haiti. The only Canadian immigration office in the West Indies is located in Jamaica.

The Haitian debate in Quebec also has taken place in the wake of the arrival of almost 5,000 Asians from Uganda — all of them having arrived at the airport in Montreal but few having stayed in Quebec. As some Quebec newspapers have noted, the English-speaking Asians from Uganda were being airlifted to Canada and assisted generously while French-speaking Haitians were being treated like quasi-criminals by immigration authorities in Toronto before being shipped back to Haiti to face political questions about their unsuccessful attempts to immigrate.

The combination of events has raised at least two pertinent questions in Quebec: Should the taxpayers of Quebec be expected to support a so-called national immigration policy which is distorting the current ratio between the two main language groups in the country, and weakening their political position?

Can Canadian immigration policy be flexible enough to accommodate the needs of Quebec, as in the case of Haiti, when they appear to run counter to requirements in the rest of the country?

A Volcano in the Church

By PAUL HOFMANN
New York Times

ROME — The current best seller in ecclesiastical book stores here is a slim volume by a Spanish Jesuit who teaches at the pontifical Gregorian University and praises Karl Marx as a "prophet."

The author, the Rev. Jose Maria Diez-Alegria, also accuses the Roman Catholic Church of "visceral antisocialism," suggests that the Vatican divest itself of its riches, and describes priestly celibacy as "a factory of madmen."

Diez-Alegria, who teaches sociology at the Church's foremost institution of higher learning, has publicly criticized the conservative Vatican establishment before.

In March, 1970, Diez-Alegria and two other Jesuits of the Gregorian University faculty, in a newspaper interview, denounced the Vatican's opposition to the divorce bill that was then before the Italian parliament as undue meddling in the country's domestic affairs.

Diez-Alegria, who is 61 years old, has long been close to groups of left-wing Roman Catholics in Italy, Spain, West Germany and other countries.

His new book, entitled "Yo Creo en la Esperanza" ("I believe in Hope"), has been published by Desclee Brouwer, in Bilbao, Spain. The publisher cannot send enough copies to Rome; as soon as a new batch arrives, the books are snapped up by eager buyers, mostly priests.

Although the volume is so far available only in Spanish, there is a waiting list for it in at least one bookstore here. An Italian translation is to be published in a few weeks.

Diez-Alegria's book does not carry the imprimatur, the prescribed church authorization for publications concerning faith and morals. The author also did not submit his manuscript to censorship by his order, the Society of Jesus, before having it published.

The Jesuit order has not so far reacted, although its leadership is reliably understood to be worried about the impression that the book will make at the Vatican. The right Rev. Pedro Arrupe, the head of the Jesuit order, who is a Spaniard, and his assistants are known to have read and discussed Diez-Alegria's work.

"Our curia knows that it is sitting on a volcano," a Jesuit scholar said. "Father Diez-Alegria's book is going to scandalize the Vatican even more than Father Kung did." The Rev. Hans Kung is a Swiss theologian who teaches at Tubingen University in West Germany. In recent books, he has questioned papal infallibility and other traditional church doctrines.

Diez-Alegria says he owes much to Marx although he does not subscribe to the materialistic philosophy of Marxism.

"Marx has guided me to rediscover Jesus Christ and the meaning of His message," he writes. And he contends that the Roman Catholic church "as it has existed in history, contains little that is Christian."

Diez-Alegria says that Christianity must not become a political instrument of Marxist socialism, "but neither must it become a political instrument of anticommunism, as it has been."

According to the Jesuit, "Acceptance of the Marxist analysis of history, with its elements regarding the historical meaning of class struggle and the necessary overthrow of private property, of the means of production, is not in any way opposed to faith and to the gospels."

Diez-Alegria adds: "In the present world situation, an increasing number of Christians happen to reach the conviction that they must make common cause with all those who commit themselves to the revolutionary cause of socialism."

Speaking about the Vatican's reputed wealth, Father Diez-Alegria says that no one knows the balance sheet, but referring to estimates that the Holy See has assets of $500 million to $1 billion, the Jesuit remarks that such riches in the hands of the successor to the Apostle Peter, the Fisherman, is "unpleasant and disquieting."

If the Pope reduced his own capital base to, say, $50 million, "he surely would not betray either Christ or Peter," the author observes. The present Pope, Paul VI, is never mentioned by name in the book's 197 pages.

Discussing the teachings about the Pope's primacy and infallibility, the Jesuit scholar remarks that they are "founded on a certain extrapolation from various passages in the New Testament." Extrapolation means inference, and is less than certainty.

In a chapter on priestly celibacy, Diez-Alegria advocates making it voluntary rather than mandatory, as it is now. For priests to whom chastity means heroic effort and ascetic sacrifice, the Jesuit scolar says, "Celibacy for the realm of God becomes a factory of madmen, and I advise all those who find themselves caught in this trap to free themselves as soon as possible of it."

Scotch Galore

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

In vino veritas is an aphorism not immediately applicable to the alcoholic wrangling that has broken out between Britain and France over Scotch and its future role in the Common Market. France says that whisky is alcohol. Not so, Britain insists. It is "processed agricultural goods". Canada, as a worried onlooker, is cheering the Brits on.

Under the terms of entry to the Common Market, Britain's distillers are obligated to use Common Market grain, mostly from France, in place of much of the 750,000 tons of grain they now buy from Canada and the United States each year. Britain argues that Common Market grain is too expensive. If they have to put it in Scotch, it should get a special subsidy (under the existing Market farm policy) to keep down the price of whisky in export markets.

But the French want an "alcohol policy" to help them get rid of their surplus wine, and feel that, if Scotch could be included, there soon would be such a policy. The argument has become quite heated, as the opposing factions scarcely pause long enough in their bickering to take a sip of the processed agricultural product that is supposed to bring them to the plane of sweet reason.

But we have the solution. If the distillers would only come over here with their skills, they could still use our excellent Canadian grain. The water — supposedly the secret of good Scotch — could be obtained from our own peat bogs (just think what a distillery at Holland Marsh would do for Torontonians) or chemically adjusted to conform to the formula of bonny Doon. Think of the advantages. Even though the Taylors and the Bronfmans might not like it, real (Canadian) Scotch, as a native product, could underprice rye. It could be a whole new way of living.

Art, Music In School 'Frills'

Art and music are educational 'frills, schools should place more emphasis on the three Rs and teachers are not overpaid . . .

So says "Educational Feedback," a study of community attitudes to education in the Greater Victoria area.

Conducted last fall, the survey is the work of Elizabeth Fisher school vice-principal Michael Marshall, who hopes the results will provide "useful information for educational decision making."

He sent educational questionnaires to 500 homes in Victoria school district, 200 homes in Saanich district and 200 homes in Sooke school district.

He received a 35 per cent response.

Other questions in the survey revealed public support for continued IQ testing, continued use of letter grades to evaluate progress and development of sex education programs.

Solid support was given to the concept of community use of school facilities and small class sizes were judged as crucial to maintaining quality education.

Finally, the survey showed public disagreement with the idea that schools should have the major responsibility in dealing with the drug problem.

Respondents were asked to rate the performance of schools generally, teachers, trustees, students and principals.

Trustees came out with the lowest level of support, while schools, principals, teachers and students were rated in that order from the top.

Those surveyed indicated they would be willing to allocate the greatest share of tax revenues to elementary and secondary schools, with kindergarten and nursery schools falling second and third on the priority list.

Marshall said he has sent copies of his findings to trustees on area school boards but hopes to spend more time doing a more extensive correlation of results at a later date.

He said one of the more interesting aspects of the survey is the different attitudes expressed by various age groups, with people over 60 reacting quite differently from younger groups.

UBC Offers Wilderness Programs

The growing popularity of wilderness camping and hiking is evidenced by the number of courses the University of British Columbia is giving on the subject this year.

All are being held on Vancouver Island.

The UBC Centre for Continuing Education is sponsoring a three-day winter survival course starting Feb. 23 at Strathcona Park.

The course consists of lectures on abnormal low temperatures, first aid, shelter building and other activities such as techniques on crossing frozen lakes and rivers. It includes accommodation, meals and return bus transportation, all for $55.

For $100, CCE offers a course on hiking and camping from July 16 to 21. The course's content will range from identifying, searching for and selecting edible plant life and aquatic life to outdoor first aid.

A two-day survival experience in which small groups will be left in the wilderness with minimal gear will be included.

Somewhat more expensive but more exciting is a two-week west coast survival adventure to start Aug. 13.

It includes a field trip to Escalante Reef, Nuchaltiliz Indian village, Barrier Islands, Esperanza Inlet and Zeballos on the west coast of the island.

The final day will be spent at Strathcona Lodge where the group will evaluate its experiences. The program will involve moderately strenuous activities. The fee is $250.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 37-year-old herion addict was sent to jail for a total of six months on 23 counts of false pretences by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Tuesday.

Herbert James Harris, 2850 Dysart, failed to appear in court Jan. 3 for sentence on Saanich charges of false pretences. While at large, Harris committed a further 14 offences involving bad cheques, to support a two caps-a-day heroin habit.

The man was arrested by detectives Monday while trying to cash a cheque at a motel on Gorge Road West.

Cheques tendered by the accused were either for cash or clothing. Where clothing was obtained, it was returned soon after purchase and exchanged for cash.

Ostler sentenced Harris to one month on the charge of failure to appear in court Jan. 3 and six months on each of the false pretences charges. All sentences are to run concurrently.

Robert James Lee, 3979 Shelbourne, struck a parked car in the early hours of Saturday morning, after taking a customer's car from the parking lot of the station where he worked. Vehicle damage was estimated at $250.

Lee admitted driving the car without permission when interviewed by police the day after the incident. He said he was too "scared" to stay and report the accident at the time.

The man was placed on probation for taking an auto without consent and fined $300 for failure to remain at the scene of an accident.

"We will wipe out last year," Ostler told a 62-year-old who appeared 14 times before the judge in 1972.

Leo Arsenault, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk in Fan Tan Alley on Monday afternoon.

The accused requested a fine, as he wanted to return to work up-Island. He was fined $25.

Montreal Fair Goes $13M Into Red in '72

MONTREAL (CP) — Man and His World lost more than $13 million during 1972, says a financial statement on the fair's operation tabled at Montreal city council.

The statement shows the fair earned $7.02 million in revenues and cost $20.04 million to operate. Part of the deficit will be written off by a $5 million subsidy from the provincial government.

Opening of the fair was delayed a month by a strike by city blue collar workers.

Since it began operation in 1968 the fair has lost $48.5 million. More than $20.5 million of that has been covered by provincial subsidy.

$600,000 Capital Projects Urged

Sewer, waterworks and road projects worth more than $600,000 were recommended to Saanich council Tuesday by its public works committee.

The largest part of the undertaking, $521,000 worth of sewer installations in North Shelbourne-Gordon Head area, would be paid for through funds already provided in the municipal sewer enterprise program.

This work was recommended by municipal engineer Bob Daye and would include development south of Ash Road rather than in the adjoining area to the north and west where soils investigation is under way by a consultant commissioned by Saanich.

Work will be by municipal forces now available due to progress of other works projects.

Daye also recommended waterworks projects valued at $83,650, including $34,500 to replace two-inch water mains on Lindsay and Cumberland for a distance of about five miles. This work would reduce to some five miles the quantity of outdated two-inch mains in Saanich.

The engineer said the municipality ought to proceed on its own with waterworks undertakings, but with the hope that Local Initiative Program assistance applied for last year would be forthcoming from the federal govenrment.

ALTERNATIVES

Daye reported several alternatives were available for road improvement work in 1973, including the reconstruction of Lansdowne between the city boundary and Foul Bay Road to secondary highway standard.

He said application forms for reclassification had been received from the provincial highways department in response to council's request for secondary designation. Provincial participation in such highways covers nearly 50 per cent of the capital cost.

The committee favored reconstruction of the Lansdowne-Richmond intersection at an estimated cost of $35,000 and rebuilding Landowne from Richmond to Foul Bay for $120,000 total. The street bears average daily traffic of 9,100 vehicles with minor congestion in front of Camosun College, Daye said.

THIRD AREA

A third stretch, between the city border near Shelbourne and Richmond would cost $110,000 to reconstruct.

There also is heavy traffic on Quadra, some 14,000 vehicles a day. It is already a secondary highway, committee was told. It was recommended the section between Cook and Tattersal be widened to five lanes at a total cost of $85,000, of which $50,000 would be the municipal share.

On Gorge, the third secondary highway discussed, it was recommended the section between Gorge View and Tillicum be considered for reconstruction, at a cost of $47,000 to Saanich.

CORROSION

Waterworks superintendent Harold Hemus treated the committee to a dry land view of two-inch mains replaced recently. Two eight-foot sections of old pipe were displayed in the committee room to show how corroded they had become in more than 20 years underground.

One piece, taken from Ralph Street, bore five separate clamps which had been applied successively, as leaks developed, to keep the service going. The final leak was a half-inch hole beyond patching.

Inside the pipe was so coated with deposit it was not possible to see through it. The same with the second length, the walls of which were a series of pinhole perforations.

LEAKS

Hemus said last year the waterworks department had between 600 and 700 leaks to fix, of which 270 were caused by construction work on the sewer enterprise program.

The two-inch replacement program would reduce user complaints, provide better flow and cut down on rusty water in the mains, Hemus said.

In other business the committee heard a preliminary report from Daye on tenders for an addition to the municipal garage on McKenzie, which was estimated at about $200,000 and for which $225,000 was authorized.

The lowest of seven bids was $239,300, and the highest was $251,866, Daye reported.

After bids were reviewed by the project architect, a recommendation will be made to council Monday.

Committee members recommended council urge the Capital Regional District board to reconsider the means of apportioning capital costs of a regional solid waste disposal system, with emphasis on the use of assessments for school purposes as a basis for cost sharing, as well as by population.

Aldermen Leslie Passmore and Edith Gunning spoke against the suggested population basis for sharing, indicating some favor of dividing the formula 75 per cent population and 25 per cent assessment.

Ald. William Noel said more time was needed for a decision. He proposed a regional rather than a parochial approach, but Gunning pointed out there was some urgency in getting the issue decided after five years of discussion.

SAANICH SCHEME ACCEPTED

A $71,000 public works project, the first engineering-type project accepted out of eight proposals made by Saanich, has been accepted by the federal Local Initiatives Program.

Consent for beautification, construction of paths and miscellaneous work on Colquitz River waterway project arrived Tuesday, municipal engineer Bob Daye reported to public works committee Tuesday night.

Saanich's share of the undertaking will be $38,000 with the federal government paying $32,000. Acceptance of the project brings to $206,950 the value of undertakings proposed as winter works by Saanich, of which $135,950 are parks projects.

Daye indicated to the committee word of an additional $602,000 worth of works projects was awaited "in the next few days," following a call to Ottawa by Mayor Hugh Curtis.

Curtis had been critical of federal motives in allocating LIP grants and others have noted the lateness of the season.

Daye said it was "a little rough to get approvals on winter works in mid-January." Work could have been under way if approvals had come through in November or December, he said.

"Our winter will be over in February. I guess they don't realize that back east," Ald. Edith Gunning remarked.

TRUDEAU'S MOTHER DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

MONTREAL (CP) — Grace Trudeau, 82, mother of the prime minister, died Tuesday after a lengthy illness. Funeral arrangements were not immediately announced.

In a brief statement issued in Ottawa, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's office said only: "The prime minister's mother died at 8 p.m. in Montreal."

A spokeman for Mr. Trudeau's office said there would not likely be another statement for a few days because Mr. Trudeau views his personal life as a private matter.

Mrs. Trudeau, in poor health or several years, was reported last year to be suffering from a kidney ailment and convulsions. She spent a month in hospital before her death.

Her husband, Charles-Emile Trudeau, died in 1936.

In a 1968 interview, Mr. Trudeau described his parents as two complementary influences in his life.

"My father taught me sports and taught me to like studying and to find the answers and the joy of a mathematical problem and so forth.

"My mother was the other. It was the arts and music and perhaps less discipline and greater tolerance."

Mrs. Trudeau never shared the political limelight with her son. She seldom visited him in Ottawa.

She was unable to attend his wedding in Vancouver in March, 1971, because of her poor health.

The former Grace Elliott, she was born is 1890 to a Loyalist family in the Eastern Townships of Quebec.

In 1915, after a 10-year courtship, she married Charles Emile Trudeau who later became a wealthy Montreal businessman.

Their first child died at birth. There are two sons, the prime minister and Charles, and a daughter, Suzette.

At the age of 61, she toured Paris on the back of her son Pierre's motorcycle but insisted he deposit her at the corner near her hotel so the doorman would not see her.

Shots Fell Refugee

UELZEN (Reuter) — A young East German engineer was fatally wounded by an automatic scatter gun Tuesday night while escaping across the border to West Germany, border officials said today.

The man, aged 26, was hit by 10 metal splinters from the scatter gun, officials said, but managed to drag himself through a wire mesh fence to the West German side. He died in hospital in nearby Dannenberg after a four-hour operation.

Family Planning Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Family planning training in medical schools should be intensified so graduates will feel comfortable talking about the subject, Dr. Harv Haakonson of Victoria said Tuesday.

Speaking to medical students at the University of Toronto, Dr. Haakonson, who is visiting Canada's 16 medical schools to urge the country's future doctors to be concerned about family planning, said "many physicians I have talked to are ill at ease about the subject."

He said "family planning clinics reach young, urban, middle class people but not those in rural or remote areas nor middle-aged housewives."

Doctors are the natural people for people to turn to about family planning and "if a physician wants to keep the image of a kind expert then he must become an expert."

Dr. Haakonson got a $15,721 grant from the federal health and welfare department to try to influence medical students on family planning.

TAX TIPS

This information is supplied by the federal department of national revenue. If further details are required, contact the Victoria District Taxation Office between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at 388-3551. For those living outside the Victoria exchange area, ask the long-distance operator for Zenith 0-4000 and the call will be placed without charge.

Q. I am divorced and am supporting an 18-year-old daughter who is attending university. She resides in my domestic establishment only during vacation time. She had no income during the year. Can I claim the equivalent married exemption even though she does not reside with me during the whole year?

A. Yes. A dependent child who is attending school or university will be considered as having been supported in your self-contained domestic establishment.

Q. In what way has the income limitation changed?

A. Perhaps the simplest way to explain the new rule is to deal with wholly dependent children under 16 years of age first; then with children 16 years of age or over at the end of the year.

If a dependent child is under 16 years of age, the personal exemption allowable is $300 provided the child's net income for the year is not more than $1,000. However, if the child's net income is more than $1,000, but not more than $1,600, the exemption of $300 must be reduced by one-half of the child's net income over $1,000. If a child's net income for the year is greater than $1,600, the child is not qualified as a dependant.

Mazda Pins Future On Rotary Power

TORONTO (CP) — Mazda Motors of Canada Ltd. has set a 1976 target of 100,000 sales of its rotary-engine automobiles in Canada, John W. Browne, director and general manager, said Monday.

He also told a news conference that the days of the piston-powered automobile are numbered in North America.

"The piston engine princple was desgned to power the locomotive. The rotary engine was designed to power an automobile."

Mazda expects to sell 13,000 cars with rotary engines in Canada this year. It is the only company distributing rotary-powered cars in North America, although General Motors Corp. has made a commitment to have the Wankel engine as an option in its 1975-model Vegas.

With refinements in the exhaust system, Browne said, the company will be able to produce cars that will easily meet the emission control standards set for 1975-76.

Alberta's Old Bottles Create New Industries

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta's New universal-depot rebate system for wine, liquor and soft drink containers is designed to keep the province clean, but it also could create new industries and expand existing ones.

The bottle-return legislation went into effect Jan. 2, and Dave Beck, general manager of the company overseeing container collections, says the sudden availability of a new source of cheap glass has stirred glass bead manufacturers in Austria and the United States.

"They're looking at the possibility of setting up plants in southern Alberta," said Beck, who operates Contain-A-Way Ltd. of Calgary.

Glass beads are used to increase the light-reflecting capability of highway warning signs and lane markers.

Beck said representatives from several companies already have visited Alberta to examine possible land sites.

Two sites under consideration are Fort Macleod and Redcliff, where Dominion Glass Co. Ltd. already operates a bottle manufacturing plant.

"We'd probably be able to sell up to 12 million pounds of clear glass a year to them (the Austrian and U.S. companies)," Beck said.

"And we'd get a higher F.O.B. price than Dominion's $15-a-ton offer."

Beck said it isn't economical for Contain-A-Way to sell glass to Dominion at existing rates because the manufacturing firm also requires suppliers to undertake the costly task of removing impurities.

Clear glass collected from more than 120 universal depots in the province now is being dumped at landfill sites, although stucco firms are buying up the colored glass.

Meanwhile, Beck said, tens of thousands of wine and liquor bottles are being returned to the depots, expected to number 160 by month's end. Consumers get a five-cent rebate on each bottle.

Hotels represent the biggest single source of wine and liquor bottles and it is here that an enterprising truck owner could possibly increase his revenue.

Beck said hotels still are undecided whether to deliver their own empties or give the job to truckers, who would pay two cents a bottle in return for pocketing the five-cent rebate.

Contain-A-Way gets a straight fee based on volume, paid both by the Alberta Liquor Control Board and by soft-drink manufacturers through a special trust fund.

Copper Mines' Key: 60 Cents

By AL FORREST
Business Editor

Coast Copper on Northern Vancouver Island and Churchill Copper near Fort Nelson are watching the price of copper but are not likely to reo-open their mines unless the price nears 60 cents per pound.

Current price is 52-53 cents.

Alwin Mining of Vancouver earlier announced it is considering re-opening its mine in Highland Valley because of the price increase — to 52 cents.

Coast Copper president J. H. Salter said the price would have to rise near 60 cents before it would be feasible for his firm to resume production.

Coast Copper closed in Nobember, 1972, after 10 years of production during which it mined 2.8 million tons of ore, producing 157,000 tons of copper concentrates and 580,000 tons of magnetite concentrates for a total value of $44 million.

HIGH COSTS

Salter said low copper prices and high labor costs were the two main reasons for closing the mine, which is at Benson Lake, some 11 miles south of Port Hardy.

"Labor problems were quite severe at the mine," Salter said. "Wages were high and there was a bewildering shortage of workers. It was very strange with all the unemployment in Canada."

He said the mine might be reopened below the 60 cent per pound price for copper but Cominco, which owns 95 per cent of the mine, would have to be certain that the new high price was more than just a temporary level.

"We would want to know it was more than just a flurry, we would have to see some sort of stability in copper prices before we could reopen," Salter said.

Considerable expense would be involved in getting the mine back into production and costs of removing ore from the underground mine are high.

When it closed, the Benson Lake operation was extracting 800 tons of ore per day at a grade of 1.9 per cent copper.

It is fairly high grade, copper but below the 2.33 per cent of the Alwin operation in the Highland Valley, also an underground mine.

LOW GRADE

Most major B.C. mines are open pit operations involving low-grade ore at about .4 per cent copper.

Meanwhile, owners of Churchill Copper were not enthusiastic about the prospects of reopening the mine near Fort Nelson.

"It is a small mine in a high cost area," said president R. E. Hallbauer.

"We wouldn't be interested below 60 cents per pound and I do not believe it will go that high. If it went to 60 cents, of course, we would be interested in resuming production right away. The mine has been kept in a state of readiness."

Churchill Copper opened April 22, 1970, and closed a year later. It was producing ore at the rate of 750 tons per day. Copper grade was 3.13 per cent or higher but transporatation costs are high for the mine, 80 miles west of Fort Nelson.

"Copper was selling about at its present price when we decided to close," Hallbauer said.

ALERT LEVEL

The company, however, would assume a state of alertness if the price goes to 55 cents per pound and would certainly be ready to reopen quickly if the price rises to 60 cents.

Ontario predictions that the price might go as high as 60 cents before year's end were not supported by western mining men interviewed.

"I would be very surprised if it went that high," Hallbauer said. "I don't think it will go much higher than its present level."

A Vancouver spokesman for the British Columbia mining industry said new copper production coming on stream this year could produce a surplus that would hold the price at its present level or lower.

He said B.C. production in 1972 was 500 million pounds of copper worth $218 million. In 1973 production could be expected to be up about 50 per cent to 750 million pounds, with a value of $335 million. The dollar increase is more than 50 per cent due to increased prices for copper.

The major new copper mines coming into full production in 1973 are Gibraltar which mills 30,000 tons of ore per day, Lornex 38,000 tons per day, Bell Copper 10,000 tons, and Similkameen 15,000 tons.

Although world copper consumption is increasing, it may not be enough to deal with this type of increased production, along with other world copper mines opening in response to higher prices.

In the first nine months of 1972, world copper production increased 11 per cent although there were no price spurts to encourage it.

VSE SUSPENDS PROFLEX

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Stock Exchange Tuesday halted trading in the shares of Calgary-based Proflex Ltd., following a 10-day suspension of subsidiary Pelorex Corp. of Buffalo on the New York market.

A spokesman for Gairdner and Co's Calgary Branch, sponsoring broker of Proflex, said he understood Pelorex was suspended because of the recent trading pattern. The stock recently moved up strongly from about $50 to about $100, with latest trading at about $85.

Some 37,000 shares of Proflex were sold Tuesday morning in 15-minute period before trading was halted at the Montreal Exchange.

The VSE ordered a halt in concert with the Montreal move.

Officials of Proflex were not available for comment Tuesday.

Import Value Increased

OTTAWA (CP) — Imports from all countries totalled $1,812 million during November, up from $1,781 million in October and $1,532 million in November, 1971, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

For the 11 months ending last November, total imports were valued at $17,167 million compared with $14,284 million in the comparable 1971 period.

The U.S. continued to be by far the biggest supplier of Canadian imports. The total for November was $1,235 million compared with $1,245 million in October and $1,005 in November, 1971.

Japan continued in second place, supplying imports valued at $124.8 million in November compared with $112.2 million in October and $111 million in November, 1971.

The United Kingdom was in third place with shipments worth $89.2 million in November compared with $89.2 million in October and $92.4 million in November a year ago.

EMPEROR, FAIRBORN DELISTED

Emperor Mines and Fairborn Mines have been delisted by the Vancouver Stock Exchange for failure to comply with requirements of the exchange.

They were both on the interim section of the board.

Meanwhile, Adera Financial Corp. Ltd. was listed on the industrial section today. Capitalization is one million shares of which 580,000 are issued and outstanding.

Canarim Investment Corporation failed to exercise its outstanding option on 400,000 shares of Beaumont Resources at 17.5 cents, the exchange said.

Water Bomber Contract Let

EDMONTON (CP) — Contracts worth an estimated $200,000 have been awarded to two Alberta companies for the services of four forest fire bombers, the government has announced.

The bombers, converted twin-engine B-26 aircraft, will come from Kenting Aviation, a subsidiary of Kenting Ltd. of Calgary and Air-Spray (1967) Ltd. of Edmonton. Each company will provide two bombers along with an observer "bird-dog" aircraft.

Capable of carrying 1,000 gallons of fire smothering retardant each, the squadron of four bombers will operate out of nine air bases.

The Alberta forest service said the 225-mile-per-hour aircraft should increase the effectiveness of the service by attacking and controlling more forest fires while they are still small and manageable.

The B-26's replace a five-plane unit of smaller Aero Commander "snow" bombers which were in operation in the province last year.

Complementing the land bomber operation will be three long-range amphibious Canso water bombers.

In 1972, a total of 739 forest fires were reported in the province.

Control Data Settles IBM Dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — Control Data Corp. and International Business Machines Corp. has announced an agreement on the terms of a settlement of Control Data's 1968 anti-trust suit against IBM and IBM's counerclaims.

The companies said they had executed mutual releases of all pending claims and were filing with the St. Paul, Minn., federal district court a stipulation of dismissal.

The suit had challenged the legality of IBM's activities in the field of large scale computers in the mid 1960s, and IBM's counterclaims challenged Control Data's activities in the same field in the same period.

The agreement provides for IBM to sell its wholly-owned subsidiary, Service Bureau Corp., to Control Data for about $16 million in cash, with a provision that IBM will not engage in the data service business in the United States for six years.

IBM would grant four five-year development and research contracts to Control Data, and a world-wide patent cross-licensing agreement between Control Data and IBM would be extended to June 30, 1978.

Pool Lifeguard Blames Equipment Lack

The death of 10-year-old Ena Chow might have been prevented if proper equipment was available, a former Crystal Pool lifeguard testified Tuesday at an inquest into the girl's death.

The girl died Christmas Day of intensive bronchial pneumonia. For nearly 13 months she had lain comatose following an accident at the Crystal Pool on Quadra. She was taken to Victoria General Hospital where she eventually died.

David Cruise, 22, a lifeguard on duty at the time, told the six-man jury a mechanical resuscitator should have been available so lifeguards would not have to rely on mouth-to-mouth breathing.

"There are no occasions where a person should die by drowning in a swimming pool," said Cruise.

He told Coroner Emond Jorre de St. Jorre there were not enough lifeguards on duty to handle the 375 George Jay school children, one of whom was Ena, on the day of the accident.

The five guards on duty were not adequately trained to handle emergencies at the pool, which had just been opened a few days, said Cruise.

"I felt I was ill-prepared at the time, and I told the head lifeguard, but he told me we would have practises shortly and get by for the next few days," he said.

Pool director Gilbert Young testified that the pool had been "rushed" into opening.

He said mechanical resuscitators had been on order at the time of the accident and were now available at the pool. They are not required by law.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death, attaching no blame to anyone, but made three recommendations:

—There should be at least one lifeguard for every 65 swimmers.

—The best possible lifesaving equipment should be available in the pool area and should be mandatory in all public pools.

—To allow an adequate view of the pool, lifeguard posts should be a minimum of 12 feet high.

Jan. 25 Hearing Set on Nanaimo Port Expansion

NANAIMO — A day-long public meeting will be held here Jan. 25 to air views on a proposed $10 million expansion of Nanaimo port facilities.

The meeting, called jointly by the federal transport and environment departments, is expected to be well attended with both sides on the controversy presenting their case.

City council will back the Nanaimo Harbor Commission proposal.

The commission proposes construction of a major forest products terminal and greatly enlarged facilities for deep-sea ships in the Inner Harbor at the site of the present assembly wharf.

Council decided Monday night to back this expansion proposal, after 10 months of indecision. Their decision must be ratified at a regular council meeting next week.

Others, including Environment Minister Jack Davis, have proposed a site on Northumberland Channel for the new port.

Council, in making Monday's decision, went against the recommendation of its advisory planning commission last year that the port development be rejected in its present form.

However, council agreed that if it wished, the advisory planning commission could present its own brief to the Jan. 25 meeting.

Several government departments will also be represented at the hearing.

The harbor expansion plans include a 145-acre port with berths capable of handling ships up to 60,000 tons, to provide improved transportation facilities for local lumber, pulp and paper products.

Derek Ready to Settle for Unemployment

BOSTON (CP-AP) — Colorful Derek Sanderson begins today as one of hockey's highest-paid players and could end it on the rolls of the unemployed.

Sanderson's lawyer, Bob Woolf, and the officials of the Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association were scheduled to meet this morning in Philadelphia to complete a settlement of Sanderson's contract with the Blazers for $1 million.

Bernard Brown, owner of the Blazers, denied Tuesday that any agreement had been reached, but Woolf said he was to meet with the Blazers today and said an announcement could be made before the day is out.

If the negotiations develop as Woolf envisages, Sanderson will terminate his employment with the Blazers with a whopping $333,333.33 per goal scored with the WHA club.

In the eight games he played with the club, he scored only three goals. His last was against former Bruins' teammate, Gerry Cheevers of Cleveland Crusaders, at Cleveland on November 1.

Sanderson slipped on a piece of paper later in the game, wrenching his back. He hasn't played since although he says he's been ready for several weeks.

Brown, however, has refused him permission to rejoin Philadelphia.

Sanderson has since been relaxing at home in Niagara Falls, Ont., or in more temperate climates of Florida and Jamaica.

The agreement, as reached tentatively between Woolf and the Blazers, would dissolve the $2.65 million contract Sanderson signed last August with the infant WHA.

Making Sanderson one of hockey's highest-paid performers had figured to give the Blazers and the WHA sex appeal and crowd appeal, not to mention the services of one of hockey's best penalty killers of any day.

It hasn't quite worked out. Sanderson hasn't played in two months despite the fact that a back injury has been healed for a month, and the Blazers, like much of the WHA, are having their financial problems, drawing fewer than 4,000 for home game appearances.

Sources close to Sanderson say the self-confessed deadend kid signed a five-year pact with the Blazers, receiving $600,000 in cash with the remainder of the contract to be spread out over a 10-year period.

His final year with the Bruins the penalty-killing ace was said to have received $70,000 and during his five years averaged 24 goals a season despite being used almost exclusively to nullify the opposition's high-scoring lines.

Even if Sanderson had been barred by courts from jumping from the NHL Bruins, he would have been paid by the Blazers.

Since Sanderson's lucrative contract also carried the backing of the WHA, it was widely reported the league wished to see its Philadelphia entry get out from under the obligations.

Provided Sanderson leaves the Blazers, he would belong to the Bruins again should he wish to return to the NHL.

However, it has been reported that the Bruins, defending Stanley Cup champs, aren't anxious to have Sanderson back since they currently own the second best over-all record in NHL and are using several young players.

But if the Bruins don't want him, they should have no trouble making a trade with another team in the league since Sanderson was recognized as the league's best penalty killer.

Canucks Rebound From 4-0 Deficit

Before the National Hockey League season began, Phil Goyette claimed there was no pressure on him to win.

After all, what can you expect for $11 million, a yet-to-be-tested coach and a new franchise already depleted by seven defections to the rival World Hockey Association.

Now Goyette, the untested coach, has to be wondering what his New York Islanders have to do to win a game.

The slump-ridden New Yorkers suffered their 12th straight defeat Tuesday night, 1-0 to Minnesota North Stars, despite holding a territorial advantage through most of the game.

In the only other NHL game, against just four wins in 45 games for the fledgling Islanders who are fast closing on the record for most defeats (53) set by Los Angeles Kings in 1970-71.

In the only other NHL game, Andres Boudrias' three goals helped Vancouver Canucks overcome a four-goal deficit to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 6-4.

The Islanders, who have picked up only 12 points to 32 for seventh-place Vancouver in the East, outshot Minnesota 11-6 and 15-5 in the first and second periods respectively at New York.

They tailed off in the third, testing Gilles Gilbert only three times as the Minnesota goalie posted his second shutout of the season while turning aside 29 shots.

Paul Henderson, Rick Kehoe, Norm Ullman and Ron Ellis sent the Leafs away to their early lead at Vancouver. But the Canucks weren't ready to concede and just kept pouring shots at Toronto's veteran goalie Jacques Plante.

Power-play goals by Dale Tallon and Boudrias made it 4-2 before the second period ended. Boudrias scored again early in the third period before Bobby Schmautz tallied twice, the tying and winning goals, less than two minutes apart to move Vancouver to within four points of Toronto.

The scores gave the scrappy little winger 25 for the season, more than doubling his previous best—12 with Vancouver last year.

The Canucks, held even in shots by Toronto in the first period, took command of the game after Ellis' score 25 seconds into the second period and pummelled Plante with 48 shots.

Consecutive penalties to Leafs' Larry McIntyre and Garry Monahan, when Toronto played two men short for 95 seconds, opened the floodgate for Vancouver.

Leafs survived the two-man disadvantage, but five seconds after McIntyre returned and before Toronto could get the extra man in play Tallon had scored his seventh of the season.

Hockey: Soviet Search Starts in Kindergarten

Charles Boxcraft was in town, had been to Russia, and said: "I'll tell you why the Russians are getting better in hockey, and will get even better than they are now."

A visitor from the East (he sells bulldozers), he produced a folded clipping from a newspaper and the headline said:

"Soviet hockey gets start in kindergarten."

Printed underneath the headline was the following:

"On April 23, in the Sport Palace of the Central Sport Club of the Army (No. 39 Leningrad Prospect), starting at 1330 hours, recruitment will be conducted for the Central Sport Club of the Army's Hockey School for Children and youth. Boys born in the years 1962-1966 will be received (and should bring with them their skates, sticks, and birth certificate). A. Tarasov, A. Firsov and V. Brezhnev are conducting the recruitment."

This announcement was a clip-out from the Soviet-Skii Sport, and must be considered in the light of what Tarasov, the school director, and a former national coach, once said:

"Today, one must speak of scientific search for talented athletes and the art of the educator to spot a future athlete."

So the Russians are starting even younger in their bid to become the hockey capital of the world. And this was before the Team Canada-Team Russia series.

We Should Have Such a Problem

Moscow 11, Owen Sound 4; Sweden 12, B.C. Totems 5; Czechoslovakia 14, Windsor 1; Russia 12, Medicine Hat 3; Moscow Dynamos 9, Orillia 1.

Well, you get the message. Canada did, and generally got bombed too.

Or maybe you caught the TV special from Moscow on the training of young hockey players. These were a few years older than the six-year-old age bracket included in last year's invitation to camp. But the bet is that most of them came from the same school.

What the Russians (and Swedes and Czechs) are trying to prove, and apparently are being successful at it, is that nothing should be left to luck in the development of a world-class hockey player.

At the Sapporo Olympics, one Soviet coach said significantly of Russia's continuing problem:

"Never before have we had so much difficulty in forming an all-star hockey team. We have so many players worthy of a place on it."

These past three weeks or so, the Russians have won several more world-type tournaments — breezing, and have beaten several pro clubs too. Now they have stated they want only to play an NHA All-Star team. The inference is obvious. Ordinary club sides are beneath their dignity. And frankly who can blame them for this view?

Hockey, Military Hand-in-Hand

Sure, it may be said, that this is a captive talent, because in many cases a Soviet army career is the likely reward for continued excellence, a commission for superior talent.

After all, army service is considered mandatory in Russia; and if a youth can play hockey, and play it well, why not? In this way, perhaps he can achieve two goals — fulfil his duty to his country, and at the same time get paid for playing his favorite sport, while all the time remaining an amateur.

It will be further noted, that the club which called for those six-year-old recruits, is also the club which has dominated hockey for the 26 years since the game was introduced on an official basis in the Soviet Union, winning the national title 17 times.

A natural result could be that many grads thus will join the Central Sport Club of the Army. Besides, some might even get to be lieutenants by the time they are 20 years of age — like Tretiak, the Russian Nationals' goalkeeper.

And just what does Tretiak draw down as a lieutenant in the Army?

Assistant Soviet coach Boris Kulagin had the delightful answer when asked the question in Vancouver:

"The same as any other lieutenant," he deadpanned.

Cougars Avoid Homer Traits

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

There has been plenty of opportunity to report the faults and shortcomings of the Victoria Cougars, but their inability to treat hometown supporters suggests a failing of an intangible variety.

Put politely, the Cougars, in only their second season in the Western Canada Junior Hockey League, lack tradition.

More bluntly, they lack pride.

Without that intangible asset, you don't care. You perform and act as if your bed partner is the town's leading labor racketeer.

How else can you explain one of the sorriest home-ice records in the league, second only to the also-struggling Vancouver Nats?

Swift Current is fifth in the Eastern Division, which is where Victoria sits in the West. Talent appears to be on a par, although Swift Current coach Stan Dunn comes up with a slight edge in experience.

Yet the Broncos, on strange ice and in a different time zone, outshot Cougars 43-20. They dealt Cougars their sixth straight home-ice loss.

All that before 3,308 fans — the season's largest turnout at Memorial Arena. The big crowd, padded by a school safety patrol night promotion, did nothing to inspire the Cougars.

The Cougars now have won six and lost 16 of their home games.

It isn't the kind of record that helps create a winning tradition, and both players and management have to share the blame.

The players, with a few exceptions, consistently turn in yo-yo performances, up one game and down the next. They haven't quite arrived at the conclusion that their stake in hockey is far greater than anyone else's in this district.

Management, meaning manager-coach Eric Bishop and assistant Bob Briscoe, also have more at stake than prestige. They agreed, and rightly, to concentrate on players with two and three years of service to offer. They knew the 17 and 18-year-olds would cost them games, and they have.

But there has been greater disappointment with the last-year players.

Their criticism of players has been, invariably, justified.

Bishop and Briscoe agree they must "make do with what we have" but they haven't been able to get that message through to their players.

The Cougars have won only three of 10 games since Mitch Pechet was replaced by a dual coaching partnership. It is was a good idea at the time, Victoria's management must have second thoughts about it now because the players continue to be inconsistent.

Players now are handled in practice by Briscoe and in games by Bishop. From the players there has been a sly inference that they don't know what to expect with the changeover. That's their crutch.

The fact is, the players aren't being honest with themselves.

They didn't perform for Pechet, who extended a "big brother" philosophy and expected only honest effort in return.

Bishop's personality is far more abrasive while Briscoe's is in between. The Cougars haven't responded to their temperments, either.

It could be a continuing problem.

Flin Flon Star Breaks His Leg

Times News Services

Flin Flon Bombers lost the services of high-scoring centre Al Hillier for up to 10 weeks Tuesday when he broke his leg during an exhibition hockey game in Dauphin, Man.

Hillier, third in the Western Canada Junior Hockey League scoring race, has been a key man in Flin Flon's battle in the Eastern Division. Bombers currently are second, seven points behind leading Saskatoon Blades.

The Blades stretched their margin Tuesday night by defeating Medicine Hat Tigers 5-3 in Saskatoon on the two goals by Ralph Klassen and singles by Russ Walker, Bob Bourne and Byron Jackson. Tiger marksmen were Boyd Anderson, Brad Gassoff and Barry Dean.

Karen's Crown Appears Safe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Toller Cranston of Toronto, the world's best free skater in 1972, today opens defence of his Canadian title while Karen Magnussen attempts to extend her lead in the women's section of the figure skating championships.

Cranston, a 23-year-old professional artist, is a heavy favorite to repeat his 1972 win. Today's competition calls for the three compulsory figures in men's action and most experts feel Cranston can take the lead in that event.

He was ninth in the world championship last year after compulsory figures and first in free skating, finishing fifth over-all.

Meanwhile, Miss Magnussen, a 20-year-old from North Vancouver, will skate in the compulsory free skating, a new wrinkle introduced this year.

Figures now count for 40 per cent of a skater's marks, compulsory free skating for 20 per cent and free skating for 40.

Previously, compulsory figures and free skating counted for 50 per cent each.

Miss Magnussen, the 1972 Canadian champion and second place finisher in the world and Olympic competitions, took a commanding lead after Tuesday's compulsory figures.

She was given first place by all seven judges for seven ordinals and 103.5 points.

She said she was disappointed by her marks, but a Canadian Figure Skating Association official said the only way Miss Magnussen could be caught by her opposition was if she didn't show up for the rest of the championship.

In second place was Cathy Lee Irwin, 20, of Toronto while Ruth Hutchinson of Vancouver was third. Miss Hutchinson led Miss Irwin, a stunning blonde, after two figures, but the Toronto skater caught up on the last figure.

In the only championship decided on the first day, Christine McBeth, 13, from White Rock, B.C., and Rob Dick, 17, from Vancouver won the novice pairs.

Miss McBeth, who charmed the crowd with what one professional coach termed "pizazz", and Dick received six first place votes and one second from the seven judges.

Sharon Hallett and Leonard Scharback of Victoria placed 11th in the novice pairs competition with 72 ordinals and 44.5 points.

Always a Place on Program for Anthem

A public outcry, some politics and a little arm-twisting by Madison Square Garden officials assured The Star Spangled Banner of a place on the Olympic Invitational track program in New York Feb. 16.

Meet director Jesse Abramson was quoted Monday as saying his committee had decided to drop the national anthem because some athletes show disrespect for it. Later, he said the committee had agreed only to consider it.

However, Garden management issued a statement Tuesday saying the Garden "always has, and always will have, The Star Spangled Banner rendered before its sporting events."

"We got calls from people from coast to coast . . . from tions . . . congressmen," Abradio stations, television staramson said of the public outcry.

Improved Communication Would Brighten Future

Chalk up one more for our side!

After returning from holidays, we read on Tuesday that resources minister Bob Williams plans to increase the size and budget of the fish and wildlife branch.

Sportsmen in British Columbia have been pressing for this type of action for a number of years, but pleas fell on deaf or indifferent ears in the previous administration.

For too long the branch has hobbled along, unable to do the job as they saw it must be done because of this lack of funds, yet succeeding in a number of objectives despite the handicap.

Another factor in the picture, which according to Williams' statements might now be changed, is the lack of meaningful communication between the branch and the forest service on the matter of environmental protection.

Interdepartmental rivalry in the government can be good when it acts as a goad for better performance in a specific task. All too often in the past, however, it has hampered rather than helped.

If Williams can finally get the forest service functioning in harmony with the fish and wildlife branch, it will be the first step toward establishment of what B.C. desperately needs — an integrated land and resource-use policy.

Under such a policy, our land could be managed for its best possible use — recreation, wildlife, fisheries, mining, agriculture or forestry.

Without this organized effort, with participation by all factions, the future of this province in terms of a "good life" appears rather bleak. After all, our track record to date hasn't been all that impressive.

And, while on the subject of co-operation, how about a little from the federal fisheries department?

Although dedicated individuals working at the field level within the department can't be faulted, the organization as a whole seems to become more bureaucratic each day. Since there are already provisions under the federal Fisheries Act for prosecution of individuals or companies polluting salmon steams, it seems insane that the wanton destruction at Tofino should have gone unnoticed and unpunished.

In addition to improved interdepartmental relations within the provincial government it would be a good idea to beef up the lines of provincial-federal communication.

One example where this type of co-operation has worked to advantage is in the Creston Valley Wildlife Management Area — where Ducks Unlimited (essentially a private organization), the Canadian Wildlife Service and the fish and wildlife branch have combined forces for a worthwhile and farsighted project.

At another level, the forest service and certain timber companies are now working together on recreational facilities.

So, perhaps, there is some hope.

NIBBLES: Among the many lessons we can learn from our neighbors to the south comes word that the U.S. forest service manages wilderness areas under stringent guidelines . . . A policy statement in the current forest service manual states:

"The term 'wilderness resource' has been added to our management concept, and it is not synonymous with recreation resource. It involves management to maintain conditions of solitude, challenge and primitive environment. Number of visitors will be limited to the carrying capacity of the resource. Improvements intended primarily for the comfort and convenience of visitors will not be built. Trails will be kept narrow and so built as to result in minimum disturbance to cover and prevent soil erosion."

Is anyone taking notes?

BOWLER OF WEEK

Ailing Rearguards Picked

MONTREAL (CP) — Two defencemen who missed a substantial proportion of the first half of the National Hockey League's current season with knee injuries, Boston Bruins' Bobby Orr and Brad Park of New York Rangers, have been selected to the East Division's all-stars, it was announced Tuesday.

Orr, who missed 14 games, was the only unanimous selection and received 120 points from the voting members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association in the eight East Division cities. Park, out for 20 games with an injury, polled 43 to earn a berth on the squad which will face the West Division selects in the league's 26th annual game in New York's Madison Square Garden, Jan. 30.

The two other starting defence spots were filled by Guy Lapointe and Serge Savard of Montreal Canadiens. Four other Canadiens, goalie Ken Dryden, centre Jacques Lemaire, leftwinger Frank Mahovlich and right-winger Yvan Cournoyer, were also named to the team.

Voting was based on five points for a first-place choice, three for a second and one for a third.

Following are the voting results for the 12 players named, with vote total in brackets:

Goal—Ken Dryden, Montreal (114); Gilles Villemure, NY Rangers (60). Defence—Bobby Orr, Boston (120); Guy Lapointe, Montreal (63); Brad Park, NY Rangers, (43); Serge Savard, Montreal (40). Centre— Phil Esposito, Boston (95); Jacques Lemaire, Montreal (67). Right wing—Yvan Cournoyer, Montreal (81); Rene Robert, Buffalo (50). Left wing—Richard Martin, Buffalo (94); Frank Mahovlich, Montreal (52).

Boston's Tom Johnson, whose Bruins won the Stanley Cup last year, will coach the team. He is to pick seven more players to complete his roster of two goaltenders and 17 defencemen and forwards.

The West Division team, to be announced Thursday, will be coached by Billy Reay of Chicago Black Hawks.

Dryden, also close to a unanimous choice with 114 points, is a doubtful starter for the game. Canadiens announced Tuesday that the lanky goalie will be out of action for about two weeks because of a back injury.

Cournoyer is another member of the Canadiens who is currently hurt and remains sidelined with an abdominal injury suffered against Minnesota North Stars Jan. 8.

Closest balloting for the all-stars was at defence where the fourth player—Savard—edged Rod Seiling of New York Rangers by only two points. Robert won the second rightwing position by four points over Seiling's teammate, Rod Gilbert.

Robert and Lapointe will be making their first appearances in the annual classic while Mahovlich's participation will be his 14th, second only to former Detroit Red Wings great Gordie Howe who appeared in 22 of the first 24 contests.

Results of the current poll are for participation in the all-star game only and do not count in the vote at the end of the season for the official league all-star teams which are selected from all 16 teams, rather than by division.

City Refuses Nats' Request For Subsidy

Times News Services

A request by the Ottawa Nationals that their season guarantee to the city-owned Civic Centre be reduced to $39,000 from $100,000 has been rejected, Ottawa Mayor Pierre Benoit said Tuesday.

He told a news conference that to comply with the request from Nationals owner Nick Trbovich would amount to a subsidy for the World Hockey Association club and that he wasn't prepared to recommend it to city council.

Club vice-president Doug Michel, who also attended the news conference, told reporters that the club only wanted to be treated like other users of the city rink and pay a guarantee of $1,000 for each of its 39 home dates or 15 per cent of the gate, whichever was the larger.

Michel added however, that Nats had no intention of pulling out of Ottawa.

"As long as the number of fans attending our games is increasing as now, we will stay," he said.

But if the attendance slumped to the 1200 average earlier in the year, the club would have to look for a new home, he said. In the last few games, Nats have drawn more than 3000 fans.

The Nationals had a chance to move into a tie for fourth place Tuesday with Quebec but bowed 5-4 to Les Nordiques and fell four points out of the final playoff position in the Eastern Division.

It was one of four games played Tuesday. All four turned out to be squeakers.

Triumph Ties Totems for Top

Victoria Totems vaulted into a tie for first place with Mount View Hornets by tripping winless Claremont Spartans 48-31 Tuesday in an Inter-High School Boys' Basketball League game at Claremont.

Two other games in the boys' league were postponed because of the maintenance workers' strike in Greater Victoria schools.

In a girls' league game played on the same floor, Claremont snapped a losing streak at three games and chalked up its first victory of the season by trimming Victoria Tigerettes, 38-32.

Carlton Hits Super Level

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Steve Carlton, the Philadelphia Phillies' Cy Young Award winner as the National League's best pitcher last season, signed a contract Tuesday that the Phillies claim makes him the highest-paid pitcher in baseball.

Paul Owens, director of player personnel for the Phillies, refused to disclose exact terms, but said the contract calls for more than the $150,000 reported to have been paid Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals.

Late Penalty Call Saves All Blacks

CORK, Ireland (Reuter) — Fullback Trevor Morris landed a penalty goal to save the New Zealand Rugby Union touring team from defeat Tuesday in their match against Munster.

The game ended in a 3-3 draw, but the Irishmen looked certain to become only the fourth team to beat the touring side when they led 3-0 with only seconds of the match remaining.

Munster had forged ahead in the 50th minute when flyhalf Barry McGann kicked a penalty following an infringement by the New Zealanders 40 yards out.

The All Blacks, who since beating Scotland a month ago have emerged as a powerful points machine by scoring 176 points in seven matches, could not break down the solid Irish defence.

They fought desperately to save the match, and their tremendous pressure was eventually rewarded when Morris kicked the 35-yard penalty goal in the first minutes of injury time.

The Camping Bug

. . . when it strikes, some very costly headaches can result

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

In these mid-winter days of "liquid sunshine," flooded basements and overcoats, it is sometimes enjoyable to think back on those "lazy, hazy, crazy" days of summer and that good old Canadian pastime — camping.

The scenario runs something like this:

Herman Snodgrass, his wife Melissa and their three sons — Walter, Waldo and Wendell — pile into the family station wagon and drive on to the freeway. They are looking for their own private niche in the wilderness, ready and willing to settle down and commune with Mother Nature for a day or two.

The only problem is, Herman and family, if they live anywhere near the Lower Mainland or Vancouver Island, are going to run into a king-sized headache at the very outset of their fabulous holiday in the toolies of British Columbia.

They are going to have to find a place to camp.

Now pitching a tent beside the car may not seem like much of a problem in land-rich British Columbia, Canada's last frontier. But for a city-bound white-collar worker and his city-raised family, not just any spot in the woods will do. The place is going to have to have: (a) running water; (b) reasonably-close restrooms, preferably with indoor toilets; and (c) an acceptable restaurant within a half-hour's drive.

Facilities

There are not that many places in the province where these facilities can be provided to the Snodgrass family. One such place happens to be your average provincial park.

So Herman et al hed out to a convenient provincial park within a day's drive of Vancouver, which is where we will say he lives.

Herman decides to pick on Cultus Lake Provincial Park, just south of Chilliwack on Highway 401. Mrs. Snodgrass wants to push on to Shuswap Lake Provincial Park near Kamloops but Herman is tired after a long day at the office and he eases the wagon into the entrance of Cultus Lake Park.

Herman's heart sinks as he reads the words: "Sorry, park full." But his disappointment at seeing that particular sign is only a fraction of what it would have been had he driven all the way up to Kamloops only to see a similar sign blocking the entrance to the Shuswap Lake Park.

Five will get you ten he would have seen that sign at Shuswap, just as he would have had he driven to Goldstream Provincial Park outside Victoria, Rathtrevor Beach Park near Parksville or Okanagan Lake Park near Penticton.

All these parks are in the "heavy use" category of the provincial parks branch and are likely to stay that way. Figures released recently by the branch show that camping is still on the way up, with out-of-province tourists playing an important role in the statistics of park use.

Luck of Draw

For the thousands of Hermans on the camping trail in the summertime, the sign saying "Sorry, park full" means a search for a nearby privately-owned commercial camping spot, which usually costs more than the government campsite and is a damnsite less attractive to stay in. But when that is all there is left, you take it, and hope for better luck the next day.

"Better luck" usually means turning in off the highway in the middle of the day, before all the best spots in the campsite are taken. It can almost be guaranteed that before dusk, every available place in the popular campsites will be taken, with no room for the Snodgrass family or anyone else.

The "Back to nature" trend has been manifesting itself in B.C. since 1964, say the parks branch statistics, when there was a slight decline from the 1963 figures for campers.

Since that time the popularity of camping has risen from the point where there were 4,800,000 visits to provincial parks in 1965 and a whopping total of 7,840,000 visits in 1972.

The 1972 figure represents an increase of 90,000 visits over 1971, and the greatest part of the increase is attributed to increased numbers of campers staying in provincial parks overnight.

A total of 1,440,000 overnight visits were registered in the past year, 60,000 more than in 1971. A total of 6,400,000 visitors came to the parks in the daytime.

Equipment

As far as types of equipment used by the campers, tents remain the most popular mode of all. Last year 38 per cent of the people who camped in the parks used tents, as opposed to 29 per cent using camper trucks, 16 per cent using trailers and 17 per cent using tent-trailers.

The figures have not changed much since 1971, when tenters accounted for 40 per cent of the campers, camper trucks 28 per cent, trailers 16 per cent and tent-trailers 17 per cent.

The vast majority of the people using the parks come from B.C. Last year it was 59 per cent, in 1971 58 per cent. American visitors are the next largest group, with 22 per cent in 1972 and 24 per cent in 1971, followed by visitors from other provinces in Canada with 19 per cent in 1972 and 18 per cent in 1971.

Popular

The most popular parks people visited were all within a day's drive of the Lower Mainland, with Golden Ears Provincial Park, near Haney, topping the list with 75,000 night visits.

Shuswap Lake park and Cultus Lake park were close with 74,000 and 73,000 respectively and Victoria's Goldstream Park registered 58,000 night visitors.

Pathtrevor Beach park was the Island's favorite camping place with a total of 144,000 day visits and another 48,000 night visits.

For canoe enthusiasts, the waterway circuit in Bowron Lake Park near Quesnel attracted 3,333 people in 1972.

As for Herman Snodgrass and his family, and those of the rest of us who enjoy the occasional trip to the interior for some holiday relaxation, relief from the crowded park conditions is not just around the corner. Although the parks branch is planning development of new parkland on Vancouver Island and in the northern interior, no major expansion of existing facilities is on the books.

Parks like Shuswap Lake park and Goldstream are already "fully developed", says parks branch director Robert Ahrens. That means there just is no more land left on which to put in camping facilities like the running water and nearby toilets requested by the Sondgrasses. The parks are a finished product as they now stand, Ahrens says.

Ahrens said it is preferable to maintain "pockets of naturalness" in an area when a park is developed. When all available land is used for the park, this is a difficult thing to accomplish, he said.

Hard Look

From a park administrator's point of view, the more land available, the better the park, Ahrens said. An example is the Bowron Lake park, where there are 300,000 acres of parkland available. Parks of this "decent" scale allow development according to an over-all plan, he said. The other parks he described as "little utilitarian sites." "You can't really do too much with them."

Ahrens said it may be time to re-examine the role of an agency like his own parks branch in terms of providing in the best possible manner for the people who need the facilities the branch offers.

He said he favors a policy whereby the parks branch would provide facilities for the exclusive use of people who wanted to camp outdoors with tents and similar "primitive" equipment. He said there are still many devotees of camping left in the province — as the statistics point out — and that it is perhaps time to make the people in their camper trucks and trailers go to private industry for their recreation needs.

Ahrens said the parks branch will present the provincial government with this philosophy in the near future for discussion and possible action.

Herman Snodgrass, for one, will be following closely.

GRITS PLAN COAST MEETING

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A western Liberal conference will be held in Vancouver probably sometime in April, Saskatchewan Liberal Leader David Steuart told a press conference here Tuesday.

He said he had met in Ottawa with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, Transportation Minister Jean Marchand and Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Alastair Gillespie.

The prime minister had urged western Liberals to proceed with the planning for a large scale western Liberal conference when he met Steuart. The Saskatchewan leader said the conference would be likely held in Vancouver sometime in April with British Columbia Liberal Leader David Anderson hosting the meetings.

Stewart told reporters he did not believe an anti-French backlash had played much of a role, if any, in the outcome of the Oct. 30 election on the Prairies. He said a major factor was a feeling of alienation in the west, a feeling that they were not "listened to" by the political leaders in Ottawa.

He said the fact that Justice Minister Otto Lang was re-elected in Saskatchewan showed that those prairie Liberals who were prepared to work towards a greater recognition of the west and its problems in Ottawa, were appreciated by the voters. Such MP's from the west were re-elected, he said.

November UIC Pay-Out Rose to $144M

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment benefits paid out in November totalled $144 million, up from $138 million in October, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

The total for November, 1971, was $69 million. This was before a revised unemployment insurance program, with sharply higher benefits, came into effect in 1972.

The November benefits by province, (October figures bracketed:) Newfoundland $5,113,000 ($4,571,000); Prince Edward Island $722,000 ($550,000); Nova Scotia $5,375,000 ($5,156,000); New Brunswick $5,129,000 ($4,702,000); Quebec $44,716,000 ($43,435,000); Ontario $46,917,000 ($46,339,000); Manitoba $4,866,000 ($4,410,000); Saskatchewan $3,461,000 (2,911,000); Alberta $8,129,000, ($7,777,000); British Columbia $19,294,000 ($18,182,000).

New Party Interests Richter

VANCOUVER (CP) — Social Credit house leader Frank Richter says he would be prepared to take part in talks about forming a new party as a united front against the New Democratic Party.

He stressed, however, that he would do so only on a "personal" basis and not as an official Social Credit representative.

"I am perfectly willing to talk to the Liberals or the Conservatives on this thing," the Boundary-Similkameen MLA said in an interview Tuesday.

He was commenting on a proposal by Conservative Leader Derril Warren that such a meeting be held, and on a statement by Liberal MLA Allan Williams of West Vancouver-Howe Sound that demand is growing for establishment of a new "free enterprise" party.

Richter said the philosophies of the Liberals, Conservatives and Socreds "aren't too dissimilar as far as free enterprise is concerned."

"We will have to decide how to get back on the free enterprise system again—and it certainly is not by splitting the free enterprise vote three ways.

"The answer might be a new party with a new leader."

Richter's willingness to consider the issues raised by Williams and Warren is not shared by two other leading Social Credit officials—provincial Social Credit League President George Driediger and women's auxiliary President Agnes Kripps.

"We are officially opposed to any such move," said Driediger, "for the simple reason that the vast majority of free entrprise voters support the Social Credit party.

"We are very confident that if an election were held tomorrow there would be a Social Credit government back in power in B.C., with no gain at all for the Liberals or Conservatives.

Fire Expert Gives No. 400

WATTS . . . fire protection his hobby

Duncan Bureau, Phone 746-6181

DUNCAN — People are the main cause of fires, so the best protection is training in self-protection, according to MacMillan-Bloedel's chief fire protection officer.

Don Watts of Vancouver explained that theory to about 50 people here recently, giving his 400th fire prevention demonstration for Cowichan Valley residents on behalf of the Cowichan Regional Safety Council.

He is responsible for presentation of fire safety demonstrations to MacMillan-Bloedel employees throughout North America, but he said many of his demonstrations are presented because he does it for a hobby.

His show is entertaining as well as informative, and it's anything but boring. Each time he made a point he drove it home with a visual demonstration.

Describing the potential power for destruction of such volatile liquids as gasoline, lighter fluid, nail polish remover and propane, he demonstrated by deliberately igniting minute amounts in a special combustion chamber. Corks were flying, Watts was ducking and he finally came up with a safety helmet.

He stressed the folly of using gasoline as a cleaning fluid.

"Gasoline is made to explode in an internal combustion engine. It is not made to clean with. There are good industrial chemical cleaners that are non-combustible," he pointed out, and these are what the sensible person uses for cleaning.

Humans are creatures of habit. Watts pointed out, and in a fire that shortcoming can cost lives. When one comes home to find his house afire, he said, he still opens the door — often fatally.

"The fire is just waiting for air. Here the person is, standing in front of the door. He breathes in the smoke, it sears his lungs and he dies."

Watts also said most people don't really know how to react to a fire in a hotel or apartment building.

"If you are in the room," he said, "get up and put your hand on the door that leads to the hallway. If it is hot, don't go out there. You won't live.

"If it is not hot put your foot on the door and open it a little. If the air coming in is hot shut the door and don't go out. You won't live in the hall, because it is full of gases. You are safer in the room."

Epidemic Feared

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — A strike by 2,000 garbage collectors entered its fifth day today, and health officials warned of a possible typhoid or viral hepatitis epidemic. The workers are seeking a better social security program, changes in work rules and a bonus for dirty work.

FIRE LOSS UP IN DUNCAN

DUNCAN — Fire loss in Duncan for 1972 jumped to more than $58,000, Fire Chief Vern Jones reported to council Monday evenings.

The increase from $25,150 is due to more "commercial fires," he said.

"I am pleased to report that there were no major outbreak of fires within the city during 1972," Jones said. "Thankfully, there were no deaths through fire — our last was in 1960."

The 25 volunteer firemen put in 900 fire-fighting hours last year. Total practice hours was 1,335 with an 88 per cent attendance by the volunteer firemen.

Dead Man Votes

Housing Fight Heats Up

MAPLE BAY — Residents here plan to get legal advice in an attempt to halt the development of a large housing project on Maple Bay Road.

At a meeting Monday evening 92 people living along the road decided they would determine first what course of action they could legally take to stop the development before meeting with North Cowichan council.

The meeting planned between council and ratepayers Thursday evening has been cancelled.

Instead, another meeting with residents is scheduled at the Maple Bay Elementary School for 8 p.m. Thursday where the lawyer's advice will be heard. All ratepayers' associations within the North Cowichan municipality have been invited.

The controversy came to a head when council in early December approved in principle a land-use contract which will allow Kingsview Properties Ltd. of Vancouver, to construct about 1,500 housing units within a 10-year period on Tzouhalem Mountain. The company plans to have various recreational facilities, green belts and parks in the project.

There was no strong opposition to the proposal at the zoning meeting held prior to the approval of the land-use contract.

Fund Launched for Young

The Greater Victoria Teachers' Association is organizing a fund to support Campbell River high school principal John Young in the continuing battle against his dismissal.

Bob Mitchell, G.V.T.A. president, said the executive is taking the action because a recent board of reference decision to uphold Young's firing sets a precedent which could hurt other B.C. teachers.

"There are so many political implications involved," Mitchell said Tuesday.

"The decision of the board means you can't criticize your employer if you're a teacher and it establishes a master-servant relationship."

Mitchell said the association is organizing a fund among its 1,300 member teachers, asking for voluntary contributions to help support Young during his unemployment.

The principal of Campbell River high school was dismissed last September by the school board on grounds of misconduct.

The three-man board of reference, which heard Young's appeal in November, upheld the dismissal by a two-to-one decision.

Young plans to appeal the board's decision to the B.C. Supreme Court and the B.C. Teachers' Federation has agreed to pay the costs.

Federation president Adam Robertson said the 11-member executive voted unanimously to pay for the appeal.

It is expected that formal notice of the appeal will be filed in Vancouver later this week by Young's lawyer John Laxton.

Mitchell said he was not sure what support Young had among Victoria teachers "since it was a Campbell River story and only now is it a B.C. story."

"Most teachers seem to agree that the judgment was terribly narrow," Mitchell said.

"Two points of reference in the decision were based on cases in 1882 and 1886," Mitchell added.

He quoted a statement which he found most objectionable in the board's judgment:

"John Young had the alternative of accepting the policy of the democratically-elected majority of the (school) board and quietly through the proper channels attempting to change that policy, or he could resign and from outside the administrative hierarchy carry on his fight in public by whatever means he saw fit."

The G.V.T.A. president said his association will press the teachers' federation to seek changes in legislation clearly defining the rights of teachers to engage in public debate on education.

Boy 'Contributed' To Own Death

A coroner's jury has ruled that a nine-year-old Saanich boy was "the main contributor" to his own death, which followed a traffic accident Jan. 3.

Greater Victoria Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said Tuesday the jury ruled Monday night that Paul Beaudry, 3838 Epsom, "by his own negligence was the main contributor to his death by dashing onto the road even though his own view of the intersection was obscured by a refuse truck and a telephone pole."

The boy died Jan. 5 in Royal Jubilee Hospital, never having come out of a coma after he was struck at Epsom and Cedar Hill Cross Road Jan. 3.

The jury said the attention of car driver Mrs. Betty Tupper, 50, of 3120 Millgrove was momentarily diverted from the crosswalk by the truck as it moved north from a stop sign at Epsom.

"We feel this was a natural reaction on her part," the jury said. "Both the truck and the telephone pole obscured her vision of the boy. We feel a defensive driver may have avoided the accident."

The jury recommended that the pole and a tree near it on the boulevard be moved in order to provide better vision for drivers.

Colwood Boy Hit By Car

A six-year-old Colwood boy is in "fairly good" condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital today with head and leg injuries after being struck by a car Tuesday.

RCMP said Dennis Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Olson, 473 Forward, ran into the road and into the path of a car being driven south on Belmont at Prevost by Mrs. Valerie Woloshyn, 220 Kamloops.

The boy was taken to hospital by an ambulance from CFB Esquimalt.

Oil, Gas Price Hike Multi-Million 'Grab'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Conservative Leader Sidney Spivak accused two major oil companies Tuesday of using the United States energy crisis "as an excuse to grab tens of millions of dollars" from Canadians.

Spivak said at a news conference that price increases announced last week by Imperial Oil Ltd. and Shell Canada Ltd. do not appear to be warranted by increased production costs. He called for the increases to be rescinded.

"We all know that the United States is facing a continuing energy shortage," he said. "We now observe that the first real crisis in the United States immediatley spills over in the form of price increases in Canada, where we should enjoy the advantages of an energy surplus."

Spivak estimated that the price increases will produce about $1 million a day in increased revenue to the companies.

Farmers, people who heat their homes with oil, and everyone who drives a car all are being asked to add to these profits, he said.

The opposition leader also called for a federal investigation of pricing policies and an immediate, federal-provincial conference on natural resources export pricing policies.

The two companies decided last week to raise the price of gasoline by one cent a gallon and of heating, diesel and aircraft turbine engine fuel by two cents a gallon.

Lofty Jobs Open

EDMONTON (CP) — The provincial public service commission has placed advertisements in major newspapers in Canada and the United States seeking replacements for two retiring deputy ministers and candidates for five new positions.

Minimum salary for all positions is $20,000 annually.

A. W. Morrison, deputy minister of municipal affairs, and H. H. Somerville, deputy minister of mines and minerals, are retiring with a combined total of 85 years of service to the province.

'Over-Emphasis'

REGINA (CP) — Attorney-General Roy Romanow said the Metis Society of Saskatchewan may have "over-emphasized" problems between the RCMP and Indian and Metis people in the North.

Romanow said in an interview that there will be isolated examples of breaches of police regulations, or even the law, but "I think Mr. Sinclair has over-emphasized the situation."

Jim Sinclair, president of the Metis society, said last week that there are cases before the courts in which RCMP personnel are accused of harassment and of using undue violence toward his people.

Stranger in the City That Once Was 'Home'

ITEM: An overnight visit to Vancouver, a fine hotel room with a box-seat view over the Court House, yet for the very first time I felt a stranger in the city where I spent most of my life.

Our view took in the black, forbidding shaft of the Toronto-Dominion skyscraper. Vancouverites have learned to live with it, they say, but it is an intimidating structure, a monument only to the real estate developers and a city council that let them have their way.

Bad as it is, the Toronto-Dominion building is not as loathsome as another enormous waterfront concrete high-rise that has all but eliminated that famous view down Granville Street across to the north shore mountains. "How could they, how could they?" my wife asked of no one in particular when we first saw it.

In the West End, visiting friends, I felt a terrible sense of claustrophobia, of an existence reduced to cellular living. We looked directly acrosss into another enormous apartment block where, in cell after cell, people sat in front of television screens, as if they had been installed there.

Spoiled as I am by Victoria, I found the pace of Vancouver appalling. In the morning, sitting by our window, idly wondering what child had designed the Court House fountain, I was astonished to see people running — running! — to work.

"There are people out here running to work," I shouted at my wife over the roar of traffic on Georgia Street. "I think we'd better get an earlier ferry," my wife shouted back and we did.

ITEM: How ironical that it should have been a Conservative — one Ian Arrol, of York East — to come up with the most important proposition to be put to the House of Commons in years, a proposition that seems to have earned no more than three paragraphs in any paper across the country.

Arrol's idea is that we should totally renounce militarism, abolish our defence department and place our forces under the sole direction of the United Nations for use in peace-keeping operations. And why not? If we sincerely believe in a world without war we ought to do something more than merely paying lip-service to it. If only as a precedent for other small powers it would have a profound effect.

My hunch is that there are tens of thousands of Canadians in search of an identity who would find, at long last, that sense of national pride through a phasing out of our ridiculous and out-dated military establishment.

And good news today from Marv Cavendar, production representative of the series in Los Angeles, that the repeats were made necessary by the CBS technicians' strike. Now that there's been a settlement new programs are in the works, beginning with an episode titled "Walter's 50th Birthday." Hurray.

ITEM: To hand today a review copy of "The Open Gate", a collection of essays and photographs devoted entirely to Toronto's Union Station, priced at a whopping $12.95, and for the life of me I can't figure out who would buy it.

It may be that I'm a prejudiced reader since no other building in Canada turns me off so thoroughly as that enormous pile and my memories are crowded with disagreeable episodes set against its back-drop. I have come and gone from Union Station perhaps a dozen times and always, it seems, in a raging blizzard.

It was a raging blizzard when I put my wife on a Vancouver-bound train and walked directly out to join some 200 poor slobs to wait for a Halifax-bound troop train, the beginning of a four-year separation.

It was a raging blizzard when I last arrived on a boat train from Montreal that was crowded with immigrants. There was an Irish couple with two small children. We'd become friendly with them on the crossing from Liverpool. I last saw them standing in the driving snow on Front Street, outside the station, looking up at the great forbidding wall of the Royal York, all four of them crying.

Who needs that kind of memory, especially when it retails at $12.95?

BUNN . . . for the board

CUPE, Trustees Can't Even Agree On Definition Of the Issues In 5-Day Strike

MARKIDES . . . for the union

Board Says Money—Not So, Says Union

The two sides in the Greater Victoria School District strike not only disagree on terms for a new contract, but also on the issues in the five-day walkout.

The school board sees the dispute as primarily over wages.

The Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 382, sees the non-wage issues as the major ones.

Under the old contract, which expired Dec. 31, pay rates in the various classifications ranged from $627 a month for full-time janitors to $889 a month for full-time electricians.

The school district has offered an additional 33 cents an hour on the $3.60 an hour base rate in each year of a two-year contract, or just over nine per cent per year.

School board chairman Peter Bunn said the employers' offer would raise the full-time janitors' pay to $742 in 1974 and the full-time electricians' pay to $1,060.

He said union comments downplaying the wage issue in comparison with others is "a ploy. When the chips are down, it's money."

The union lists the issues this way:

Work area for janitors — The last agreement stated 28,400 square feet daily. The union wants this changed to 2,000 square feet per hour, or 16,000 square feet for an eight-hour day. It says that until the middle of the last contract, janitors were never required to wash outside windows above the ground floor or attend to grounds and flower beds.

Holidays — The union wants three weeks after one year's work, four weeks after five years and five weeks after 10 years. It has been two weeks after one year's work, three weeks after four years and four weeks after 14 years.

Sick leave — Instead of 12 days annually with one day going into a sick leave bank, the union wants 18 days annually with 1½ days going into sick leave bank.

Graveyard shifts — Five consecutive shifts, instead of a four-and-one split with days off.

Equal pay — The union argues that female day-shift janitors, called matrons and paid $2.85 an hour, do the same work as day-shift janitors at $3.60 an hour and that they should be brought to the higher rate. The school district says the duties are different and points to a Human Rights Commission finding that "male janitors perform physical work not required of janitoresses."

Promotions — Under the last agreement, employees lack the right to grieve against non-appointment to a higher position.

Junior Highs To Open Thursday

All junior high schools in the Greater Victoria School District will be open Thursday at 9 a.m. to give instructional direction to 7,200 children.

All junior high schools, except the small Dean Heights, were closed by the school district Monday because of fears of vandalism.

District superintendent A. J. Longmore said students will be given instructions at school as to further attendance.

No school will be open for more than half a day, he added.

Some Clerical Employees Returning to Their Jobs

Clerical workers returned to work at many schools in the district today despite the strike by maintenance personnel in a sister local.

Clerical staffs were told Tuesday they could report to work today and if no pickets were seen they could enter the schools and continue work as usual.

The staffing situation fluctuated throughout the day however as rotating pickets had the clerical workers walking on and off the job at various times.

About half the regular secretarial staff reported to work at school board offices this morning but walked out again at 11 a.m. when the shop steward was informed a picket line had been set up.

Dick Proctor, spokesman for the striking local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said the decision to allow the clerical staffs in local 947 to work came at a meeting of union representatives Tuesday afternoon.

Muriel Overgaard, president of the clerical workers' local, said there was no set pattern of work being followed because no one knew where picket lines would be.

She said there was no ill-feeling between the two locals but added "there's always a bit of dissention when people are prevented from earning a living."

She said the 258 members of the local voted unanimously Tuesday to support the strikers "to any extent possible" and not to cross picket-lines.

Proctor said he had no idea how many of the local 947 members had gone to work today or whether picket lines, scheduled to go into full force at 2 p.m., would force all the clerical workers to walk off the job again.

Victoria senior secondary reported all eight school secretaries were back on the job and most elementary school phones were answered this morning by secretaries or teacher aides.

Proctor said the decision of the clerical workers to return to work did not reflect badly on the maintenance employees since the purpose of the strike was to withdraw their own services "not stop others from doing their jobs."

'We Can't Stop Them'

"Besides, it was a joint agreement of locals," Proctor added, "and we can't stop them if we don't have picket lines up."

The spokesman said the union was more concerned about volunteer parents cleaning up the schools.

"They're only going to prolong the strike," Proctor said, "certainly they're doing our work and we must consider them strikebreakers."

Many parents at the district's 54 schools have been offering to clean schools after five days of the maintenance workers strike against the Greater Victoria school district.

"The board can't recommend parents clean the schools," district superintendent A. J. Longmore said today, "because we don't want to get involved in strike-breaking."

The union's executive, meanwhile, has decided to urge its members to send their own children to school.

Earlier, the union and the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association reached an agreement under which teachers would cross picket lines but would not do any of the work normally performed by strikers nor ask children to do it.

The union said it was asking its own members to send their children to school because the strike is against school district management not against education.

The union also said milk trucks supplying students will not be stopped from crossing picket lines.

Attendance at elementary schools has generally been about normal for this time of year with a few exceptions.

On the first school day of the strike, above average absenteeism was reported at Victoria West, Blanshard, Tilicum and Quadra elementary schools.

The biggest elementary school in the district, George Jay, was closed Monday and when it opened Tuesday 215 of the 860 students were absent. Attendance impoved this morning with 123 children away, about 14 per cent.

School board officials said schools were operating "fairly normally" today and all school children were aware of when they should be reporting to school.

Spokesmen said teachers' pay cheques, which take about two weeks to process, will be issued as usual at the end of the month.

Payrolls are managed by a computer firm and any manual work, usually done by clerical staff can be done by management personnel if necessary.

"I think we can lick all the envelopes ourselves," the board spokesman said.

Strike Distorted Says Union Official

A spokesman for the Canadian Union of Public Employees said today the strike against the Greater Victoria School District has been "badly distorted."

Jim Murrie, western regional director of the union, said the average Victoria citizen believes striking janitors and maintenance men are seeking a 20 per cent wage increase to do 43 per cent less work.

"This is totally fallacious and an attempt by school board management generally and board chairman Peter Bunn in particular to deliberately misrepresent the facts," he said.

During the last contract, Murrie said the school district "saddled" janitors with work they were never required to do before.

"Janitors never cleaned school windows above the ground floor until last May when this was added to their work load, yet to hear Mr. Bunn you'd think these employees have always been required to clean windows," he said.

Janitors were also being required to cut grass and maintain flower beds "and these functions were not required of them until last year."

But while the school district continues to expand in terms of classroom area, there has been a 10 per cent reduction in maintenance staff in the last two years.

When the last contract was negotiated in 1970, CUPE Local 382 represented 295 employees. This year the local represents 268 employees, a 10 per cent reduction in staff in two years, he said.

"Instead of doing less work, our members are working harder than ever," Murrie said.

Bunn replied today that it is "basic arithmetic" that the employees have asked for a 20 per cent wage increase and a 43 per cent reduction in the area of the building to be maintained.

"The statement by this gentleman (Murrie) is decidedly flatulent," Bunn replied

He said it is recognized that the 28,400 square foot figure is not attained and he is aware of janitor duties other than sweeping.

With a lesser staff, what was happening was, for example, that instead of a floor being waxed once a week it's once every two weeks.

Asked if it wasn't speedup when fewer men were asked to do more work in more areas, Bunn said "I would not deny that greater productivity has not been required in the has two years. We are paying high wages and expect greater productivity."

Local union first vice-president Bob Cunningham said the 28,400 square foot figure has "never been reached by any janitor" and that 16,000 square feet is a more realistic figure.

Small Wheels Rejected

"They're too small," said Citra.

"I've tried them and they're very difficult to steer with because they don't have the leverage."

The special steering wheels come as small as 10 inches in diameter, he said, compared with a normal 14 to 18-inch wheel that manufacturers put on cars.

By replacing the steering wheel with a smaller one, the steering ratio is altered making the car more difficult to drive, said Citra.

Local automobile parts dealer Gordie Estlin said he sells two types of small steering wheels, a 12-inch wheel kit for about $22 and a 14½-inch wheel kit for $25.

"We only sell them for dune buggies and go-carts" he said, although young people on occasion have asked to buy them for their cars.

Hair in Your Soup?

Restaurant cooks with long hair — whether men or women — must wear a hairnet as well as a cap, Greater Victoria's senior public health officer told a meeting of the metro health board Tuesday.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread was replying to questions from board members about stiffer health regulations for public eating places which come into effect April 1.

Among conditions worrying board member Harry Graham were long-haired cooks and chipped cups.

"We require them to wear hairnets under their hats," said the doctor of the cooks. He added that "progressive places require hair to be cut to a decent length."

Cracks in crockery can harbor germs and board chairman Ken Hill said he thinks customers are well within their rights to refuse soup or a drink served in a chipped bowl or cup.

He recommended the public do just that as the fastest means of persuading restaurants to dispose of cracked crockery.

Whitbread's report said: "We have had discussions with the Restaurant Association and have informed many restaurants that their standards must be improved.

"Where food establishments are required to carry out renovation or reconstruction, plans and a letter of intent must be submitted for approval. Permits will be issued by the medical health officer commencing April 1 of this year and all restaurants and catering businesses must have a permit.

"One of our main problems is the fact that we need additional public health inspectors to adequately cover the various zones in the area."

Whitbread said courses on hygenic handling of food will be held when staff are available and the board voted to ask Canada Manpower for assistance in establishing the program.

In the meantime, the metro health staff will mail a copy of the new health regulations to all restaurants with a reminder of the approaching effective date.

Victoria Lawyers Agree Divorce Reform Needed

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Courts, the law and lawyers are blamed for the high cost of divorce.

Earlier this month, two Vancouver lawyers—John Bouck and Darrell Roberts—presented the results of a year-long study on divorce court procedures to the Foundation for Legal Research in Canada and the B.C. Law Foundation.

Their report dealt only with procedures which fall within the jurisdiction of the province. It recommended:

- That uncontested divorces be heard in chambers, rather than in regular session of the Supreme Court;
- That there be daily Supreme Court hearings of divorces (they are presently held every second Friday in Victoria and every Friday in Vancouver);
- That televised evidence be permitted when witnesses are not able to be present;
- That each party be allowed to examine the other's witnesses before trial.

Immediate response to the Bouck-Roberts proposals was that it would lower divorce costs from an average $370 to $200.

But Frank Maczko, director of the B.C. Legal Aid Society, thinks those figures are "a little unrealistic." And he thinks procedural reform is only second best.

"Bouke and Roberts offered an alternative in the area where the provincial government is concerned," says Maczko. "But what is really needed is change in the legislation itself and that's a federal matter."

The reforms Maczko wants (and which he and others are pressing the federal government to adopt) include:

- Doing away with the fault system in which one party claims the other has done wrong and introducing the grounds of simple marriage breakdown;
- Once simple marriage breakdown is determined as the grounds for divorce; allowing the applicant to prove the grounds simply by filing an affadavit with a registrar.

A number of Victoria lawyers agree there is need for reform both in procedure and legislation.

"The ordinary divorce case is a performance that is wholly unnecessary," says Patrick Sinnott. He urges reform which would permit the giving of evidence by submitting an affadavit to a registrar, similar to the way a claim is made in a debt case.

Another lawyer, Marney Stevenson, would like to see the creation of a family law section of the Supreme Court with a judge who was a specialist in family law.

"But it would only be beneficial if it went side by side with a proper legal system similar to that of Ontario," she says.

Similar to Medicare, the Ontario system provides for government payment of legal fees when the client cannot pay for them himself.

John Meyer also favors a special judge to handle divorce, or "Master" as he is called in Ontario. But Meyer supports the present procedures which he feels are "very efficient."

The lawyers themselves come in for much criticism from Joe Hargitt, president of Universal Divorce Financing Ltd., a leading institution set up exclusively to finance divorces.

"The legal profession needs a complete overhaul," says Hargitt. "We've had some cases where people are charged way too much for simple uncontested divorces."

Hargitt claims the legal profession is over-populated and some lawyers charge as much as they can in divorce cases to offset the competition.

"They certainly are failing to help the poor," he says.

For Instance, It's Too Costly

Despite recent reforms, divorce is expensive — more expensive than it should be, say those who propose more reforms.

The basic fee for a divorce with the full help of a lawyer is $350, according to the rates of the Victoria Bar Association.

That is the fee for an uncontested divorce sought on the grounds that the parties have been separated for at least three years (or five years if the party initiating the suit was the one who deserted the other spouse).

The $350 basic fee would also apply to an uncontested divorce on the grounds of adultry.

The basic fee for an uncontested divorce on the grounds of mental or physical cruelty is $450.

These fees do not include extras, such as the cost of proving a foreign marriage or newspaper advertising. They do not include court and document costs involving the custody of children, setting of maintenance or division of property.

$850 Minimum

In a custody suit, lawyers are entitled to charge a minimum $850, that being the amount set by the bar association for one day's appearance in Supreme Court.

Later fees could include $100 to $150 for a change of the maintenance agreement made by a lawyer before a judge in chambers.

There is little and usually no assistance for poor people wanting to divorce.

Legal Aid will only take on a divorce case if the applicant has no assets and if he or she can produce a letter from a doctor or social worker declaring the health of the applicant or the welfare of the children is endangered by the continuation of the marriage.

Such cases are few. The Victoria Legal Aid Committee handled some 600 court appearances last year of which 60 per cent were "family work." In almost all cases these involved custody and maintenance claims.

Do-It-Yourself divorces are possible. Publicity has been given to cases in which plaintiffs paid less than $35 to successfully end their marriages in court. Such cases are few and becoming fewer, local lawyers say. Even with the aid of a kit, only the most daring try Do-It-Yourself divorces.

Money Available

Financing is available from banks and finance institutions for those with the collateral and the credit ratings.

There is also a lending institution set up exclusively to finance divorces. The firm, Universal Divorce Financing Ltd., opened a branch in Victoria last year but it was closed in a few months because "Victoria is a very close community and people don't want their neighbors to know they are getting divorced," says president Joe Hargitt.

Many Victoria clients use his Vancouver office, he says.

The company offers to pay legal fees for an uncontested divorce on terms of $23 a month with no down payment to a total of $495 at 12 per cent interest.

Hargitt claims no one is ever turned away from his office because of a poor credit rating and he finds less than five per cent of his accounts are delinquent.

Weeks of Work

The large white envelopes with invitations to the State Ball in Government House following opening of the Legislature on Thursday, January 25, have all reached their destinations by now. And, in most instances, acceptances or regrets have been received.

It took weeks of work on the part of the secretarial staff at Government House to ensure the smooth flow of these invitations to invited guests and to receive return replies.

A start was made several months ago when the precedence list and the official list of guests at last year's ball were brought out.

Where there had been changes in office, names were erased and others took their place. Every address was checked.

A list of guests Premier Barrett wished invited to the ball was received from the provincial secretary and included with the others.

Also the names of two couples from each of the cabinet ministers. And, this year for a first time, one couple each from members of the Legislative Assembly.

When all these were properly assembled the master list was completed with names of citizens in Vancouver and Victoria and from other places throughout British Columbia.

Style of the invitations never varies. Printed on a heavy white card, there is a gold embossed crest of the province at the top and black lettering in the wording.

Names on the invitations and addresses on the envelopes are all written by hand.

A change in arrangements for this year's ball is found in dress requirements for male guests. Formerly, the invitations stipulated white tie, which meant full evening dress. This time it's black tie, meaning tuxedos.

Looking back to former openings of the British Columbia Legislature, there was a time when the first of two state dinners, was also held in Government House, the same night as the ball.

It was during the years that Frank Mackenzie Ross was lieutenant-governor that, as this doubling-up of two important occasions traditional at opening of the legislature, left no time for leisurely after-dinner conversation, it was decided to hold the first state dinner a week after the opening and a second one a week after that.

This year's dates for the dinners are January 31 and February 7.

This year, according to Government House secretary, Cmdr. Gar Dixon, 1,200 invitations went out for the ball alone.

These included the precedence list which Cmdr. Dixon names as the Premier and his cabinet, former lieutenant-governors, British Columbia members of parliament and senators, consuls-general, heads of the diplomatic corps, chancellors of universities and the mayors of Victoria and Vancouver.

Also the president of the UBCM, heads of the services, the privy council and the churches, chief justices of the province and members of the Appeal and Supreme Courts.

After that came heads of established organizations and all mayors throughout the province. Finally, there is the representative cross-section of well-known citizens in Victoria and Vancouver and throughout the province.

Uncle 'In Dutch'

DEAR ABBY: My problem is with my husband, age 32, and his two nieces, ages 16 and 17. (They are sisters.)

We went to an all-night roadhouse inn to have breakfast at 2 a.m., and my husband disappeared with the 17-year-old for two hours. They said they were upstairs looking at the view.

When they came back I didn't say anything, but I was plenty mad. Whenever my husband and I take these two nieces out, he takes turns dancing with them and leaves me sitting. It's got so he never takes me out alone, he's always got these girls with us. He has fixed them up with dates with some of his friends who are his age, and for all I know my husband could be seeing them himself. He has disappeared for whole nights and comes home with lipstick on his shirts.

I have told the girls' mother about this and she says I am silly to worry, but I don't think I am because there was a lot of talk about incest in their family between my husband's younger brother and his older sister.

When my husband says goodby to these nieces, he kisses them on the mouth. My question? Is this healthy? — Jealous.

DEAR JEALOUS: It's not healthy, and neither is the relationship between your husband and his young nieces. Set this swinger down and talk to him like a Dutch Uncle, or that uncle will be in Dutch for fooling around with minors.

Community School

MONEY ALONE WON'T MAKE IT A SUCCESS

Ping-Pong popular activity with youngsters

"It's the age-old question: Can a school—planned by government after some conversation with area residents and proposed with many facilities for a spot on a map—work as well as our little old school house that the community wanted as its focal point." . . . a James Bay resident.

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The provincial New Democratic Party government recently indicated approval of the community school concept.

Government officials have said legislation will be changed so the government's one-third funding scheme for recreational facilities can apply to "the community school."

This means that after some 18 months of preliminary planning, Saanich Municipality and the Greater Victoria School Board will go ahead with plans for the development of a "community school" at Burnside and Acorn.

It also means that financial assistance should be available to South Park Community School, forerunner of the community school concept in the Victoria area.

The Saanich Community Secondary School proposed for Burnside and Acorn is still at the planning stage. Estimated to occupy 103,726 square feet at a cost of $2,074,560, the completion date has been set for September 1974.

Said a member of the school board: "We have the opportunity to build a community focal point and spirit for the area from the ground up and we'll attempt to integrate it right into the community."

The question now being asked by school experts, however, is whether a community school promotes community interaction or simply offers recreational facilities for members of the community.

When first mention of a secondary community school was made in school board reports the phrase, year-round school was used. An advisory group of area parents, teachers and students was surveyed to find out how they felt about the idea and what facilities they would like included.

Of 6,000 households in the area, 816 responded to the survey.

Overall, says School Board District Superintendent A. J. Longmore, it appears that residents want a swimming pool, a library and a public health centre.

"We were considering building for education specifications and we were also looking at recreation and community services and facilities that could function seven days a week, opening fairly early.

"The board is very pleased with the amount of use in its schools: more than 270 groups are now using schools, an increase of 20 per cent over last year."

School Board chairman Peter Bunn said the community school concept is based on how a community looks upon its schoools. Although they are already the literary centre of many communities, "there's no need to develop them in glorious isolation."

"Even the hard-nosed homeowner can see the economic advantages of having community facilities all under the same roof," said Bill Stavdal, of the board's community relations department.

"The school is estimated to cost $2,200,000 — the board has $1,800,000 on hand and the remainder is expected through federal and provincial vocational funds," explained Longmore.

New School Different

Bunn explained that the plan for the new community school differs from the South Park situation.

"There's something very much happening now there—the school is very much people-oriented and came about because of a community need.

"But although it's had a different birth, both schools, we hope, will ultimately go the same route. Future legislative changes should make improvements possible.

Bunn mentioned the financial problems of South Park Community School — formally referred to as the James Bay Community Project, which in the future will be consolidated on one site (Macdonald Park) and include both South Park and James Bay schools.

"The board will work on behalf of the James Bay Group for additional money. I'm prepared to go in to bat for them."

The problem facing South Park certainly isn't one of atmosphere nor spirit.

"Come on in," says Principal David Allen, "and grab a cup of coffee — we're pretty casual around here."

"John's parents were in the other evening and we got a few of his problems straightened out," says one of the coffee drinkers.

Others nod, and know, without the addition of a surname, who John is and what his problems are.

A woman from down the street stops in to talk to the teachers, "just to say hello" before she picks up her tot at the children's play school.

And after school hours, the elder members of the community start drifting in for their classes and take seats opposite the youngest generation.

"It's not merely a place where members of the community — interested in beadwork or tennis — make use of schools during the off-hours. It's a community school and there is a basic differentiation to be made," said Allan.

"Victoria uses its schools quite well, but what we're talking about here is a human interlocking. You can build all the facilities you want but it won't be a true community school unless everyone is involved."

"The community educator is committed to the idea that people learn from the total environment. That is, the entire community is the school plant. All of the people are potential teachers and everything in the community is a potential resource."

That is the definition of a community school as published in an American inter-community school magazine, and Allan agrees wholeheartedly with it.

"We use the school as a focal point so forces in the community — social agencies involved in family work and others — can come together," he said.

"It has to be a real institution in the community so people by ones and twos realize it's there and it's theirs.

"It can't be anyone sitting in an office saying because of my background you should have these facilities," another school member said.

Brian Tugwell, the James Bay community school co-ordinator, considers the school "miles ahead of any community school".

"The community wanted it, and when principal Dave Allan was appointed and he started talking about the same concept, it got off the ground."

A tightly-knit community action group, members of the community school are working together with him in programming 37 weekly projects, including a playschool for children chaperoned by parents and senior citizens' groups sponsored at the James Bay United Church.

When South Park Community school is phased into the MacDonald Park location, the activities will be easier to get off the ground, said Tugwell.

Referendum To Be Held

The school board has earmarked $200,000 for the addition to the James Bay School building and a referendum Feb. 17 will decide whether another $200,000 is forthcoming.

Tugwell said the James Bay Community Action Group will attempt to raise an additional $160,000 from granting agencies and government cost-sharing programs.

The additional community facilities "would simply be used to get adults and kids sitting down together — get some social interaction going," said Allan.

The project is of concern to everyone — even a Family and Children's Service area worker, Bob Leach.

"It's a tremendous place. Being able to work here with the children is a real resource for us. I had a choice but I wanted to work here because of the community — we're really involved."

"I walk over here to talk to both teachers and students, just to see how everything's getting on and they walk over to my office. Everyone does it. It's a school that's really tied together."

Food Chemicals Hold Balance

OTTAWA (CP) — In assessing use of sodium nitrates and nitrites in foods, health authorities say it's a balance between a "remote theoretical possibility" these may cause cancer-forming substances if they're used and the "absolute dead certainty" of food poisonings if they're not used.

"Please stress that these substances themselves don't cause cancer," said Dr. D. G. Chapman in an interview Tuesday.

"They are allowed to be added to foods because they prevent bacteria, which might otherwise cause food poisoning from growing."

The chief of the federal health department's food directorate and laboratories was commenting on recent news reports that four consumer groups in the United States were protesting the use of sodium nitrates and nitrites in foods.

As well as preventing bacterial growth, these chemicals lengthen shelf life and give improved appearances in smoked and cured meats and other meat products such as weiners and sausages.

The groups are protesting their use for these latter two purposes, saying they combine with another substance to form nitrosamines, which are considered cancer-causing.

"Some of these health food people forget that these chemicals have been used for a couple of centuries to help prevent growth of bacteria in foods," Dr. Chapman said.

"Health authorities around the world know that the largest public health problem with food still is food poisoning, which is caused by bacteria.

"These additives prevent bacterial growth in meats."

Public health authorities in Canada and other countries have been keeping a close watch on nitrates and nitrites in foods for more than 50 years, he said. The preservatives used in foods were among the first concern of the federal governmentent's health department.

Health authorities are aware of the studies that bother the consumer groups and they have looked into the supposed links with cancer, Dr. Chapman said.

Sodium nitrates break down into nitrites chemically, he explained. Then, under certain circumstances, nitrites will combine with a substance called amines — often found in foods — to form nitrosamines.

Nitrosamines have been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals — if given in high enough dosages, he said. However, it has never been proven that nitrosamines have caused cancer in humans.

Onion Dish Delicious, Economical

Common onion made uncommonly good

By MARY MOORE

Again I was dismayed at the price of food in Edmonton when I was visiting there — especially fresh fruits and vegetables.

But I did find that the price of different varieties of onions at home and in the West was more reasonable.

So I went to work on onions.

I know that sweet and sour onions will sound a little off beat to you but they are delicious and economical. I will give you the sauce for them and the recipe for a cheese sauce which is also a favorite.

SWEET AND SOUR ONIONS

About 12 medium small onions (1½ to 2 lbs.)

Three Tbsp. light brown sugar;

One and one-half Tbsp. corn starch;

One-eighth tsp. dry mustard;

Three-quarter tsp. salt;

One-sixteenth tsp. ginger;

One-quarter tsp. chili powder (optional);

Three-quarter cup tomato juice;

Six Tbsp. water;

One and one-half Tbsp. lemon juice.

Peel and cook onions whole in water to nearly cover until tender — about 40 minutes.

Meanwhile make sweet and sour sauce by mixing well in pot the sugar, corn starch, mustard, salt, ginger and chili powder (if used). Stir in the tomato juice, water and lemon juice and cook stirring until thick.

CHEESE SAUCE

Four Tbsp. butter or margarine;

Four Tbsp. flour;

One-half tsp. salt;

One-eighth tsp. pepper;

Two cups milk;

One-quarter to ½ lb. Cheddar cheese, shredded.

Melt the butter or margarine in the top of a double boiler over hot water or in heavy saucepan. Blend in the flour, salt and pepper. Add the milk and stir until the sauce is thickened and smooth. Add the cheese and stir until the cheese melts.

Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents for each specified recipe.

"A Business Built on Customer Confidence and Goodwill"

'Victim' Took Part, Says Rape Accused

A 22-year-old Colwood man, on trial for rape in B.C. Supreme Court here, Tuesday testified that his alleged victim took "quite an active part" in the incident.

"She stated quite bluntly for me to keep going," George Jerome Makow told an all-male jury before Mr. Justice William McIntyre. "I had my arm around her and she her arms around me."

Makow was the only defence witness called.

The alleged rape took place Nov. 17 in the Highlands district north of Langford, after the 23-year-old woman had been picked up by Makow on Douglas near the Red Lion Motor Inn.

Testimony from the woman presented Monday showed she was a registered nurse and was hitch-hiking to her home about 11:30 p.m. Nov. 16 when the accused and a female passenger gave her a ride.

Makow dropped the other passenger off in the "Phelps subdivision," about a mile north of Thetis Lake Park. He then drove the nurse to the place of the alleged offence.

Earlier testimony, by the woman, indicated she was "forced to write a note stating that it (intercourse) was on my own free will."

She said Makow dictated the note, lighted a match to look at it, said it was unsatisfactory and forced her to write another one.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Harold Turnham, the woman said, "It just seemed so meaningless to me at that point. I just didn't care . . . To me, he was one of the saddest people I've encountered."

At the conclusion of his cross-examination, Turnham asked, "Would you describe yourself as a hippie?"

"I would describe myself as a follower of Jesus Christ," she replied.

Under cross-examination by Prosecutor Alan Bigelow, Makow admitted asking the woman to write the notes but said he did not dictate them.

He told the jury he wanted the notes as proof of the woman's consent to the intercourse.

"I didn't want to run into her husband," said Makow.

"The note was written prior to the intercourse," he said.

"It was a little insurance for you, wasn't it?" asked Bigelow.

"Yes," replied the accused.

"It was done after the rape, wasn't it?" asked Bigelow.

"There was no rape," replied Makow.

Mr. Justice McIntyre today was to hear summations by both counsel before delivering his charge to the jury.

POUND-FEE HIKE RECOMMENDED

Oak Bay council's finance committee decided Tuesday to recommend a 30 per cent increase in its pound contract with the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Oak Bay at present pays $8,200 a year for pound duties. This will be raised to $10,600 in the new contract.

In asking for the increase — the first since 1971 — SPCA manager David Beeching said the estimate of increased costs was based on a 2½-month time study.

He said Victoria would be asked to increase the amount the city pays to $23,000 and Esquimalt to $10,800.

He pointed out that Alberni, with only a slightly higher population than Oak Bay, paid more than $12,000 for pound services.

Municipal administrator E. H. Hart said there were roughly 1,400 dogs in the municipality, licences for which raised a revenue of $6,800 a year.

The committee decided not to follow Saanich's example and raise the licence fees for dogs from $5 to $7.50.

Ald. Brian Smith said, "We may have to increase by a $1 a year eventually but we should be slow to do so. I'm concerned about pensioners who like their pets. It ($7.50) could be a lot of money to them."

Dealing with the problems of dogs running loose in Oak Bay, the committee told Beeching they were happy with the firmer policy of prosecution being carried out. The first offence results in a warning being issued, the second, in a $10 fine.

Beeching said in order to cope with the growing number of dogs allowed to run loose early in the morning and the late evening, patrols would be re-arranged to concentrate on these periods.

In other business, the committee voted to recommend to council that $750 be sent through Red Cross channels to the Nicaraguan earthquake relief fund.

Liberals Racists: O'Leary

OTTAWA (CP) — Tempers flared in the Senate Tuesday night after Senator Gratton O'Leary (PC-Ontario) denounced the Liberal party as the "father and chief protagonist of racism" in Quebec.

The Quebec-born former lawyer and journalist criticized Transport Minister Jean Marchand's remarks last Friday in the Commons.

Mr. Marchand, former minister of regional economic expansion, said continued attacks against French-Canadian politicians in Ottawa and allegations of a racist backlash might force them out of federal politics and threaten national unity.

Referring to Mr. Marchand's "cry-baby attitude," Senator O'Leary said it would be a good thing for truth, for Parliament and for Mr. Marchand if he did quit the House of Commons.

"Mr. Marchand is a new boy in politics in this country," he said.

"I know all about racism in Quebec. In 1925 I had the experience of standing on a Gaspe platform and hearing one of the most distinguished members of the Liberal party . . . attack me as a candidate of the Protestants and Jews."

Liberal politicians, Senator O'Leary said, "thrived on racism in the province of Quebec."

"That was their stock in trade . . . their standard pattern for the people . . . Attack the white Anglo-Saxon Protesclinics reach young, urban,

HAD NURSED FEELINGS

Liberal politicians had nursed the anti-conscription feelings in Quebec for years after the First World War.

"The Liberal party was the father of racism and disunity in Quebec . . . I can prove it to the hilt," he said.

Quebec young people have been conditioned to regard English-Canadians with distrust, and to believe they are being exploited by them, he said.

Urging that "we stop all this damn nonsense about racism," Senator O'Leary said his own discussion with voters in three constituencies revealed to him that people are more concerned with the issues of the economy, inflation and unemployment.

"Not once did I hear a complaint about bilingualism," he said.

Tender Probe Awaiting New Evidence

VANCOUVER (CP) — A hearing into alleged irregularities in contract bidding for a Campbell River hospital extension has been adjourned to Thursday when it will hear new subcontract bids for the job. Wayne Farmer, of Farmer Construction Ltd. of Victoria, said Tuesday the hospital board and British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service would be presented with the new subcontract bids and a final contract figure today.

He said he would not release figures until the cabinet sees them Friday.

Farmer Construction was the low bidding general contractor on the original tender call for the hospital job last fall and was asked to re-tender the subcontracting.

The public hearing was called because the low tender was 30 per cent higher than the architect's estimate for the job.

Dr. Harry Purdy, the sole hearing commissioner, is also charged with recommending other ways to get competitive bids on construction projects.

Farmer said the new subcontractors bids are generally lower than on the first tender call and attributed this to increased competition and changes in specifications.

During the hearing Tuesday, J. W. Bishop, executive director of the B.C. Construction Association, said that in recalling tenders, unless there is a substantial change in the scope of work, "new bidders are enabled to enter the competitive field with prior knowledge of the prices already submitted."

Because of this, tenders may be submitted that may be well below the level that would provide a reasonable profit, he said. Thus, there is the risk that a subcontractor may not be able to finish the work and may disrupt and delay the project, he continued.

Bishop supported the bid depository system, whereby subcontractors submit sealed bids to general contractors through the bid depository run by the construction association.

All the bids must be received by a deadline and prices can't be changed after they are submitted.

He also suggested that a system of pre-qualification be instituted under which all contractors interested in a project would have the opportunity of submitting their credentials.

EATON'S BOWS OUT IN STYLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The T. Eaton Co. is counting on a sale which runs to Feb. 3 to clean out most of the stock at the downtown store it has occupied since 1948.

The store will close at the end of business activities that day, and Feb. 8 — after three shopping days without a downtown outlet — Eaton's will open a new store in the Pacific Centre development.

Bill McCourt, area sales and merchandising manager, said Tuesday the sale method was chosen to clear out the old store for two reasons — to start fresh at the new location, and to please the public.

The Pacific Centre location will have about 320,000 square feet of sales space, approximately the same as the old store.

Opening was originally set for last August, but was delayed by a construction industry dispute.

Freeze Fear Thawed Out

OSOYOOS (CP) — Agriculture minister Dave Stupich promised Tuesday that although the provincial government has stopped farmers from making large profits from subdivision of their land, farming will still have some financial rewards.

Speaking to more than 300 attending the 84th annual meeting of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association, the minister asked them to wait for the details of the proposed legislation before criticizing it.

Mr. Stupich said the legislation would be examined by a standing committee after it is introduced to legislature early in the session and there would be plenty of time for amendments.

Flood Payments

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Brocklehurst Municipality has received about $36,700 and Valleyview Municipality about $16,400 from the provincial government as compensation for costs incurred in fighting floods last summer.

Lack of Data Cited

WHITEHORSE (CP) — A proposed $15 million hydro-electric project in the Yukon should be rejected because of inadequate environmental impact studies, the Canadian Society of Environmental Biologists said Tuesday.

Dr. J. S. Nelson, society president, said a report by Peace Bowden Economic Consultants Ltd. of Vancouver suffers from "a mysterious lack of good quantified data."

The Northern Canada Power Commission proposes to build the project at Aishihik Lake and Otter Falls about 18 miles west of Whitehorse and 75 miles north of the Alaska Highway, a location popular with vacationers.

The Problems of Being Caught Short!

CHICAGO (Reuter) — "The American Crawl," "The Doorman" and "Stick It" are three ways to save a dime recommended by the Committee to End Pay Toilets In America (CEPTIA).

Representatives of the group, which says it has a membership of more than 1,000 across the U.S. held their first major news conference at a Chicago hotel.

"Pay toilets loom in the dusty corridors of our nation's bus and train stations," said Michael Gessel, CEPTIA national president. "They await the unwary traveller in the shiny rest rooms of our airports."

CEPTIA says it has been gathering members for four years. A lifetime subscription is 25 cents.

Its aims are said to be elimination of pay toilets through legislative action and direct pressure on establishments owning them.

CEPTIA said it plans to work on local, state and national levels to end the groping in time of need for the 10 cents required to get into a public toilet.

Natalie Precker, an undergraduate at Kent State University, outlined methods of foiling a pay toilet.

The American Crawl, she said, "is aptly named because America is the land of pay toilets and crawl is what you do — right under the door."

The Doorman: "This method is recommended only for those humanitarians who have a lot of time to give the cause. It consists of opening and holding open the door of a pay toilet so that others may pass freely."

Stick It: "A piece of transparent invisible tape stretched over the lock keeps it from slipping into the slot in the door frame."

Miss Precker also said pay toilets discriminated against women. "Men are much better blessed through urinals when they need the opportunity of relieving themselves."

The group singled out a manufacturer of pay toilet door slots, saying that CEPTIA is investigating a possible breach of U.S. anti-trust monopoly laws and that it would submit its findings to the justice department.

CEPTIA said measures banning pay toilets have been introduced in state legislation from Massachusetts to Oregon and in many city councils around the U.S.

"We can see the day when we will victoriously close up shop," said a spokesman. "Our end is our elimination."

Indian Village Replica

VANCOUVER (CP) — A replica o an ancient West Coast Indian village will be built at the University of British Columbia to house UBC's $10 million collection of Northwest Coast Indian and other tribal art.

UBC governors announced Tuesday they have authorized architect Arthur Erickson to proceed with final drawings for what will be called the museum of man.

The building itself, fronted with huge glass windows and slender columns of off-white concrete, will be set beside a large shallow pond and will perch on a cliff overlooking the ocean.

Housed in the village will be UBC's 10,00-piece collection of Northwest Coast Indian art and the Walter and Marianne Koerner masterwork collection of tribal art. Also on display will be an additional 10,000 artifacts from Asian, classical and tribal worlds and more than 90,000 items from the prehistoric period of B.C. Indian history.

The museum will be partly financed with a $2.5 million federal grant received last May. It is scheduled for completion by April, 1975.

The focus of the museum will be a high-ceilinged hall housing massive totem poles which now are kept in storage because they are too delicate to be exposed to the elements.

Transplants, Cancer Linked

BOSTON (AP) — Medical researchers are compiling increased evidence linking cancer with heart and kidney transplants, a member of the Harvard Medical School staff reports.

Dr. Martin S. Hirsch says transplant recipients show a "markedly increased" incidence of cancer. He said 96 cases of malignant tumors have been detected in patients throughout the world who have received organ transplants.

Dr. Hirsch said available statistics indicate that "reticulum cells sarcomas" are the most common form of cancer encountered in trans- against cancer.

Statistics show that this type of cancer occurs 4,000 times more frequently among transplant recipients than in a general population of similar age, Dr. Hirsch told a meeting of the Harvard Medical Society last week.

The worldwide statistics have been compiled largely under the direction of Drs. Israel Penn and Thomas E. Starzl of the University of Colorado and the Veterans Administration Hospital in Denver, Dr. Hirsch said.

These specialists have determined that the over-all incidence of cancer among transplant patients is 4.5 per cent, a number considered low enough to justify continued use of transplantation as a means of therapy for terminally-ill patients, Dr. Hirsch said.

He suggested that the use of immuno suppressive drugs may be partially responsible for the cancer. These drugs are administered to prevent rejection by the host body of the transplanted organ.

The problem with this form of therapy is that the immune system also is believed to be involved in the body's defence plant patients.

FILM BOARD UNDER FIRE

HALIFAX (CP) — The Halifax-Dartmouth branch of the Monarchist League of Canada says it wants to know why the National Film Board has removed three films on the monarchy from film board libraries across the country.

A. F. Rowland, branch chairman, said the board recently removed the films The Sceptre and the Mace, The Queen Opens Parliament and The Queen in Canada, from the libraries.

Mr. Rowland said the local NFB library would not give him any reasons for the removal of the three films. He said he hoped the matter would be brought before Parliament.

RUSSA'S DAY IN COURT SHOULDN'T HAPPEN TO DOG

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It was a dog's day in court, but for Russa Rittengerg it didn't last long.

Russa, a Borzoi, was summoned for jury duty this week.

After waiting with owner Barry Rittenberg for almost an hour, Russa sat in the jury box for 10 minutes and then was rejected.

"She could probably do better than most people," Rittenberg said. "She's got good instincts."

Some time ago, an interviewer for the city director asked Rittenberg if anyone else lived in his house. He said Russa lived with him. Occupation: Security guard.

Jury lists in Orleans Parish are compiled from such sources as the city directory and telephone book.

Russa was allowed to sit in the jury box if only briefly because, as Earl Duplantier, chairman of the Orleans Parish jury commission said, "When we found out we had made a mistake and subpoenaed a dog, we decided to make the most of it."

Cost of Natural Gas Seen Hiked for U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Natural gas bills, which have already risen by a third or more during the last five years, are destined to swell even faster if United States producers take advantage of a new pricing procedure created by federal regulators.

As a measure of what the future could hold for consumers, three producers in the vital offshore Louisiana field have asked for an immediate 73 per cent price increase and want further annual increases which would drive their prices to twice current levels within seven years.

Behind the new pricing procedure is a nationwide gas shortage. For the first time last year, the demand for natural gas exceeded the supply. Procedures and the Federal Power Commission (FPC) contend higher prices are necessary to lure untapped sources of gas on to the market.

The results for the price increases are the first major ones under the new FPC procedure called optional pricing.

NEW INCREASES SEEN

These requests are crucial because the offshore Louisiana fields now account for a third of the U.S. natural gas supply and the producers applying to the FPC for higher rates have promised other increases will follow if the increases are granted.

The offshore producers are asking for 45 cents a thousand instead of the 26 cents a thousand they get now. They want an additional cent-a-year increase after the proposed new rate goes into effect.

The optional pricing procedure permits producers to seek higher than existing rates for gas supplies which represent new gas.

But "new gas" isn't fully defined yet. However, it at least covers gas from fields formerly used only for sales within state lines, gas from previously undeveloped fields or from new wells.

Tenneco Oil, one of the applicants, said approval will indicate to the gas-producing industry that the FPC will allow new gas sales at rates "based on economic factors including the cost of alternatives."

The other applicants are Texaco and Belco Petroleum Co.

Opponents challenging optional pricing in the courts charge it is certain to produce windfall profits for producers.

Such opponents as the American Public Gas Association have accused the FPC of failing to investigate whether the current gas shortage is an industry creation aimed at eliciting higher prices.

These assertions are denied by producers and the FPC.

30 HOMELESS AFTER BLAZE IN ARCTIC

CAMBRIDGE BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Thirty people were homeless today in this Arctic Island settlement following a fire which reduced a $350,000, two-storey apartment building to rubble.

Most of their possessions were lost in the blaze which was battled by volunteer firemen and crews from the nearby Distant Early warning line radar station and the transport ministry base. There were no injuries.

The firefighters were hampered by frozen hoses and an insufficient water supply as the combined temperature and wind chill gave a reading of 98 degrees below zero.

One report said the nearest water source was a five-mile round trip from the building. The settlement of 850 people is located 1,000 miles north of Edmonton, 175 miles above the Artic Circle.

An RCMP spokesman said the building's loss will put a heavy strain on accommodaton in the area, already suffering a severe housing shortage. He said the blaze apparently started in a temporarily vacant suite and the building was destroyed within three hours. Those made homeless were billeted in other homes in the community.

Ulster Terror 'Too Much' for Teacher

TORONTO — "The bombing, the tension" and "innocent people being killed for no reason" were too much for a teacher from Toronto who went to Northern Ireland for one year on an exchange program.

Marion McBride returned home last month after four months of teaching in an old school in the village of Culleybackey, 30 miles from Belfast.

Miss McBride switched places with Joan Gaston, a teacher from Culleybackey who is still in Toronto.

The suburban York board of education has given Miss McBride her fulltime job back and has agreed to keep Miss Gaston here until June.

The board also agreed to pay for a teacher in Culleybackey for the remainder of the school year.

TORONTO — Kidnappers took two diamond rings worth $92,000 before releasing the wife of millionaire North York mayor Mel Lastman, but failed Tuesday to call for a large sum of money the 37-year-old blonde socialite promised in negotiating her own release.

Several calls were received at their heavily-guarded $120,000 suburban home, but none concerned a ransom promised to the two abductors by Marilyn Lastman before they released her Monday night, about 10 hours after she was taken from her home.

At a news conference in the Lastman home, Police Chief Harold Adamson explained that he had earlier denied any indication of ransom, in the interest of Mrs. Lastman's safety.

Police would give no indication as to the amount of money promised to the kidnappers and would not release their description.

HONG KONG — Australian journalist Francis James arrived in this British colony today from China where he spent more than three years on spying charges. He collapsed from fatigue on crossing the border and was taken to hospital where he was reported "quite comfortable."

LOS ANGELES — Singer Clara Ward, 48, who brought gospel music out of the churches and into night clubs and concert halls, died Tuesday following a stroke.

Her mother, Gertrude, formed the singing group in the 1920s and Clara joined it with her sister at the age of five. In the 1940s and 50s they sang mostly in Philadelphia area churches as the singers became known.

SANTO DOMINGO — Actress Jane Fonda got a quick divorce Tuesday from Roger Vadim, the French movie director she married in 1965.

Miss Fonda and Tom Hayden, a fellow anti-war militant, have announced plans to marry.

A source said Miss Fonda arrived in Santa Domingo Monday using the name Jane S. Plemiannikov. With advance arrangement, a Dominican divorce can be obtained in a matter of hours.

PHILADELPHIA — In honor of the man who publicly loathed Philadelphia the most, a group of civic boosters is sponsoring its second annual W. C. Fields Memorial Birthday Party.

The event, scheduled for Jan. 29, will be complete with child-insulting and dog-kicking contests. Both events commemorate the late comedians's often-expressed dislike for children and animals. Fields, born in Philadelphia in 1880, died in 1946.

His Liberal opponent, Terry McGrath, spent $16,347.53, while NDP candidate Martin Dolan managed his campaign on $1,156.

There was no report on the expenses of Communist party candidate Tony Seed.

OTTAWA — Dr. Hiroko Watanabe, a Vancouverite now working in Nashville, Tenn., and Dr. Ronald Mark Becker of Montreal have been awarded medals by the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada.

Linemen All A-Quiver

LONDON — Electricity power supply workers in Britain are being issued with crossbows. They are being used to shoot power lines from pylon to pylon over busy highways instead of halting traffic while the cables are lugged across by hand.

HIRE-A-KILLER CHARGE

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Germantown Mayor Bruce Law has been arrested on charges of attempting to contract for the death of a man and a woman.

He was picked up in the court square of downtown Memphis and charged with "soliciting for the purpose of commiting first-degree murder."

"He was trying to get somebody to do somebody in," chief of detectives Hrris Cole said. "I'd rather not use any names."

Homicide captain Robert Cochrane, identified the two intended victims as "a woman and a man" but refused to reveal their identities.

Law has been mayor of the plush Memphis suburb of Germantown since 1958. An attorney, he also has a law practice in downtown Memphis.

'Legal Right Plea' Likely in Bugging

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — James McCord, one of the two remaining defendants in the Watergate trial, will try to argue that he had a legal reason to bug Democratic Party headquarters because he was trying to protect Republican officials from possible danger, his lawyer said Tuesday.

Explaining the "relatively unused theory" of the "law of duress," Gerald Alch said, "if one is under reasonable apprehension, regardless of whether he is in fact correct, he is justified in breaking a law to avoid the greater harm — in this case violence directed at Republican officials up to and including the president."

Alch's statement to reporters was one of series of developments on the seventh day of the trial before Judge John Sirica.

A metropolitan policeman Tuesday gave the first public account of how he and two other officers searched the Democratic national committee's offices in the Watergate last June 17 and arrested five men, including McCord, inside, with one of them saying, "keep your cool, you got us."

Shortly before the afternoon session began Tuesday, Sirica called the lawyers to the bench to discuss distributing a transcript he had made of tapes of an interview the Los Angeles Times conducted with Baldwin.

The defence sought the tapes on the grounds that Baldwin's statements could be useful in impeaching his testimony.

"There are one or two names mentioned and I'm going to call them to the attention of government counsel for whatever action they think appropriate, Sirica said.

As a key government witness, Baldwin has been interrogated at length by the prosecutors. The judge did not elaborate on the names.

The fullest account given of how five men were arrested inside the Democratic offices was given by officer John Barrett of the metropolitan police.

Barrett said he and two other police officers responded to a radio call and arrived at the Watergate at about 1:45 a.m.

After a quick briefing from a security guard, Barrett said, the officers — dressed in casual plain clothes — began surveying the building.

Barrett said he was called to the sixth floor, the location of the Democratic Party offices, where a door from the stairs to office corridors was taped open and "scratch marks were apparent" on the lock.

Barrett said he drew his service revolver "because I felt this might be something good, that there might be someone in there."

Finally, Barrett said, he came to a spot in the office where a cubicle for a secretary had been created with a partition, steel on the bottom and frosted glass on top.

"I was hesitant to go around that corner. I just had a feeling," he testified.

While he hesitated, Barrett said, "an arm appeared . . . just inches from my face. I jumped back . . . I yelled out, 'hold it, police.' I saw numerous hands . . . I said, 'come out.'"

Border Clerks Seek Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — About 200 immigration officers now classified as clerks are demanding more money from the government, saying they should be upgraded to the level of program administrators.

The officers say they would receive between $1,364 and $1,821 a year more if they were placed in the higher category.

The officers say their union, the Public Service Alliance of Canada, and the immigration department both feel they should be reclassified upward. But treasury board, which must agree to the reclassification, has not made a move in five years to have them upgraded.

The officers say government regulations state that persons with their powers should not be in clerical categories.

"These are the men who take all the flak if they make a wrong evaluation with some traveller trying to get into Canada," a spokesman for the PSCA said.

They must be familiar with about 10 federal acts, including the Criminal Code, and have the power to direct arrests, he said.

Potting Shed Offers That Something Extra

Half the pleasure of having a greenhouse is the construction of a bench, shelves and bins suited exactly to their purposes. As opposed to the same type of equipment built into the average home, these amenities can be of a height and width to suit you.

Only in a custom built home do we have the comfort of literally "every convenience" — then we consider ourselves superlatively blessed.

If yours is a greenhouse without a potting shed, as are too many amateur structures, plan to build one now, of used materials, if necessary, from demolition firms.

Plan the size according to the amount of use you expect to get from the structure. If you want to raise many vegetables, herbs and flowers from early indoors-started seeds, you will be making soil mixes for seeding and pricking out; you'll be making wood flats and seed boxes, and you'll have a stack of flower pots.

Once you've decided on a rough size, make up your mind just where it is to be built.

For economy of material, convenience of work combined with general utility, the shed should be attached to the north end of the greenhouse, where it will not interrupt angled bright light across the bench for this fine work.

Be sure to put in the largest glass window space you can, for the advantage of north light over the work bench will soon be apparent. Sunshine can actually hinder the work of seeding and pricking out, for it becomes unbearable to have low angled bright light across the bench for this fine work.

Build the bench suited to your own height. You cannot stand on a stool to work, and I've never seen a nurseryman who sat on a stool for these jobs.

An inch or so of difference can be made up with a closely slatted wood platform which serves also to keep feet warmer and dryer than standing on concrete or damp soil.

Two bins beneath the bench, and a small one at the end for sand, are needed to hold soil from the compost heap before and after sterilizing.

Shelves to the roof should be adjacent to the bench, the lowest one for bench tools. You need them close at hand, yet the bench must be clear too. Tools include a short handled scoop for mixing, bench screen for breaking down compost lumps to fine soil, wood tamping block for firming soil in seed box and flat corners and over newly sown seeds.

Pricking-out dibbers, sturdy pocket knife, black marking pencil, packets of wood seed labels, a hand magnifying glass — these are other necessities for encouraging skillful work. And don't overlook the old whisk to keep the bench reasonably smooth and clean.

A water tap and an old sink with adequate drainage are refinements to appreciate, and not merely luxuries.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, we have an example of an expert type of play known as "rectifying the count." By definition, this phrase refers to the deliberate concession of a trick to the opponents in order to reach a position where one might gain information on the distribution of the opponents' cards. Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

♡ K J 7

◇ 10 4
♣ Q 7 5 4

SOUTH
◇ A J 6
♣ A J 8 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ◇.

Upon winning the opening lead with the diamond queen, declarer perceived that he could never make more than twelve tricks: two spades, three hearts, three diamonds, and four clubs. Of greater importance, however, was the fact that unless he could bring home four club tricks, he would go down to defeat. And the bringing home of four club tricks required locating the club queen.

With the aim of getting a count of the defenders' distribution (via a "rectification of the count"), at trick two declarer led a low spade off dummy. When East followed suit with the eight-spot, South put up the nine (with, of course, no expectation of winning the trick). West's jack captured the nine.

West exited with a diamond, dummy's king winning. The king of spades was cashed next, and this was followed by a spade to South's ace. When East discarded a heart on the latter lead, West was known to have started with four spades originally.

South now cashed the ace of diamonds, upon which he discarded the board's remaining spade. On this trick East discarded another heart. With East being known to have started with exactly two spades and two diamonds, West was known to have been dealt four spades and six diamonds.

Next came the ace, king, and queen of hearts, West discarding a diamond on the third heart lead. So West had been dealt four spades, two hearts, and six diamonds. The deuce of clubs was now led to dummy's king, West following suit with the six-spot. All of West's original thirteen card were now known — and the club queen was not one of them.

The ten of clubs was then led, and a successful finesse taken against West's queen. Now came another club, and East's remaining Q-7 was ambushed by South's A-J.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Keith was looking out of the window. "You've changed your patio," he said. "It used to be square."

"A dirty word these days, but you're right." Ron chuckled. "We made it four feet longer and took off three feet in width, so it's just one square foot bigger than it was."

What were the new dimensions?

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: GAME was 1093.

False Pregnancy

I once had in my library a big thick book on "pseudocyesis", or "phantom pregnancy." The condition is rare, and I have seen only one case of it during my long life in medicine. That case was in a consultation with an eminent physician, who had angered a patient by jeering at her "foolishness." When I saw her great mental distress, I told her that I surely hoped that she would prove to be pregnant.

What had happened was that when she was around 40, she had married a widower of 50 who, by his first wife, had had no children. When his new wife learned that he was very anxious to have a son, she became so anxious to give him that son that she became convinced that she was pregnant.

When the able doctor examined her and found a normal-sized womb and no signs of pregnancy, except for a distended abdomen, he knew that the enlarged abdomen was not due to pregnancy, but to some psychic cause. I have seen such abdominal distention in dozens of hysterical women; what causes it? It is not due to gas, because X-ray studies have shown no extra gas in the bowel. It is due to a contraction of muscles in the back.

After awhile, the woman with the false pregnancy telephoned me to say that she had stopped menstruating (which can happen to a women who is under psychic strain), and she was feeling "movement" in her abdomen. Later, she telephoned to say she was going into labor, and she begged me to come and help her deliver her much-desired child.

When I saw her, she did indeed look as if she were pregnant, and about to go into labor. But soon, I saw disaster come to her. I knew from much experience with women with temporary hysterical bloating that with an anesthetic, an injection of morphine or a spell of vomiting, these women tend to go suddenly flat.

And so, when my poor patient vomited, her abdomen suddenly went flat, and the great sorrow, disappointment and pain in her face were very distressing to see. I comforted her as much as I could, but she had to face the fact that she would not be giving her husband the son he so much wanted.

DEFENCE CONTRACTS BID TO BOOST WEST GROWTH

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson said Tuesday he would have difficulty awarding a major contract for defence equipment to a supplier who did not guarantee to produce some of the product in western Canada.

The minister made the statement to reporters after saying in the Commons there must be more government spending in the west to strengthen the area's industrial capability.

The MP from Winnipeg South, asked what would happen if an aircraft company said it could not build part of a plane for the armed forces in the west, replied that the company would not get the contract.

The minister was continuing with a theme that was part of his thinking when he was minister of supply and services and succeeded in decentralizing some government purchasing from central Canada. But he said in the Commons the government has not yet done enough.

Richardson said the west needs to develop secondary industry and made it clear that where possible work will come from defence contracts.

Asked about the Atlantic provinces, which did not figure highly in his remarks, he said that area has received in the past an extensive share of military expenditures because of naval operations there.

He tended to identify the west with matters dealing with the air forces.

Lid Finally Rises On Ellsberg Case

Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — With a new jury and a determination to score points against U.S. involvement in Vietnam, Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo go on trail here today for disclosing the top-secret Pentagon Papers.

It has been 19 months since the administration failed in its efforts to stop newspaper publication of the defence department history of the U.S. role in Southeast Asia.

But only now will many of the issues they posed — including government secrecy and restrictions on the first amendment's guarantee of freedom of the press—be litigated and perhaps tentatively resolved.

Ellsberg and Russo are charged in a 15-count indictment with conspiracy, espionage and theft of government property.

The case was brought here because the government contends that it was in this federal, judicial district that the defendants, both former researchers at the Rand Corporation "think-tank" in Santa Monica, conducted their illegal conspiracy between March 1969 and September 1970.

There is no mention in the indictment of how the Washington Post, the New York Times and other newspapers obtained the secret study, a matter that has been the focus of another, currently suspended, grand jury investigation in Boston.

Rather, the case centres on Ellsberg's and Russo's dealings with each other, with Lynda Sinay, the Los Angeles advertising woman who rented them a photocopying machine to duplicate the papers, and with Vu Van Thai, a former South Vietnamese ambassador to Washington whom Ellsberg allegedly showed one of the most sensitive of the study's 47 volumes.

The trial, much delayed by debate over legal issues, disclosures of government wiretaps that overheard a defence attorney and dismissal of the first jury before it heard a word of evidence, is expected to be long — perhaps two months or more — dramatic and emotional.

Unlike the controversial Chicago and Harrisburg conspiracy cases against anti-war activists, there will be no secret government informers and relatively little dispute over the facts charged in the indictment.

But with major questions of public policy at stake, the Pentagon papers trial, presided over by Judge W. Matt Byrne, could become one of the most significant court battles of the Vietnam war era.

Ellsberg and Russo have come to realize that their disclosure of the Pentagon Papers probably had only minimal effect on the course of the war.

Their team of seven defence lawyers feel that the same is true of the trial, that the court proceedings themselves cannot realistically be expected to influence the peace negotiations or their outcome.

Still, the defendants hope that they will be able to talk of their intentions and motives, of their own conversion on the war after their exposure to it in Vietnam and at home, thus intensifying the national revulsion to the conflict.

C.D. Orchard, Dies at 79

Dr. C. D. (Dick) Orchard, the man credited with being the "chief architect" of the province's substained yield forest management program, has died aged 79, at Veterans' Hospital.

After almost 40 years in the forestry service, Orchard was the first B.C. deputy of forests and chief forester to serve out his full term.

The Hon. Gordon Sloan, then Royal Commissioner on B.C. Forest Resources, said of Orchard:

"It was his insistence that such a policy (substained yield) be inauguarated that led to the creation of the 1944-1945 commission and it was largely upon his shoulders that the onerous responsibility rested of translating the broad outlines of my 1945 recommendations into detailed legislation acceptable to the government."

Sloan described Orchard as a "sincere and dedicated man of sterling honesty who diligently performed his responsible and arduous duties."

Born in New Brunswick in 1893, Orchard moved to B.C. in 1920, after graduating from the University of New Brunswick, to join the provincial forest service.

He was a charter member of the Registered Foresters of B.C., a member of the Vancouver and Quadra No. 2 Masonic Lodge, the Canadian Institute of Foresters and the John Howard Society.

ORCHARD

Predeceased by his daughter, Audrey Jean, three years ago, he is survived by his wife, Phyllis Jean, two sons, E. R. (Ray) of Victoria and Lloyd of London, England, six grandchildren, and a brother, Rev. Dr. Frank Orchard of Nova Scotia.

A private service conducted by Padre J. A. Roberts will be followed by cremation.

Battle Looms Over Cosmetics

TORONTO (CP) — Creditors of bankrupt Koscot Interplanetary of Canada (1971) Ltd. were told Tuesday there is some question as to whether the company's main asset—an inventory of cosmetics—belongs to the trustee in the bankruptcy or to the distributors who form the main body of creditors.

Trustee Bruce Buckley gave the creditors details of the continuing collapse of the Canadian Koscot pyramid and seven related companies that were declared bankrupt Monday.

A further complication is a claim of more than $140,000 by the province of Ontario for sales tax.

The company operated a pyramid selling scheme with distributors recruiting additional distributors, each paying sums of up to $5,000 to the company. They received for their money 10 per cent of the amount paid in cosmetics plus the right to sell products and distributorships.

Some 200 creditors attended the meeting that reflected a jovial mood. Many applauded when the trustee read the statement detailing the company's financial affairs.

Mr. Buckley said the inventory has a retail value of more than $4 million and might be offered to creditors on a cash basis or sold retail.

Whether it is the property of the bankrupt estate or whether it is the property of the distributors who had paid money into the company will be decided by the courts.

Tree Kills Faller

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Raymond Werner Tramm, 43, of Birch Island, was killed Monday when a tree he was cutting fell on him while he was working for Clearwater Timber products about 75 miles northeast of Kamloops.

A Slow Trip From Fame To Paranoia

New York Times

NEW YORK — Fifteen years ago Milton Blackstone was clearly at the top among entertainment publicists. A clever, personable man whom friends called "a genius", Blackstone guided Eddie Fisher to stardom and was the acknowledged man-behind-the-scenes whose ideas converted Grossinger's from a small summer hotel in the Catskills to an international year-round resort.

Today Milton Blackstone is in debt and living in a fourth-rate hotel on Manhattan's west side, the sole occupant of a 20-bed dormitory adjoining a steam room. His friends say that in recent years he has undergone a dramatic personality change, becoming increasingly withdrawn, occasionally paranoid and, at times, severely emaciated.

LINK

The causes of his condition are not clear, but Blackstone's two brothers believe it is connected with the treatment he has been receiving for 20 years from Dr. Max Jacobson, the 72-year-old Manhattan practitioner recently described in the New York Times as physician to a long list of celebrities and others. Jacobson treats his patients by injections that he says contain vitamins, hormones and often amphetamines.

Many of Dr. Jacobson's patients have had high praise for the care he has given them, including Blackstone who, while refusing to discuss details of his relationship with the doctor, said the doctor "saved his life" and is "more than a friend."

However, a few of Jacobson's former patients have complained of bad reactions to the injections, including excessive talkativeness, severe weight loss, paranoia and a dependence on the shots.

They said they had tried to tell hospital officials, private physicians and medical societies, among others, but, as the wife of one patient put it, "No one wanted to hear about it. They all looked at me as if I were nuts."

CONVINCED

Blackstone's brothers and many old friends said they are convinced that the effects of Jacobson's injections were ultimately responsible for the patient's change from a financial, professional and personal success to the relatively inactive, isolated soul they said he is now. Whether his brothers were right or wrong cannot be determined since Blackstone who is 66 years old, has yet to undergo the thorough independent medical examination they have sought for eight years. What can be said however, is that no matter where they had turned for help, they got none. Their pleas until recently went unanswered by both legal and medical authorities.

One friend, James McKnight, who had known Blackstone well since the early 1940s, had an especially close look at what was happening. On a number of occasions he accompanied his friend to Jacobson's office and to his home and saw Blackstone get injections.

"After he had a shot, you couldn't shut him up. You couldn't get a word in edgewise," McNight reported.

"He would rant and rave incessantly . . .

SHAKES

"Then, a couple of hours later, he would go back to the hotel and all of a sudden Milton was like a man dying: He would shake from head to toe, lie in bed almost in a state of inertia, terribly depressed."

McKnight also said, "I've heard Milton Blackstone call this doctor at all hours and plead with him to let him come for a shot. He would plead like a baby pleads for milk. Sometimes he would visit the doctor twice a day."

About seven years ago a psychiatrist examined Blackstone. The diagnosis was "paranoid schizophrenia" — he suggested that Blackstone be put in a sanatorium and withdraw from the injections. Blackstone reportedly told the psychiatrist he was the one who needed help, and left.

PARANOID

Another of Blackstone's friends of more than two decades, himself a psychiatrist, said that when he last saw Blackstone, in 1965, "he had a paranoid psychosis." He continued, "I knew he was getting injections from Max Jacobson, but I didn't really know what was in them. To me it sounded like amphetamines, but I couldn't prove it." The psychiatrist said he never told the Medical Society about it because "I was not his doctor, I was a friend of the family. It wouldn't make sense for me to report it."

The Board of Censors of the Medical Society of New York County now has asked Jacobson to appear before it to answer "allegations of unethical conduct — the indiscriminate use of amphetamines." The society expects the doctor to appear next month.

Chrysler Warns Of Defects

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. Tuesday began notifyiing owners of 6,263 current-model cars of defects that could cause loss of steering control and a throttle running wide open.

Chrysler advised 5,512 owners of 1973 model Plymouth Satellite and Dodge Charger and Cornet cars their vehicles may contain lower control arm pivot shafts which may have been improperly heat treated.

This could cause the pivot shaft to break with a subsequent loss of steering control. Only about 10 per cent of the car being recalled are believed to have the defect, which was discovered at an assembly plant.

Chrysler also planned to warn 751 owners of 1973 model Plymouth Fury and Dodge Polara and Monaco cars equipped with 318 cubic-inch V-8 engines and automatic transmissions.

Pollution Ruling Leaves Ont. Hazy

TORONTO (CP) — Environment minister James Auld says the Ontario government doesn't know where it stands on pollution programs following a decision by an Ontario judge dealing with jurisdiction of environmental laws.

"We have a program involving just about every industrial operation of any size in the province over water and air," Mr. Auld said in an interview.

"At worst, it would more or less put my ministry out of business."

After meeting with attorney-general Dalton Bales, Mr. Auld said the decision made last week by Provincial Court Judge J. L. Glendenning of Picton, Ont., will be challenged in the courts.

Cleanup orders against industrial wastes alone commit Ontario companies to spending estimated at $210 million in the next five years. There are additional orders against municipalities.

Environment Canada "would be very unhappy" to inherit the bulk of environmental protection across Canada, said Jack Davis, federal environment minister.

"Our role is really to work with the provinces."

The judge also ruled that environmental pollution of all types is of pressing national concern and therefore a federal jurisdiction under the British North America Act.

In Ottawa, justice minister Otto Lang told the Commons Monday that he will consider the decision before deciding whether to refer it directly to the Supreme Court of Canada.

OIL QUOTA BOOSTED

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon proclaimed a 93,000-barrel-a-day increase today in imports of Canadian crude and unfinished oils destined for states east of the Rockies.

An administration spokesman said this would, in effect, mean as much capacity as the pipeline can hold.

The quota for Canadian crude will be 675,000 barrels a day averaged over all of 1973. The former quota was 581,000.

In addition to the added imports expected from Canada through the higher quota, the United States estimates supplies from other parts of the world will be increased by 822,000 barrels daily to a daily total of somewhat more than two million barrels.

Imports on the U.S. West Coast are increased to 800,000 barrels daily during 1973 from 717,000 in 1972.

Meanwhile, some progress has been made on a U.S.-Canada agreement to share oil supplies in an emergency, Deputy Minister Jack Austin said today.

Mail Dispute Erupts Into Wildcat Strikes

Postal workers picket main Toronto terminal

Times News Services

Canada's postal service moved closer to a shutdown today, as wildcat strikes halted mail movement in both Vancouver and Toronto.

The long-simmering dispute came to a boil Tuesday, with the two sides accusing each other of causing the interruption. Postal workers across Canada have been legally able to strike since Dec. 21.

In Vancouver, where the walkout is expected to end tonight, Emile Le Hingrat, spokesman for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the strike was called after workers received word that the treasury board will not accept part of a conciliation board report in the contract dispute.

A post office spokesman in Victoria said service here was continuing normally today. However, mail for Vancouver Island points from the rest of Canada was being delayed by the mainland walkout.

RENEGING

Vancouver post office officials said this morning that "as long as the work stoppage continues the Vancouver and New Westminster main post offices and postal stations will remain closed and there will be no mail deliveries."

The postal unions said the government was reneging on an earlier commitment to accept a conciliation board report as the basis for negotiations, by refusing a section on job classification grievances.

The government charged that the unions had rejected the same clause.

No date for a resumption of talks was announced.

In a news release, the Council of Postal Unions CPU said government negotiators had refused to go along with the report and were trying to twist it to suit their purposes.

Later, Claude Parent, chief treasury board negotiator, emerged from a private meeting with Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet to say the union negotiating committee had demanded "as a price for further negotiations" that the government make immediate concessions beyond the terms of the majority report of the conciliation board.

NO UNION REPLY

A treasury board spokesman said the unions have not replied to a complete set of proposals presented Monday. Instead, they've accused the board of twisting the report.

Roger Decarie, a co-chairman of the CPU, said the only sound contract offers the government has made were presented in December.

He said the unions would not accept the conciliation board report if it is changed, saying it was a case of all or nothing.

The talks, which resumed Thursday, were the first face-to-face netotiations since mid-December, and the breakdown came only one day after the postmaster-general had announced the government would accept the conciliation board's majority report.

In a national vote earlier this month, the rank and file postal workers turned down the recommendation of their negotiating team to reject the conciliation board proposals. The vote was close — 11,200 to 9,500 — but with the majority going for acceptance of the report, it left the union

UIC Bill Tightens Rules

Times News Service

OTTAWA — Persons who quit their jobs without just cause or get fired for misconduct will not be eligible for unemployment insurance benefits according to a bill introduced today by the government.

The bill, which was given routine first reading, also would give the Unemployment Insurance Commission the power to make regulations defining when claimants are available for work and what kind of work qualifies as being suitable to replace lost jobs.

Manpower Minister Robert Andras, said the commission might give a person four or six weeks to come up with a job in the same area or in the same salary range that he left, then insist that he take other kinds of jobs or be cut off from UIC benefits.

The bill also proposes several adjustments in designation of benefit periods.

One of the provisions would prohibit a person from receiving benefits for a period of more than 53 weeks. Under current regulations a person can conceivably receive benefits over an 83-week period, although he would only be eligible for the UIC maximum of 51 weekly payments within that period.

Earlier, Agriculture Minister E. F. Whelan called on western grain producers to produce "all the wheat they can produce" this spring.

At the same time he urged them to produce even larger quantities of seed grains than they grew in previous years.

"Except for that reservation my theme to producers is to produce grain for all they are worth, and by the way I hope money lenders both east and west are listening. There is a clear message for them.

"The message is have faith in Canada's agricultural producers and give them the backing they deserve, because I intend to do this as long as I am minister of agriculture," said Whelan.

He spoke in the second last day of the throne speech debate Tuesday. He pointed out that ever since he had become minister of agriculture prices to the farmers have improved considerably.

"I urge farmers this spring to produce grain to beat the band; all types of grains," said the minister.

"Knowing the capacity and urge of Canadian farmers to produce I feel it in my bones that farmers will grow and deliver record quantities of grain both in the east and the west.

"This government will sell record amounts of grain again this year. And let no one belittle the efforts made by this government to improve the meteoric rise in cash income gains made from grain sales these past two years," said Whelan.

The Trudeau government faces its third confidence vote in a week today as the Commons winds up eight days of debate on the speech from the throne.

Barring some unforseen development the minority Liberal administration is expected to survive with NDP support, as it did on the two previous votes.

Barrett Has Hurt Tanker Case: Grit

Anderson said he is writing immediately to the premier, asking why he saw fit to prejudice both federal government and private efforts to prevent U.S. supertankers bringing Alaskan oil down the B.C. coast to refineries at Cherry Point.

He will also ask Barrett if he has "any private knowledge" on which to base his apparent acceptance of the "inevitability" of the tanker traffic.

One of the most damaging statements made by Barrett at the talks, Anderson said, was his claim that the federal government doesn't know what it is talking about on the general subject of the proposed oil tanker route and its effect on B.C.

He said that thanks in part to his own efforts, Ottawa "knows a damn sight more than Barrett on this particular subject."

Anderson said such inaccurate statements by the premier had given the U.S. useful ammunition.

"They are going to be able to say, 'Don't worry about the Canadians — we have this rube from the backwoods who is attacking their federal efforts. We've driven a wedge between the Canadians'."

Anderson also rapped Barrett for stating that it is useless to try to contest the tanker issue in the courts, pointing out that such efforts had already stalled the tankers for three years.

He pointed out that his own suit against the U.S. secretary of the interior is now before the U.S. Court of Appeal and would likely go as high as the Supreme Court. He said neither Barrett nor anyone else knows what the outcome of these efforts will be.

In his comments Anderson castigated the B.C. premier for asking Evans to present a brief to the U.S. Federal Power Commission on B.C.'s opposition to the proposed flooding of the Skagit Valley in B.C. by Seattle City Light.

The province can and should appear before the FPC to state its own case, he said.

DRUG LAW TYPO DELAYS CASE

OTTAWA — A legal problem, which interrupted a marijuana possession case in Surrey, was caused by an editorial error in the Revised Statutes of Canada 1970, a justice department official said today.

Provincial Judge Arthur Kelly of Surrey adjourned a marijuana possession case Monday for clarification of what he called the "sloppy legislation."

Judge Kelly would not allow a case against Robert James McBride and Josephine Jarvis of Surrey to go ahead as a summary conviction matter because a sub-section in the Narcotic Control Act describes possession of a narcotic as an indictable offence.

A person cannot be convicted in a lower court upon summary conviction for an offence which is indictable. The accused has an option to go to a higher court on an indictable matter.

D. H. Christie, a deputy attorney-general, said the original wording of the Narcotic Control Act as passed by Parliament is correct.

He said that when amendments to federal legislation were compiled in the Revised Statutes, the word "indictable" accidentally crept in.

The judge ordered the case adjourned to Feb. 23 for clarification and arguement by the prosecutor in the case.

Christie said the word indictable should not have been included in the sub-section. The French wording is "une

HYDRO SEES POWER DROP

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro anticipates it will have to provide 9.3 per cent more power for its customers each year for the next 11 years.

This would be less than the 11 per cent per year compound growth rate for the past 10 years. The growth in peak demand, the amount that is needed to meet the highest requirement for an instant in time, has grown by 9.9 per cent yearly in the past decade.

The annual forecast is made by the provincially-owned utility to guide its planners in developing new electrical power sources.

The report says that in 1983 Hydro's customers will use 47,601 million kilowatt hours of power compared with the 17,872 KWH used in the 12 months which ended March 31, 1972.

For the year ending next March 31, total consumption is expected to be 19,984 million KWH.

Hydro's officials make a number of assumptions in producing their estimates, among them that there will be no changes in the utility's practices, policies and existing rate schedules.

The estimate also assumes that despite current high unemployment, the economic outlook is one of sustained expansion. Environmental concern is not expected to result in any significant reduction in demand for electricity.

A review of this year's forecast against the rate of the past 10 years shows a drop in bulk users where the forecast growth is for 10.5 per cent annually compared with 15.3 per cent in the past decade.

In other categories, residential is predicted to grow at 9.2 per cent annually for the next 11 years compared with a recorded 9.5 per cent and general commercial growth is forecast at 8.1 per cent yearly compared with a recorded 9.3 per cent.

Emergency Fuel Airlift

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Maj. D. M. Owen of the Newfoundland Emergency Measures Organization says a Canadian Forces helicopter will fly heating oil to the communities of Beaumont and Fichot Island in northern Newfoundland today. Seat transport to both isolated settlements has been halted by heavy ice.

Chabot Lashes Dowding

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Social Credit MLA Jim Chabot today unleashed a stinging attack on Speaker Gordon Dowding, saying Dowding has "abused the taxpayers' money" by travelling to India as part of a study of parliamentary practices.

Chabot was reacting to criticism voiced Tuesday by Dowding of the fact that Chabot released to the press details of the report of a special subcommittee on legislative practices.

Chabot called Dowding "a man who is inclined to participate in partisan politics", which Chabot said is not the role of a speaker of the house. And he said Dowding is "attempting to create a rift" among the members of the subcommittee of which Chabot was the chairman.

Chabot released details of his subcommittee's report to the press last Thursday. Dowding charged Tuesday that the report should have been discussed first by the legislative assembly before being released, and accused Chabot of "a breach of privilege of the house."

The Socred MLA for Columbia River said in a telephone interview from Invermere that Dowding's charges are "an unrealistic statement." He said Dowding "doesn't understand the legislation by which our committee was established." The subcommittee was established under Dowding, not as a committee of the house, Chabot said, and therefore their report should not have to go to the house first.

He said he made his subcommittee's report available to Dowding when it was completed and then released it to the press. "It isn't my fault that he is travelling around the world and wasn't able to receive the report because he was in New Delhi," Chabot said.

Chabot said he "can't see any relationship" between parliament in India and the B.C. legislative assembly. The Indian house has some 500 members while B.C. has 55 "and we're just not living in the same kind of world as they are," he said.

The former Socred labor minister said Dowding's trip across Canada to visit other provincial legislatures was worthwhile, but the trip to India was not. Dowding returned from India last week, after a visit of several days.

MOST DDT DESTROYED

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence research board is approaching the end of a program of destroying almost all the DDT stocks in Canada.

The longer-than-expected program was announced in 1971 but staff and other problems have slowed the process.

The board said this week that about 65 per cent of the 107,000 gallons of liquid DDT held by the armed forces in 1971 now has been destroyed in its facility at Suffield, Alta.

The environment department said most of the liquid DDT in the country now is at Suffield, near Medicine Hat. Most of this had been held by the armed forces which used it to control biting flies at northern bases.

DDT was virtually banned in Canada in late 1969. It now can be used only in specific cases, such as the control of some worms and bats, and only under controlled conditions.

In the system, DDT contaminants are burned and the burned matter is cooled by water. There is said to be no pollution from destruction of the pollutant, the only side products being a dilute acid, carbon dioxide and water vapor.

Small stocks of DDT in dust form are being maintained in selected depots across the country. This is used primarily for the control of body lice and health officials asked the department to save some in case of emergencies.

TAX TIPS

This information is supplied by the federal department of national revenue. If further details are required, contact the Victoria District Taxation Office between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at 388-3551. For those living outside the Victoria exchange area, ask the long-distance operator for Zenith 0-4000 and the call will be placed without charge.

Q. I am divorced and am supporting an 18-year-old daughter who is attending university. She resides in my domestic establishment only during vacation time. She had no income during the year. Can I claim the equivalent married exemption even though she does not reside with me during the whole year?

A. Yes. A dependent child who is attending school or university will be considered as having been supported in your self-contained domestic establishment.

Q. In what way has the income limitation changed?

A. Perhaps the simplest way to explain the new rule is to deal with wholly dependent children under 16 years of age first, then with children 16 years of age or over at the end of the year.

If a dependent child is under 16 years of age, the personal exemption allowable is $300 provided the child's net income for the year is not more than $1,000. However, if the child's net income is more than $1,000, but not more than $1,600, the exemption of $300 must be reduced by one-half of the child's net income over $1,000. If a child's net income for the year is greater than $1,600, the child is not qualified as a dependant.

Mazda Pins Future On Rotary Power

TORONTO (CP) — Mazda Motors of Canada Ltd. has set a 1976 target of 100,000 sales of its rotary-engine automobiles in Canada, John W. Browne, director and general manager, said Monday.

He also told a news conference that the days of the piston-powered automobile are numbered in North America.

"The piston engine principle was desgned to power the locomotive. The rotary engine was designed to power an automobile."

Mazda expects to sell 13,000 cars with rotary engines in Canada this year. It is the only company distributing rotary-powered cars in North America, although General Motors Corp. has made a commitment to have the Wankel engine as an option in its 1975-model Vegas.

With refinements in the exhaust system, Browne said, the company will be able to produce cars that will easily meet the emission control standards set for 1975-76.

Alberta's Old Bottles Create New Industries

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta's New universal-depot rebate system for wine, liquor and soft drink containers is designed to keep the province clean, but it also could create new industries and expand existing ones.

The bottle-return legislation went into effect Jan. 2, and Dave Beck, general manager of the company overseeing container collections, says the sudden availability of a new source of cheap glass has stirred glass bead manufacturers in Austria and the United States.

Glass beads are used to increase the light-reflecting capability of highway warning signs and lane markers.

Beck said representatives from several companies already have visited Alberta to examine possible land sites.

Two sites under consideration are Fort Macleod and Redcliff, where Dominion Glass Co. Ltd. already operates a bottle manufacturing plant.

'We'd probably be able to sell up to 12 million pounds of clear glass a year to them (the Austrian and U.S. companies)," Beck said.

"And we'd get a higher F.O.B. price than Dominion's $15-a-ton offer."

Beck said it isn't economical for Contain-A-Way to sell glass to Dominion at existing rates because the manufacturing firm also requires suppliers to undertake the costly task of removing impurities.

Clear glass collected from more than 120 universal depots in the province now is being dumped at landfill sites, although stucco firms are buying up the colored glass.

Meanwhile, Beck said, tens of thousands of wine and liquor bottles are being returned to the depots, expected to number 160 by month's end. Consumers get a five-cent rebate on each bottle.

Hotels represent the biggest single source of wine and liquor bottles and it is here that an enterprising truck owner could possibly increase his revenue.

Beck said hotels still are undecided whether to deliver their own empties or give the job to truckers, who would pay two cents a bottle in return for pocketing the five-cent rebate.

Contain-A-Way gets a straight fee based on volume, paid both by the Alberta Liquor Control Board and by soft-drink manufacturers through a special trust fund.

Stranger in the City That Once Was 'Home'

ITEM: An overnight visit to Vancouver, a fine hotel room with a box-seat view over the Court House, yet for the very first time I felt a stranger in the city where I spent most of my life.

Our view took in the black, forbidding shaft of the Toronto-Dominion skyscraper. Vancouverites have learned to live with it, they say, but it is an intimidating structure, a monument only to the real estate developers and a city council that let them have their way.

Bad as it is, the Toronto-Dominion building is not as loathsome as another enormous waterfront concrete high-rise that has all but eliminated that famous view down Granville Street across to the north shore mountains. "How could they, how could they?" my wife asked of no one in particular when we first saw it.

In the West End, visiting friends, I felt a terrible sense of claustrophobia, of an existence reduced to cellular living. We looked directly acrosss into another enormous apartment block where, in cell after cell, people sat in front of television screens, as if they had been installed there.

Spoiled as I am by Victoria, I found the pace of Vancouver appalling. In the morning, sitting by our window, idly wondering what child had designed the Court House fountain, I was astonished to see people running — running! — to work.

"There are people out here running to work," I shouted at my wife over the roar of traffic on Georgia Street. "I think we'd better get an earlier ferry," my wife shouted back and we did.

ITEM: How ironical that it should have been a Conservative — one Ian Arrol, of York East — to come up with the most important proposition to be put to the House of Commons in years, a proposition that seems to have earned no more than three paragraphs in any paper across the country.

Arrol's idea is that we should totally renounce militarism, abolish our defence department and place our forces under the sole direction of the United Nations for use in peace-keeping operations. And why not? If we sincerely believe in a world without war we ought to do something more than merely paying lip-service to it. If only as a precedent for other small powers it would have a profound effect.

My hunch is that there are tens of thousands of Canadians in search of an identity who would find, at long last, that sense of national pride through a phasing out of our ridiculous and out-dated military establishment.

ITEM: Several queries about the repeat shows of "Maude", a disappointment to those of us who consider it the best of any continuing series on television. And good news today from Marv Cavendar, production representative of the series in Los Angeles, that the repeats were made necessary by the CBS technicians' strike. Now that there's been a settlement new programs are in the works, beginning with an episode titled "Walter's 50th Birthday." Hurray.

ITEM: To hand today a review copy of "The Open Gate", a collection of essays and photographs devoted entirely to Toronto's Union Station, priced at a whopping $12.95, and for the life of me I can't figure out who would buy it.

It may be that I'm a prejudiced reader since no other building in Canada turns me off so thoroughly as that enormous pile and my memories are crowded with disagreeable episodes set against its back-drop. I have come and gone from Union Station perhaps a dozen times and always, it seems, in a raging blizzard.

It was a raging blizzard when I put my wife on a Vancouver-bound train and walked directly out to join some 200 poor slobs to wait for a Halifax-bound troop train, the beginning of a four-year separation.

It was a raging blizzard when I last arrived on a boat train from Montreal that was crowded with immigrants. There was an Irish couple with two small children. We'd become friendly with them on the crossing from Liverpool. I last saw them standing in the driving snow on Front Street, outside the station, looking up at the great forbidding wall of the Royal York, all four of them crying.

Who needs that kind of memory, especially when it retails at $12.95?

BUNN . . . for the board

CUPE, Trustees Can't Even Agree On Definition Of the Issues In 5-Day Strike

MARKIDES . . . for the union

Board Says Money—Not So, Says Union

The two sides in the Greater Victoria School District strike not only disagree on terms for a new contract, but also on the issues in the five-day walkout.

The school board sees the dispute as primarily over wages.

The Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 382, sees the non-wage issues as the major ones.

Under the old contract, which expired Dec. 31, pay rates in the various classifications ranged from $627 a month for full-time janitors to $889 a month for full-time electricians.

the school district has offered an additional 33 cents an hour on the $3.60 an hour base rate in each year of a two-year contract, or just over nine per cent per year.

School board chairman Peter Bunn said the employers' offer would raise the full-time janitors' pay to $742 in 1974 and the full-time electricians' pay to $1,060.

He said union comments downplaying the wage issue in comparison with others is "a ploy. When the chips are down, it's money."

The union lists the issues this way:

Work area for janitors — The last agreement stated 28,400 square feet daily. The union wants this changed to 2,000 square feet per hour, or 16,000 square feet for an eight-hour day. It says that until the middle of the last contract, janitors were never required to wash outside windows above the ground floor or attend to grounds and flower beds.

Holidays — The union wants three weeks after one year's work, four weeks after five years and five weeks after 10 years. It has been two weeks after one year's work, three weeks after four years and four weeks after 14 years.

Sick leave — Instead of 12 days annually with one day going into a sick leave bank, the union wants 18 days annually with 1½ days going into sick leave bank.

Graveyard shifts — Five consecutive shifts, instead of a four-and-one split with days off.

Equal pay — The union argues that female day-shift janitors, called matrons and paid $2.85 an hour, do the same work as day-shift janitors at $3.60 an hour and that they should be brought to the higher rate. The school district says the duties are different and points to a Human Rights Commission finding that "male janitors perform physical work not required of janitoresses."

Promotions — Under the last agreement, employees lack the right to grieve against non-appointment to a higher position.

Junior Highs To Open Thursday

All junior high schools in the Greater Victoria School District will be open Thursday at 9 a.m. to give instructional direction to 7,200 children.

All junior high schools, except the small Dean Heights, were closed by the school district Monday because of fears of vandalism.

District superintendent A. J. Longmore said students will be given instructions at school as to further attendance.

No school will be open for more than half a day, he added.

All other schools in the district remain on the previously-announced schedules.

Some Clerical Employees Returning to Their Jobs

Clerical workers returned to work at many schools in the district today despite the strike by maintenance personnel in a sister local.

Clerical staffs were told Tuesday they could report to work today and if no pickets were seen they could enter the schools and continue work as usual.

The staffing situation fluctuated throughout the day however as rotating pickets had the clerical workers walking on and off the job at various times.

About half the regular secretarial staff reported to work at school board offices this morning but walked out again at 11 a.m. when the shop steward was informed a picket line had been set up.

Dick Proctor, spokesman for the striking local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said the decision to allow the clerical staffs in local 947 to work came at a meeting of union representatives Tuesday afternoon.

Muriel Overgaard, president of the clerical workers' local, said there was no set pattern of work being followed because no one knew where picket lines would be.

She said there was no ill-feeling between the two locals but added "there's always a bit of dissention when people are prevented from earning a living."

She said the 258 members of the local voted unanimously Tuesday to support the strikers "to any extent possible" and not to cross picket-lines.

Proctor said he had no idea how many of the local 947 members had gone to work today or whether picket lines, scheduled to go into full force at 2 p.m., would force all the clerical workers to walk off the job again.

Victoria senior secondary reported all eight school secretaries were back on the job and most elementary school phones were answered this morning by secretaries or teacher aides.

Proctor said the decision of the clerical workers to return to work did not reflect badly" on the maintenance employees since the purpose of the strike was to withdraw their own services "not stop others from doing their jobs."

'We Can't Stop Them'

"Besides, it was a joint agreement of locals," Proctor added, "and we can't stop them if we don't have picket lines up."

The spokesman said the union was more concerned about volunteer parents cleaning up the schools.

"They're only going to prolong the strike," Proctor said, "certainly they're doing our work and we must consider them strikebreakers."

Many parents at the district's 54 schools have been offering to clean schools after five days of the maintenance workers strike against the Greater Victoria school district.

"The board can't recommend parents clean the schools," district superintendent A. J. Longmore said today, "because we don't want to get involved in strike-breaking."

The union's executive, meanwhile, has decided to urge its members to send their own children to school.

Earlier, the union and the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association reached an agreement under which teachers would cross picket lines but would not do any of the work normally performed by strikers nor ask children to do it.

The union said it was asking its own members to send their children to school because the strike is against school district management not against education.

The union also said milk trucks supplying students will not be stopped from crossing picket lines.

Attendance at elementary schools has generally been about normal for this time of year with a few exceptions.

On the first school day of the strike, above average absenteeism was reported at Victoria West, Blanshard, Tilicum and Quadra elementary schools.

The biggest elementary school in the district, George Jay, was closed Monday and when it opened Tuesday 215 of the 860 students were absent. Attendance impoved this morning with 123 children away, about 14 per cent.

School board officials said schools were operating "fairly normally" today and all school children were aware of when they should be reporting to school.

Spokesmen said teachers' pay cheques, which take about two weeks to process, will be issued as usual at the end of the month.

Payrolls are managed by a computer firm and any manual work, usually done by clerical staff can be done by management personnel if necessary.

"I think we can lick all the envelopes ourselves," the board spokesman said.

Strike Distorted Says Union Official

A spokesman for the Canadian Union of Public Employees said today the strike against the Greater Victoria School District has been "badly distorted."

Jim Murrie, western regional director of the union, said the average Victoria citizen believes striking janitors and maintenance men are seeking a 20 per cent wage increase to do 43 per cent less work.

"This is totally fallacious and an attempt by school board management generally and board chairman Peter Bunn in particular to deliberately misrepresent the facts," he said.

During the last contract, Murrie said the school district "saddled" janitors with work they were never required to do before.

"Janitors never cleaned school windows above the ground floor until last May when this was added to their work load, yet to hear Mr. Bunn you'd think these employees have always been required to clean windows," he said.

Janitors were also being required to cut grass and maintain flower beds "and these functions were not required of them until last year."

But while the school district continues to expand in terms of classroom area, there has been a 10 per cent reduction in maintenance staff in the last two years.

When the last contract was negotiated in 1970, CUPE Local 382 represented 295 employees. This year the local represents 268 employees, a 10 per cent reduction in staff in two years, he said.

"Instead of doing less work, our members are working harder than ever," Murrie said.

Bunn replied today that it is "basic arithmetic" that the employees have asked for a 20 per cent wage increase and a 43 per cent reduction in the area of the building to be maintained.

"The statement by this gentleman (Murrie) is decidedly flatulent," Bunn replied

He said it is recognized that the 28,400 square foot figure is not attained and he is aware of janitor duties other than sweeping.

With a lesser staff, what was happening was, for example, that instead of a floor being waxed once a week it's once every two weeks.

Asked if it wasn't speedup when fewer men were asked to do more work in more areas, Bunn said "I would not deny that greater productivity has not been required in the has two years. We are paying high wages and expect greater productivity."

Local union first vice-president Bob Cunningham said the 28,400 square foot figure has "never been reached by any janitor", and that 16,000 square feet is a more realistic figure.

Small Wheels Rejected

"They're too small," said Citra.

"I've tried them and they're very difficult to steer with because they don't have the leverage."

The special steering wheels come as small as 10 inches in diameter, he said, compared with a normal 14 to 18-inch wheel that manufacturers put on cars.

By replacing the steering wheel with a smaller one, the steering ratio is altered making the car more difficult to drive, said Citra.

Local automobile parts dealer Gordie Estlin said he sells two types of small steering wheels, a 12-inch wheel kit for about $22 and a 14½-inch wheel kit for $25.

"We only sell them for dune buggies and go-carts" he said, although young people on occasion have asked to buy them for their cars.

Hair in Your Soup?

Restaurant cooks with long hair — whether men or women — must wear a hairnet as well as a cap, Greater Victoria's senior public health officer told a meeting of the metro health board Tuesday.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread was replying to questions from board members about stiffer health regulations for public eating places which come into effect April 1.

Among conditions worrying board member Harry Graham were long-haired cooks and chipped cups.

"We require them to wear hairnets under their hats," said the doctor of the cooks. He added that "progressive places require hair to be cut to a decent length."

Cracks in crockery can harbor germs and board chairman Ken Hill said he thinks customers are well within their rights to refuse soup or a drink served in a chipped bowl or cup.

He recommended the public do just that as the fastest means of persuading restaurants to dispose of cracked crockery.

Whitbread's report said: "We have had discussions with the Restaurant Association and have informed many restaurants that their standards must be improved. . .

"Where food establishments are required to carry out renovation or reconstruction, plans and a letter of intent must be submitted for approval. Permits will be issued by the medical health officer commencing April 1 of this year and all restaurants and catering businesses must have a permit.

"One of our main problems is the fact that we need additional public health inspectors to adequately cover the various zones in the area."

Whitbread said courses on hygenic handling of food will be held when staff are available and the board voted to ask Canada Manpower for assistance in establishing the program.

In the meantime, the metro health staff will mail a copy of the new health regulations to all restaurants with a reminder of the approaching effective date.

Mail Dispute Erupts Into Wildcat Strikes

Postal workers picket main Toronto terminal

Times News Services

Canada's postal service moved closer to a shutdown today, as wildcat strikes halted mail movement in both Vancouver and Toronto.

The long-simmering dispute came to a boil Tuesday, with the two sides accusing each other of causing the interruption. Postal workers across Canada have been legally able to strike since Dec. 21.

In Vancouver, where the walkout is expected to end tonight, Emile Le Hingrat, spokesman for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the strike was called after workers received word that the treasury board will not accept part of a conciliation board report in the contract dispute.

A post office spokesman in Victoria said service here was continuing normally today. However, mail for Vancouver Island points from the rest of Canada was being delayed by the mainland walkout.

RENEGING

Vancouver post office officials said this morning that "as long as the work stoppage continues the Vancouver and New Westminster main post offices and postal stations will remain closed and there will be no mail deliveries."

The postal unions said the government was reneging on an earlier commitment to accept a conciliation board report as the basis for negotiations, by refusing a section on job classification grievances.

The government charged that the unions had rejected the same clause.

No date for a resumption of talks was announced.

In a news release, the Council of Postal Unions CPU said government negotiators had refused to go along with the report and were trying to twist it to suit their purposes.

Later, Claude Parent, chief treasury board negotiator, emerged from a private meeting with Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet to say the union negotiating committee had demanded "as a price for further negotiations" that the government make immediate concessions beyond the terms of the majority report of the conciliation board.

NO UNION REPLY

A treasury board spokesman said the unions have not replied to a complete set of proposals presented Monday. Instead, they've accused the board of twisting the report.

Roger Decarie, a co-chairman of the CPU, said the only sound contract offers the government has made were presented in December.

He said the unions would not accept the conciliation board report if it is changed, saying it was a case of all or nothing.

The talks, which resumed Thursday, were the first face-to face negotiations since mid-December, and the breakdown came only one day after the postmaster-general had announced the government would accept the conciliation board's majority report.

In a national vote earlier this month, the rank and file postal workers turned down the recommendation of their negotiating team to reject the conciliation board proposals.

The vote was close — 11,200 to 9,500 — but with the majority going for acceptance of the report, it left the union

OIL QUOTA BOOSTED

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon proclaimed a 93,000-barrel-a-day increase today in imports of Canadian crude and unfinished oils destined for states east of the Rockies.

An administration spokesman said this would, in effect, mean as much capacity as the pipeline can hold.

The quota for Canadian crude will be 675,000 barrels a day averaged over all of 1973. The former quota was 581,000.

In addition to the added imports expected from Canada through the higher quota, the United States estimates supplies from other parts of the world will be increased by 822,000 barrels daily to a daily total of somewhat more than two million barrels.

Imports on the U.S. West Coast are increased to 800,000 barrels daily during 1973 from 717,000 in 1972.

Meanwhile, some progress has been made on a U.S.-Canada agreement to share oil supplies in an emergency, Deputy Minister Jack Austin said today.

UIC Bill Tightens Rules

Times News Service

OTTAWA — Persons who quit their jobs without just cause or get fired for misconduct will not be eligible for unemployment insurance benefits according to a bill introduced today by the government.

The bill, which was given routine first reading, also would give the Unemployment Insurance Commission the power to make regulations defining when claimants are available for work and what kind of work qualifies as being suitable to replace lost jobs.

Manpower Minister Robert Andras, said the commission might give a person four or six weeks to come up with a job in the same area or in the same salary range that he left, then insist that he take other kinds of jobs or be cut off from UIC benefits.

The bill also proposes several adjustments in designation of benefit periods.

One of the provisions would prohibit a person from receiving benefits for a period of more than 53 weeks. Under current regulations a person can conceivably receive benefits over an 83-week period, although he would only be eligible for the UIC maximum of 51 weekly payments within that period.

Earlier, Agriculture Minister E. F. Whelan called on western grain producers to produce "all the wheat they can produce" this spring.

At the same time he urged them to produce even larger quantities of seed grains than they grew in previous years.

"Except for that reservation my theme to producers is to produce grain for all they are worth, and by the way I hope money lenders both east and west are listening. There is a clear message for them.

"The message is have faith in Canada's agricultural producers and give them the backing they deserve, because I intend to do this as long as I am minister of agriculture," said Whelan.

He spoke in the second last day of the throne speech debate Tuesday. He pointed out that ever since he had become minister of agriculture prices to the farmers have improved considerably.

"I urge farmers this spring to produce grain to beat the band, all types of grains," said the minister.

"Knowing the capacity and urge of Canadian farmers to produce I feel it in my bones that farmers will grow and deliver record quantities of grain both in the east and the west.

"This government will sell record amounts of grain again this year. And let no one belittle the efforts made by this government to improve the meteoric rise in cash income gains made from grain sales these past two years," said Whelan.

The Trudeau government faces its third confidence vote in a week today as the Commons winds up eight days of debate on the speech from the throne.

Barring some unforseen development the minority Liberal administration is expected to survive with NDP support, as it did on the two previous votes.

Barrett Has Hurt Tanker Case: Grit

Anderson said he is writing immediately to the premier, asking why he saw fit to prejudice both federal government and private efforts to prevent U.S. supertankers bringing Alaskan oil down the B.C. coast to refineries at Cherry Point.

He will also ask Barrett if he has "any private knowledge" on which to base his apparent acceptance of the "inevitability" of the tanker traffic.

One of the most damaging statements made by Barrett at the talks, Anderson said, was his claim that the federal government doesn't know what it is talking about on the general subject of the proposed oil tanker route and its effect on B.C.

He said that thanks in part to his own efforts, Ottawa "knows a damn sight more than Barrett on this particular subject."

Anderson said such inaccurate statements by the premier had given the U.S. useful ammunition.

"They are going to be able to say, 'Don't worry about the Canadians — we have this rube from the backwoods who is attacking their federal efforts. We've driven a wedge between the Canadians'."

Anderson also rapped Barrett for stating that it is useless to try to contest the tanker issue in the courts, pointing out that such efforts had already stalled the tankers for three years.

He pointed out that his own suit against the U.S. secretary of the interior is now before the U.S. Court of Appeal and would likely go as high as the Supreme Court. He said neither Barrett nor anyone else knows what the outcome of these efforts will be.

In his comments Anderson castigated the B.C. premier for asking Evans to present a brief to the U.S. Federal Power Commission on B.C.'s opposition to the proposed flooding of the Skagit Valley in B.C. by Seattle City Light.

The province can and should appear before the FPC to state its own case, he said.

DRUG LAW TYPO DELAYS CASE

OTTAWA — A legal problem, which interrupted a marijuana possession case in Surrey, was caused by an editorial error in the Revised Statutes of Canada 1970, a justice department official said today.

Provincial Judge, Arthur Kelly of Surrey adjourned a marijuana possession case Monday for clarification of what he called the "sloppy legislation."

Judge Kelly would not allow a case against Robert James McBride and Josephine Jarvis of Surrey to go ahead as a summary conviction matter because a sub-section in the Narcotic Control Act describes possession of a narcotic as an indictable offence.

A person cannot be convicted in a lower court upon summary conviction for an offence which is indictable. The accused has an option to go to a higher court on an indictable matter.

D. H. Christie, a deputy attorney-general, said the original wording of the Narcotic Control Act as passed by Parliament is correct.

He said that when amendments to federal legislation were compiled in the Revised Statutes, the word "indictable" accidentally crept in.

The judge ordered the case adjourned to Feb. 23 for clarification and arguement by the prosecutor in the case.

Christie said the word indictable should not have been included in the sub-section. The French wording is "une

NEWS BRIEFS

May Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau today proposed the next federal-provincial conference of prime ministers be held May 23-25 in Ottawa, following a crowded four months of federal-provincial ministerial conferences.

Quebec Seeks $230M

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec intends to seek $230 million from the federal government, representing money the province would have collected since 1966 if the RCMP had been the provincial police force.

Beirut 'Plot' Bared

BEIRUT (AP) — Lebanese security forces were reported today to have broken up a secret organization of urban guerrillas that planned to overthrow the country's democratic regime. A government statement said eight arrests have been made in Beirut and the suspects, all Lebanese, have admitted they held up the Bank of Syria and Lebanon Nov. 15 and got away with $10,000.

HYDRO SEES POWER DROP

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro anticipates it will have to provide 9.3 per cent more power for its customers each year for the next 11 years.

This would be less than the 11 per cent per year compound growth rate for the past 10 years. The growth in peak demand, the amount that is needed to meet the highest requirement for an instant in time, has grown by 9.9 per cent yearly in the past decade.

The annual forecast is made by the provincially-owned utility to guide its planners in developing new electrical power sources.

The report says that in 1983 Hydro's customers will use 47,601 million kilowatt hours of power compared with the 17,872 KWH used in the 12 months which ended March 31, 1972.

For the year ending next March 31, total consumption is expected to be 19,984 million KWH.

Hydro's officials make a number of assumptions in producing their estimates, among them that there will be no changes in the utility's practices, policies and existing rate schedules.

The estimate also assumes that despite current high unemployment, the economic outlook is one of sustained expansion. Environmental concern is not expected to result in any significant reduction in demand for electricity.

A review of this year's forecast against the rate of the past 10 years shows a drop in bulk users where the forecast growth is for 10.5 per cent annually compared with 15.3 per cent in the past decade.

In other categories, residential is predicted to grow at 9.2 per cent annually for the next 11 years compared with a recorded 9.5 per cent and general commercial growth is forecast at 8.1 per cent yearly compared with a recorded 9.3 per cent.

Emergency Fuel Airlift

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Maj. D. M. Owen of the Newfoundland Emergency Measures Organization says a Canadian Forces helicopter will fly heating oil to the communities of Beaumont and Fichot Island in northern Newfoundland today. Sea transport to both isolated settlements has been halted by heavy ice.

Chabot Lashes Dowding

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Social Credit MLA Jim Chabot today unleashed a stinging attack on Speaker Gordon Dowding, saying Dowding has "abused the taxpayers' money" by travelling to India as part of a study of parliamentary practices.

Chabot was reacting to criticism voiced Tuesday by Dowding of the fact that Chabot released to the press details of the report of a special subcommittee on legislative practices.

Chabot called Dowding "a man who is inclined to participate in partisan politics", which Chabot said is not the role of a speaker of the house. And he said Dowding is "attempting to create a rift" among the members of the subcommittee of which Chabot was the chairman.

Chabot released details of his subcommittee's report to the press last Thursday. Dowding charged Tuesday that the report should have been discussed first by the legislative assembly before being released, and accused Chabot of "a breach of privilege of the house."

The Socred MLA for Columbia River said in a telephone interview from Inversmere that Dowding's charges are "an unrealistic statement." He said Dowding "doesn't understand the legislation by which our committee was established." The subcommittee was established under Dowding, not as a committee of the house, Chabot said, and therefore their report should not have to go to the house first.

He said he made his subcommittee's report available to Dowding when it was completed and then released it to the press. "It isn't my fault that he is travelling around the world and wasn't able to receive the report because he was in New Delhi," Chabot said.

Chabot said he "can't see any relationship" between parliament in India and the B.C. legislative assembly. The Indian house has some 500 members while B.C. has 55 "and we're just not living in the same kind of world as they are," he said.

The former Socred labor minister said Dowding's trip across Canada to visit other provincial legislatures was worthwhile, but the trip to India was not. Dowding returned from India last week, after a visit of several days.

MOST DDT DESTROYED

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence research board is approaching the end of a program of destroying almost all the DDT stocks in Canada.

The longer-than-expected program was announced in 1971 but staff and other problems have slowed the process.

The board said this week that about 65 per cent of the 107,000 gallons of liquid DDT held by the armed forces in 1971 now has been destroyed in its facility at Suffield, Alta.

The environment department said most of the liquid DDT in the country now is at Suffield, near Medicine Hat. Most of this had been held by the armed forces which used it to control biting flies at northern bases.

DDT was virtually banned in Canada in late 1969. It now can be used only in specific cases, such as the control of some worms and bats, and only under controlled conditions.

In the system, DDT contaminants are burned and the burned matter is cooled by water. There is said to be no pollution from destruction of the pollutant, the only side products being a dilute acid, carbon dioxide and water vapor.

Small stocks of DDT in dust form are being maintained in selected depots across the country. This is used primarily for the control of body lice and health officials asked the department to save some in case of emergencies.
